JOHNSON CITY — Senator Robert F. Kennedy captured this city last night. There could be no doubt, judging by the tone of the applause and the crush of the crowds, along with the lining up of Democratic leaders, that Kennedy had the bulk of the support of some 1,500 Dems attending a testimonial dinner for State Chairman John J. Burns in this city near Binghamton. The "Tribute to John J. Burns" was held at the Fountains Pavilion, a former dance hall where Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey and their bands played; Frank Sinatra sang, and Benny Goodman himself performed many times. Last night, however, belonged to Kennedy, and when Dominick Assare, the mayor of Utica, became the first leader to refer to Kennedy as "the next President of the United States," the crowd went wild with applause and foot stamping. Forty-five of the 62 state county chairmen attended the event, including Dr. Gerald P. Gorman of Ulster, along with state Comptroller Arthur Levitt; speaker of the State Assembly Anthony J. Travia, and the powerful leader of California Democrats, speaker of the California Assembly, Jesse Unruh. Seen as Kickoff Primarily a party for Burns, the event was looked upon by some as Kennedy's presidential campaign kickoff in the state, or, at the very least, a test of his strength. It was Theodore Sorenson, President John F. Kennedy's special aide, who was master of ceremonies and it was he who introduced the late President's brother with, "I have some confidence of what lies ahead. I now give you the next President of the United States, Robert F. Kennedy." Kennedy led off and drew laughs by addressing the gathered leaders by name, then "fellow Democrats, friends, and Joe Resnick." Resnick was not present at the event, even though a table had been reserved for him. Referring to the blue ribbon Vietnam commission which he had requested President Johnson create in order to review war policy, Kennedy said, "I suggested that members of the commission include (Sen.) Wayne Morse (D-Oregon), (Sen.) J. William Fulbright (D-Arkansas), and Sen (Albert) Gore (D-Tennessee)." "The President suggested," Kennedy went on, "General Westmoreland, Martha Raye and John Wayne." Applauds Party The first-term Senator said that, "The Democratic Party has stood for something very special," and he went on to list democratic presidents Jefferson, Jackson, Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman, and, finally John F. Kennedy. The crowd went into another frenzy of applause. Kennedy claimed that, "In 1968, the American people will again turn to the Democratic Party," and he said Democrats "face the truth and face it with candor." "Events in the last few days have made it clear that only in the Democratic Party have we the courage to face debate."

The former U. S. Attorney General and campaign manager for his brother, John, declared, "I run for the Presidency of the United States, and I come here to ask for your help." Burns was the last to speak, and the 46-year-old father of 12 said, "I will continue to speak out on what is right — and I think what is right is to elect Robert F. Kennedy the next President of the United States." Discussion centered on the President's withdrawing of General Westmoreland from Vietnam, the strength of Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) in the state, and the possibility of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick gaining the Democratic nomination for the Senate. Not Given A Chance "Resnick hasn't got a chance," said one county chairman, "because he doesn't know how to go about gaining a nomination." Another chairman from an upstate county, claimed, "With all his money, some $3 million or whatever it is, he (Resnick) just hasn't addressed himself to the party machinery." "He's trying to get the nod simply by sending out press releases and attacking Kennedy and Burns," the chairman continued. "I don't know who his aides are, but they haven't given him much help." A well-known New York City Democrat said, "If (Resnick) had only kept his mouth shut (regarding Kennedy and Burns) they may have given him the nomination. When he started attacking, they were forced to cut him down." Leaders saw Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton as the party's nominee.

Westmoreland's Transfer: Was LBJ Disenchanted?

By FRED S. HOFFMAN WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's decision to bring Gen. William C. Westmoreland back from Vietnam and make him Army chief of staff is certain to be interpreted by some as disenchantment with Westmoreland's conduct of the war. Westmoreland's reaction heightened the impression of a rebuff. "I regret to leave this war-torn land before the battle is over and before peace is restored," the four-star general said in Saigon after learning the news by telephone. Westmoreland said he got the word from Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—not from Johnson, who has been considering Westmoreland's bid for up to about 200,000 more troops. The President's action, announced abruptly Friday evening, deferred selection of a successor. This raised speculation Johnson might pass over Gen. Creighton Abrams, Westmoreland's deputy, in favor of a new face with a new strategy. Westmoreland, who will replace retiring Gen. Harold K. Johnson as Army chief in the Pentagon on July 2, said "I would hope" Abrams succeeds him as Vietnam war leader, "I have absolute confidence in the ability and leadership of Gen. Abrams." Westmoreland said. Pentagon officials said it was common knowledge in defense quarters for the past year that Westmoreland would leave Vietnam this summer after nearly four years in the demanding post.

little more than a month ago that he had never known a military man in whom he had more confidence. And it was recalled that last November, following a Washington conference with Johnson, Westmoreland told newsmen in Saigon, "I've been led to believe I'll remain in my post." If Johnson had promoted Westmoreland to the prestige of chairman of the Joint Chiefs, grounds for regarding Westmoreland's relief as a repudiation would have been virtually nonexistent. But the President implied strongly that Westmoreland wasn't considered for the chairmanship, regarded as the top military position. Johnson said Westmoreland was considered for the post of commander-in-chief of the entire Pacific area and for the Army staff chief job—but the President did not mention Westmoreland in connection with a possible replacement for Wheeler. Gen. Westmoreland has not had exceptional rapport with his troops but he has worked hard during his nearly four years of Vietnam command. Story on page 14.

The President said he had persuaded Wheeler to stay on another year beyond the normal expiration of his four-year hitch on July 2. This meant Johnson hadn't yet found the man he wants in that slot. And Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, who reaches the mandatory retirement age of 62 next month, will remain in uniform an extra two months, until July 2, to allow time for naming his successor. Asked whether Westmoreland's relief implies any change in strategy in Vietnam, Johnson replied: "The strategy and the tactical operations have nothing to do with the appointments as such." "I do not know at this time who the commanding general of our troops there will be. Therefore, I cannot speak for his plans or for his programs." Johnson said he has reached a decision on the question of additional troops for Vietnam, where the level is approaching the previously approved 525,000-man ceiling. Authoritative sources have

The Mideast Crisis: Debate Continues

By CHARLES STORER UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the U.N. Security Council, weary after two days of marathon meetings and private consultations on the latest outbreak of fighting in the Middle East, pushed ahead today with their search for a resolution critical of Israel that all could accept. Diplomatic sources said it was generally agreed among members of the 15-nation council that Israel's retaliatory attack on Jordan Thursday should be condemned. The sources said the major obstacle to agreement was a Western call for a general reference to Arab terrorist raids into Israel and Israeli-occupied Arab territory which preceded Israel's large-scale attack on Jordan. Israel said the attack was in retaliation for the raids. Algeria, one of the most militant of the Arab states and a member of the council, was said to be opposed to any such reference, however vague. One Western diplomat said Algeria describes the Arab terrorism against Israel as a manifestation of a "national liberation movement." The Western members of the council also are unhappy about a provision in a draft resolution put forward unofficially by Algeria that would warn Israel of "further and more effective measures" by the council if Israel should repeat its military reprisals. The Western members also had offered a proposed resolution in the private negotiations but had not been able to win wide council support for it. Up to the early hours today, no resolution had been formally presented to the council. Jordan had urged immediate application of Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter against Israel. The chapter provides for enforcement measures, including economic sanctions and use of force if necessary to back up council decisions. Jordanian Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra told the council that failure to invoke sanctions at once would be an "invitation to disaster" in the Middle East. Israeli Ambassador Josef Tekoah told the council, however, that Israeli forces that had seized the Jordanian town of Karamah had discovered it "one huge terrorist base." Most of the civilians had left the village, he said, because "the saboteurs had made normal civilian life impossible." "The whole place was under the complete control of the terrorists," he declared. He added that Arabs seized by the Israelis told interrogators that greatly increased terrorist activities were planned in Israel and Israeli-occupied territory at the end of this month. Although Tekoah made these charges at midday Friday and the council met again for further speeches in late afternoon, Tekoah's charges drew no immediate denial from Jordan or any other Arab representatives.

Esopus: Savago, 6 to 5

One vote separates H. Clark Bell and Peter J. Savago in their bid for the assembly seat now held by Kenneth L. Wilson. According to a Freeman count, Bell has 106 delegate votes, Savago has 105. The new count was the result of a caucus held by the Town of Espus GOP convention last night. With three men absent from the 14-member delegation, Savago took Bell six to five. As with the City of Kingston Republican vote giving Savago 24 and Bell 14, GOPers continue to register surprise at Bell's strength. Savago had been expected by some to take at least 38 Kingston votes. The 24 votes is considered disappointing to supporters of the chairman of the county legislature. The Esopus action must also be considered in the same light. Three Left There are only three delegations left to hear from, those of Shandaken, Rosendale, and Marlboro. According to supporters of both men, the Shandaken delegation will also split, giving Bell four votes and Savago two. Assuming that Shandaken takes this path, Bell will have 110 votes to Savago's 107. Reliable sources place the Rosendale delegation strongly in the Savago column. There is still some question, however, as to the Savago plurality. The Savago camp says he will get all 10 of the Rosendale votes. Bell's people expect a 7-3 split in favor of the 37-year-old New Paltz insurance man. If the vote goes 8-2 in favor of Savago, the legislative leader will have a total edge of one vote—113 to 112. Savago reportedly has an edge with the Marlboro delegation, how much of an edge is not certain. If as some insiders suggest, the vote is 7-3 in Savago's favor, the result would be, taking the speculative Shandaken and Rosendale delegations into account, 120 for Savago, 115 for Bell. 120 Votes Needed Observers appear to agree that it would take about 120 votes to nominate a candidate for the state assembly at the March 25 unofficial GOP convention. With Savago and Bell apparently separated only by a hair's width, delegates who were absent from the count before could prove to be extremely important. What also has to be expected is switching of votes in the delegations just before Monday's convention, as the race for the Republican nomination for the state assembly goes down to the wire.

Objections to First Plan

Ulster Has Revised Arterial Route

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN A new alignment of the proposed arterial route through the Town of Ulster submitted this week by the State Department of Transportation may be acceptable to the business men and town officials. Many recommendations made at a public hearing on the matter in January 1967 have been followed on the new map presented to Ulster Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz, and this may resolve the controversy. Supervisor Musialkiewicz said a copy of the revised plan is now in his office in the Ulster Post Office on Vincent Street and may be viewed by the public. He said another public hearing on the new alignment will be scheduled by the state in the near future. The new arterial route through Town of Ulster on the revised alignment would start at Kingston City line near the old Route 32 and Flatbush Avenue where it would connect with the continuation of the proposed route south over the new Rondout Creek Bridge and on a new alignment of Hasbrouck Avenue. The new route would proceed north to a diamond intersection with an extension of Boices Lane coming from Route 9W. The four-lane highway would continue north on nearly a straight line to a new clover-leaf at the intersection of Route 199, the rock cut route connecting the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge with Route 9W. This section of the arterial would end a short distance past the cloverleaf for possible continuation on its route to Saugerties at a later date. On the new map half of the cloverleaf of Route 209 at 9W near the state police barracks would be eliminated. However cross roads connecting the north and southbound lanes of Route 9W at this point would permit traffic to proceed north. The previous plan objected to by Town of Ulster business men and officials had the arterial join Route 9W near the Neighborhood Road intersection thus deadening large tracts of valuable land to the east of Route 9W at this point. The Ulster supervisor said the new alignment would make this no-man's land near the 209 cloverleaf usable, taxable and more valuable for development. The extension of Boices Lane between Route 9W and the new proposed arterial would also provide land in the area east of Route 9W for development possibilities. Musialkiewicz said the new map alleviates some of the conditions objected to in the previous plans. The State Department of Transportation said the new map followed many of the recommendations of the Ulster

Planning Board and Ulster Town Board and eliminates the possibility of creating a no-man's land out of some of the most valuable development property in the township, he said. District Engineer M. Nicholas Sinacori of Poughkeepsie at the time of the 1967 public hearing said that most of the through traffic would use the new arterial route and therefore Route 9W would be abandoned by the state and turned back to the town for maintenance. Ulster Town officials at that time asked that the arterial be halted at the junction with Route 32 at the city line rather than create a no-man's land of valuable development property in the area of the Route 209 cloverleaf. Ulster business men at the hearing said they spent large sums of money on business properties along the present Albany Avenue Extension and called on the state to carry out its "promises" to widen and install drainage along the existing route prior to the construction of the arterial. Many of them wanted the arterial to be constructed on the existing alignment of Albany Avenue Extension (Route 9W) through the township to relieve the present traffic conditions in the shopping areas. Sinacori at that time said that when 9W was turned over to the town, widening and drainage would then be a community problem. The proposed 7.1 mile arterial will run along an alignment between the river and the Port Ewen community and cross Rondout Creek over a new span. The route would continue through the Kingston Urban Renewal area on a new alignment of Hasbrouck Avenue to the city line at the intersection of Flatbush Avenue and Route 32. In the Town of Esopus the four-lane arterial would begin on existing 9W west of Esopus Lake and proceed in a northerly direction parallel to the existing 9W. Access to the shopping areas of the Town of Ulster will be provided under the revised plan by the use of access roads, the extension of Boices Lane and the existing Route 199 which connects the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge with both the arterial and Route 9W. In 1967 there was very little objection to the arterial by City of Kingston and Town of Esopus officials.

Westmoreland's Transfer: Was LBJ Disenchanted?

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's decision to bring Gen. William C. Westmoreland back from Vietnam and make him Army chief of staff is certain to be interpreted by some as disenchantment with Westmoreland's conduct of the war. Westmoreland's reaction heightened the impression of a rebuff.

"I regret to leave this war-torn land before the battle is over and before peace is restored," the four-star general said in Saigon after learning the news by telephone.

Westmoreland said he got the word from Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—not from Johnson, who has been considering Westmoreland's bid for up to about 200,000 more troops.

The President's action, announced abruptly Friday evening, deferred selection of a successor. This raised speculation Johnson might pass over Gen. Creighton Abrams, Westmoreland's deputy, in favor of a new face with a new strategy.

Westmoreland, who will replace retiring Gen. Harold K. Johnson as Army chief in the Pentagon on July 2, said, "I would hope" Abrams succeeds him as Vietnam war leader. "I have absolute confidence in the ability and leadership of Gen. Abrams," Westmoreland said.

Pentagon officials said it was common knowledge in defense quarters for the past year that Westmoreland would leave Vietnam this summer after nearly four years in the demanding post.

Friends of Westmoreland, seeking to counter any impression he is being sacked, argued the job of Army chief of staff can hardly be rated a demotion.

They noted that as Army boss Westmoreland will be on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and will have a major voice in formulating future Vietnam military policy.

It also was pointed out that Westmoreland will be left to run the war for three more months—hardly comparable with the summary relief of Gen. Douglas MacArthur by President Harry S. Truman during the Korean War.

And yet there were elements, even beyond Westmoreland's own reaction, that contributed to an impression Johnson had cooled toward his commander, whose strategy has been under heavy attack from both "hawks" and "doves" since the Communists jolted the allies with their winter offensive against South Vietnam's cities.

The President was relatively meager in his praise of Westmoreland, referring to him only as "a very talented and very able officer."

This was told when compared with Johnson's declaration at a news conference only a little more than a month ago that he had never known a military man in whom he had more confidence.

And it was recalled that last November, following a Washington conference with Johnson, Westmoreland told newsmen in Saigon, "I've been led to believe I'll remain in my post."

If Johnson had promoted Westmoreland to the prestige of chairman of the Joint Chiefs, grounds for regarding Westmoreland's relief as a repudiation would have been virtually nonexistent.

But the President implied strongly that Westmoreland wasn't considered for the chairmanship, regarded as the top military position.

Johnson said Westmoreland was considered for the post of commander-in-chief of the entire Pacific area and for the Army staff chief job—but the President did not mention Westmoreland in connection with a possible replacement for Wheeler.

Gen. Westmoreland has not had exceptional rapport with his troops but he has worked hard during his nearly four years of Vietnam command. Story on page 14.

The President said he had persuaded Wheeler to stay on another year beyond the normal expiration of his four-year hitch on July 2. This meant Johnson hadn't yet found the man he wanted in that slot.

And Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp, who reaches the mandatory retirement age of 62 next month, will remain in uniform an extra two months, until July 2, to allow time for naming his successor.

Asked whether Westmoreland's relief implies any change in strategy in Vietnam, Johnson replied: "The strategy and the tactical operations have nothing to do with the appointments as such."

"I do not know at this time who the commanding general of our troops there will be. Therefore, I cannot speak for his plans or for his programs."

Johnson said he has reached a decision on the question of additional troops for Vietnam where the level is approaching the previously approved 525,000-man ceiling.

Authoritative sources have said there will be a moderate increase and military sources have indicated this reinforcement may total about 30,000 more men.

Commenting on the Westmoreland shift, Republican presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon said in Janesville, Wis., the move is constructive and appropriate. He called it sound to "take a fresh look" at the military situation.

"I don't see political motives" in Johnson's action, Nixon said. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said in Milwaukee that Westmoreland "is one of our most capable officers."

"The general has been in Vietnam a long time, and he is being given one of the highest positions in military service," Humphrey told a news conference.

Most of the civilians had left the village, he said, because "the saboteurs had made normal civilian life impossible."

"The whole place was under the complete control of the terrorists," he declared.

He added that Arabs seized by the Israelis told interrogators that greatly increased terrorist activities were planned in Israel and Israeli-occupied territory at the end of this month.

Although Tekoah made these charges at midday Friday and the council met again for further speeches in late afternoon, Tekoah's charges drew no immediate denial from Jordan or any other Arab representatives.

Objections to First Plan

Ulster Has Revised Arterial Route

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

A new alignment of the proposed arterial route through the Town of Ulster submitted this week by the State Department of Transportation may be acceptable to the business men and town officials.

Many recommendations made at a public hearing on the matter in January 1967 have been followed on the new map presented to Ulster Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz, and this may resolve the controversy.

Supervisor Musialkiewicz said a copy of the revised plan is now in his office in the Ulster Post Office on Vincent Street and may be viewed by the public. He said another public hearing on the new alignment will be scheduled by the state in the near future.

The new arterial route through Town of Ulster on the revised alignment would start at Kingston City line near the old Route 32 and Flatbush Avenue where it would connect with the continuation of the proposed route south over the new Rondout Creek Bridge and on a new alignment of Hasbrouck Avenue.

The new route would proceed north to a diamond intersection with an extension of Boices Lane coming from Route 9W. The four-lane highway would continue north on nearly a straight line to a new clover-leaf at the intersection of Route 199, the rock cut route connecting the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge with Route 9W. This section of the arterial would end a short distance past the cloverleaf for possible continuation on its route to Saugerties at a later date.

On the new map half of the cloverleaf of Route 209 at 9W near the state police barracks would be eliminated. However cross roads connecting the north and southbound lanes of Route 9W at this point would permit traffic to proceed north.

The previous plan objected to by Town of Ulster business men and officials had the arterial join Route 9W near the Neighborhood Road intersection thus deadending large tracts of valuable land to the east of Route 9W at this point.

The Ulster supervisor said the new alignment would make this no-man's land near the 209 cloverleaf usable, taxable and more valuable for development.

The extension of Boices Lane between Route 9W and the new proposed arterial would also provide land in the area east of Route 9W for development possibilities.

Musialkiewicz said the new map alleviates some of the conditions objected to in the previous plans. The State Department of Transportation on the new map followed many of the recommendations of the Ulster

Planning Board and Ulster Town Board and eliminates the possibility of creating a no-man's land out of some of the most valuable development property in the township, he said.

District Engineer M. Nicholas Sinacori of Poughkeepsie at the time of the 1967 public hearing said that most of the through traffic would use the new arterial route and therefore Route 9W would be abandoned by the state and turned back to the town for maintenance if the new plan is adopted.

Ulster Town officials at that time asked that the arterial be halted at the junction with Route 32 at the city line rather than create a no-man's land of valuable development property in the area of the Route 209 cloverleaf.

Ulster business men at the hearing said they spent large sums of money on business properties along the present Albany Avenue Extension and called on the state to carry out its "promises" to widen and install drainage along the existing route prior to the construction of the arterial. Many of them wanted the arterial to be constructed on the existing alignment of Albany Avenue Extension (Route 9W) through the township to relieve the present traffic conditions in the shopping areas.

Sinacori at that time said that when 9W was turned over to the town, widening and drainage would then be a community problem.

The proposed 7.1 mile arterial will run along an alignment between the river and the Port Ewen community and cross Rondout Creek over a new span. The route would continue through the Kingston Urban Renewal area on a new alignment of Hasbrouck Avenue to the city line at the intersection of Flatbush Avenue and Route 32.

In the Town of Esopus the four-lane arterial would begin on existing 9W west of Esopus Lake and proceed in a northerly direction parallel to the existing 9W.

Access to the shopping areas of the Town of Ulster will be provided under the revised plan by the use of access roads, the extension of Boices Lane and the existing Route 199 which connects the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge with both the arterial and Route 9W.

In 1967 there was very little objection to the arterial by City of Kingston and Town of Esopus officials.

One vote separates H. Clark Bell and Peter J. Savago in their bid for the assembly seat now held by Kenneth L. Wilson. According to a Freeman count, Bell has 106 delegate votes, Savago has 105.

The new count was the result of a caucus held by the Town of Espus GOP convention delegation last night. With three men absent from the 14-member delegation, Savago took Bell six to five.

As with the City of Kingston Republican vote giving Savago 24 and Bell 14, GOPers continue to register surprise at Bell's strength.

Savago had been expected by some to take at least 38 Kingston votes. The 24 votes is considered disappointing to supporters of the chairman of the county legislature. The Esopus action must also be considered in the same light.

There are only three delegations left to hear from, those of Shandaken, Rosendale, and Marlboro.

According to supporters of both men, the Shandaken delegation will also split, giving Bell four votes and Savago two. Assuming that Shandaken takes this path, Bell will have 110 votes to Savago's 107.

Reliable sources place the Rosendale delegation strongly in the Savago column. There is still some question, however, as to the Savago plurality. The Savago camp says he will get all 10 of the Rosendale votes. Bell's people expect a 7-3 split in favor of the 37-year-old New Paltz insurance man.

If the vote goes 8-2 in favor of Savago, the legislative leader will have a total edge of one vote—113 to 112.

Savago reportedly has an edge with the Marlboro delegation, how much of an edge is not certain. If as some insiders suggest, the vote is 7-3 in Savago's favor, the result would be, taking the speculative Shandaken and Rosendale delegations into account, 120 for Savago, 115 for Bell.

120 Votes Needed

Observers appear to agree that it would take about 120 votes to nominate a candidate for the state assembly at the March 25 unofficial GOP convention.

With Savago and Bell apparently separated only by a hair's width, delegates who were absent from the count before could prove to be extremely important.

What also has to be expected is switching of votes in the delegations just before Monday's convention, as the race for the Republican nomination could prove to be extremely important.

POWELL RETURNS—Ousted Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell (C) is all smiles as well-wishers surround him during surprise appearance in his constituency late Friday. Earlier, Powell was released under his own cognizance after surrendering to New York City Sheriff and appearing briefly before N. Y. State Supreme Court Judge Arthur Marlewich. A condition of his release is that Powell will immediately appeal his contempt of court conviction. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

SWINGING SEMINARIANS — The Collarmen, Redemptorist Seminarians from Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus, will play for the CYO Teen Federation of Ulster County Sunday at St. Peter's Church Rosendale. The group is well known in the Hudson Valley and has made several recordings. The parish Mass will be a folk Mass at 5:30 p. m. Members and guests of CYO will have a light supper after Mass. At 7:15 the Collarmen will present their program to the public. Members of the group are (L-R) Fathers William Grassman, Ralph Bennett, James Bek, Carlos Valles (Kneeling), Frank Browne and Charles Beierwaltes.

Greatest Story Film Slated Here April 9

The board of trustees of the Glenford Methodist Church announced today that on Tuesday, April 9, the Glenford Methodist Church will present an exclusive area showing of one of the most widely acclaimed religious films of all time, the George Stevens production of The Greatest Story Ever Told.

The film, which relates the story of Jesus, has received unanimous praise from both religious and lay organizations throughout the nation, and has been termed the most accurate and beautiful portrayal of the life of Christ. The performance will be at the Community Theater in Kingston.

Among the many stars who will be seen in The Greatest Story Ever Told will be the renowned Swedish actor, Max von Sydow, who plays the role of Jesus, as well as such other well known names as Dorothy McGuire, Charlton Heston, John Wayne, Van Heflin, Carroll Baker, David McCallum, Jose Ferrer, Martin Landau, Angela Lansbury, Roddy McDowall, Sal Mineo, Sidney Poitier, Claude

Rains, Shelly Winters, Ed Wynn, Ina Balin and many more of Hollywood's top personalities. The picture, which was over four years in the making, is presented in Ultra Panavision and Technicolor, and up to now has only been seen at limited engagements in selected theaters.

The complete and uncut presentation of The Greatest Story Ever Told will be brought to Kingston by the Glenford Methodist Church for a single performance at the Community Theater on April 9. There will be one showing of this epic film at 7:30 p. m., and the church's board remind everyone in the area that this may be the only time this motion picture will be shown in the Kingston area.

The Greatest Story Ever Told is being presented by the Glenford Methodist Church as a public service during Holy Week, and all funds raised by the showing of the film will be used to assist the church's building fund. Tickets for this special performance are now available from any member of the congregation.

HRVC Attempts To Stop A-Plant

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Hudson River Valley Commission seeks to deter the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. from building a nuclear power plant at Easton, southeast of Saratoga Springs.

The commission said Friday it had notified federal and state agencies of its opposition to the proposed facility, despite a recognized need for additional power-generating plants in eastern New York.

"A definite assessment of the effect of thermal pollution—the raising of the river temperature—has not been made," the agency contended.

In addition, it argued, "there are no legal or administrative safeguards to guarantee that a reduction in power generation will be made during the low river flow."

The commission, created in 1966, has reviewing power over all projects along the 300-mile-long river valley but lacks regulatory authority.

It also said construction of the plant opposite the Saratoga Battlefield would be "highly destructive of the historical significance and scenic aspects of the area."

Dog Is Fined

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Kathleen Milligan, whose pet German shepherd was accused of nipping an 8-year-old boy, appeared Friday in Milwaukee County Court on a charge of keeping a vicious dog.

Student Charged In Draft Refusal

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A 20-year-old, former student at Cornell University is charged with failing to report for induction into the armed forces.

Steven H. Boldt of Marilla, east of Buffalo, was arrested Friday by the FBI. He appeared in Binghamton and was released in his own recognizance, pending further court action.

Boldt's draft board in Buffalo had ordered him to report Feb. 27.

Boldt told authorities Friday he had been in Ithaca Feb. 27 to attend a meeting of the Cornell Resistance, a group opposing the draft.

Young Woman Killed in Crash

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Elaine Petote, 20, of Rochester, was killed and two other persons were injured when three automobiles collided late Friday on a busy downtown street, police said.

Marleen Koneski, 21, of Rochester, in the same car as Miss Petote, was admitted to Strong Memorial Hospital in critical condition with multiple injuries. Cardell Nix, 44, of Rochester, in another auto, was discharged after treatment for a leg injury.

Miss Petote lived at 60 Briggs St. Miss Koneski's home is at 455 Brooks Ave. and Nix resides at 79 Mellis Park.

Trespassing Arrest

Charged with criminal trespassing on property at the Fox Hill Resort Ranch in Greenfield Park, Town of Wawarsing, early today two men were arrested and arraigned before Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Poppel.

Stephan Wardynski and Raymond O. Black, both 22 and residents of Ellenville, were arrested by Milton Trierfer, proprietor of the ranch who turned the defendants over to state police. Both were held in the county jail in lieu of $100 pending a hearing at 4:30 p. m. today.

Kent Is Acquitted By Dutchess Jury

Richard S. Kent, 26-year-old Poughkeepsie mechanic, was acquitted at 11:05 p. m. Friday by a Dutchess County trial jury of nine men and three women of a first degree murder charge which accused him of slaying a 74-year-old retired New York City patrolman.

Kent was immediately taken into custody by sheriff's deputies on a charge of escaping from the county jail. He and two other prisoners sawed their way to freedom last Sept. 27, but all three were apprehended in New York City within 10 hours through excellent work by New York State Police.

The Poughkeepsie man was accused in the death of Joseph L. Murphy who was found stabbed and beaten in his Salt Point home in the Town of Clinton last June 25.

The jury began deliberations at 5 p. m. Thursday and at times reported to County Judge Raymond C. Baratta that they were deadlocked. The verdict of not guilty was reported at 11:05 p. m. Friday and Kent was released from the murder count, but was returned to the county jail and booked for escaping from custody.

Kent had insisted at trial that he was innocent. He admitted he had stopped at Murphy's home the afternoon of June 24 to make a telephone call after his car broke down. He said he had two cans of beer at Murphy's invitation but denied going into the bedroom where Murphy's body was found the next day.

Paul D. McCann, a fingerprint expert and prosecution witness, testified he had analyzed a fingerprint taken from Murphy's bed and arrived at the conclusion it was Kent's. Dr. Vassilis C. P. Maropoulos, New York City fingerprint expert, testified for the defense that there were three "very crucial" dissimilarities between a print found on the wood headboard of the victim's bed and the defendant's fingerprints.

Three Persons Injured In Area Car Accidents

Traffic accidents investigated by area State Police resulted in injuries sustained by three persons and the issuance of summonses to two motorists for violations of the Vehicle and Traffic law. Three mishaps occurred on Route 209, at 6:30 p. m. Friday cars driven by Reuben Lake, 35, of Ellenville, and Jack Launer, 50, also of Ellenville, collided on the highway about one-half mile outside Ellenville.

Trooper Douglas H. Dymond said Lake was driving north and Launer was attempting a turn into Route 209 from a driveway when the crash occurred. Launer, told Trooper Walter Hubert he failed to see the oncoming vehicle operated by Lake. Maxine Lake, 32, was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital and treated for arm and rib injuries, troopers said.

Thruway State Police investigated three traffic accidents, one involving a car and deer and another resulting in personal injuries.

Sergeant J. M. Abate said cars operated by Bernard F. Hill, 31, of 102 Astor Street, Brooklyn, and Charles Carpio, 54, of 14 Crane Street, city, were involved in a head-on collision at 10:45 p. m. Friday on the superhighway near Kingston.

Hill was traveling north and Carpio was going south in the northbound lane when the crash occurred. Carpio was cited by Trooper J. W. Gall for driving while intoxicated, according to Sergeant Abate. Hill sustained chest and possible rib injuries. A passenger in his car, Peter Noonan, 25, of Brooklyn,

Elmendorf To Back Bell; Cites Reasons

Citing Freeman reporter Charles Bermppohl's "Political Winds" column of March 21 as indicating a threat by Peter J. Savago to members of the county legislature who did not support him in his bid for the GOP assembly nod, Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf came out for H. Clark Bell today.

Elmendorf stated, "In Mr. Bermppohl's... column appearing in the (Freeman) on March 21, there appeared an item purportedly emanating from an 'informed source' and stating: 'Even if Savago loses the nomination, the legislators will be required to work with him and an informed source told The Freeman recently, 'Pete will know who supported him and who didn't support him,' for the assembly nomination."

Elmendorf declared, "I can only conclude that the 'informed source' issued this statement as a threat to any county legislator who is not supporting Mr. Savago."

"A similar statement appeared recently in one of Mr. Savago's campaign brochures and as a result of the two items, I was left with the inference that either I 'knuckled under' to the wishes and desires of a few party opportunists, or I will forfeit my right to an equal representative voice in the county legislature."

Elmendorf claimed, "I refuse to be intimidated, cajoled, or threatened in this manner for electing to support someone other than the candidate of the party opportunists."

Elmendorf said he was supporting Bell, "because I feel Mr. Bell is eminently qualified and can better represent the interests of Ulster County in the state legislature."

He further went on to state, "I was elected to the county legislature by the good people of the Towns of Hurley, Kingston, Marlinton, and Ulster to provide them with equal representation as one of their legislators. I will now assume that they must be disgraced because I won't 'knuckle under'."

Men's Day Music

The 10th annual men's day program will be held at the Paradise Soul Saving Station for Every Nation Inc., 131 Franklin Street, Sunday 4 p. m.

Seek Cause of Fire In Dutchess Store

Investigation was launched today by the Dutchess County sheriff's office and fire officials, in an effort to determine the origin of a major fire which gutted a three-story hardware and feed store in Pleasant Valley and Salt Point fire departments in command of Chief George (Mike) Cady were dispatched to the scene and on arrival found the fire spreading rapidly.

Through mutual aid, Arlington Fire Department dispatched an aerial ladder and pumper to the scene to assist local firefighters. Six 2½-inch hoses were lowered into nearby Wappinger Creek and water was pumped into the structure occupied by a hardware store and Masten's Feed Store owned by Donald and Wesley Drake.

Fire police were called out on a second alarm and they reported traffic from Route 44 (Dutchess Turnpike) for several hours.

The fire started in the northeast corner of the 30 x 75-foot structure which contained 10 large rooms and storage areas stacked with tons of feed, paints, lumber, farm equipment and machinery and other merchandise.

During the height of the fire upwards of 75 volunteer firemen from Pleasant Valley companies and Arlington battled the flames which threatened to spread to homes in the heart of the hamlet. Chief Investigator Charles Borchers and Deputy Sheriff Herbert Palmer made preliminary investigation of the fire with Chief Cady.

Navy Planes Attack Viet Chemical Plant

By ROBERT TUCKMAN Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Navy planes raided a North Vietnamese chemical plant for the first time in the war Friday and the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh came under the heaviest enemy bombardment in recent days.

Military communiques shared the spotlight with news that the more than half million U.S. troops in Vietnam will have a new commander in July when Gen. William C. Westmoreland returns to Washington to become Army chief of staff.

The chemical and fertilizer plant which came off the Pentagon's restricted list was the Hai Phong facility 21 miles northwest of Haiphong. Navy pilots flying all-weather A6 Intruders, said their bombs touched off several secondary explosions.

Air Force fighter-bombers flew within 18 miles of Red China and hit the Lang Gai railroad yard, on the main north-east rail link between China and Hanoi, for the third time this month.

Other Air Force pilots reported destroying six North Vietnamese tanks or armored personnel carriers moving in a convoy toward the Mu Gia Pass into the Laotian infiltration trail.

In all, American pilots flew 87 missions over the North Friday despite continuing monsoon weather.

At Khe Sanh, the northwest frontier outpost under siege by enemy troops since January, North Vietnamese gunners fired in some 650 rocket, mortar and artillery rounds Friday. U.S. officers said Marine casualties were light.

Otherwise, today's communiques listed only small scale skirmishes in scattered parts of South Vietnam.

Memorial

In sad and loving memory of our darling daughter, Marlene Rose Tiano on her 31st birthday and also our very dear friend, Mrs. Joan Cameron Brown, who passed away 2 years ago March 26, 1966.

"Happy birthday in heaven dear"

A smile on our face, still a heartache.

Aching with longing for you.

LOVE, MOM & DAD

Memorial

In loving memory of my dear mother, Ophelia Smith, who passed away one year ago, today, March 23, 1967.

They say time heals all sorrows, It helps us to forget, But time so far has only proven How much we miss you yet, God gave us strength to fight it, And courage to bear the blow, But what it means to lose you, No one will ever know.

DAUGHTER, MRS. OLIVE WOLFF AND FAMILY (Adv.)

Memorial

In loving memory of my wife, and our mother, Ophelia Smith, who departed from us, one year ago today, March 23, 1967.

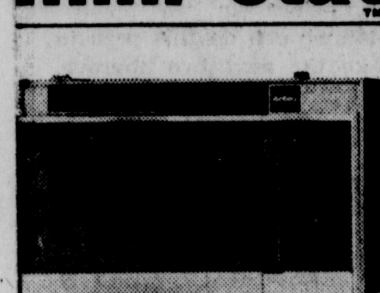

Although from life my mother's gone, My love for her still lives on, The love and guidance that she gave, Is a precious memory I'll always save, And though the Lord has seen it best, To put her suffering to a rest, So many memories time can't erase, There is no one can take her place, The things she taught I won't forget, And in my heart she liveth yet.

School Board Designates 18 Election Districts

Eighteen election districts and location of the polling places for the annual Kingston City School District election on Tuesday, May 7 have been designated by the Board of Education. Voting will take place between 12 noon and 9 p. m.

One Board member will be elected to fill a vacancy, and voters will decide a proposition which would increase the existing constitutional tax limitation from 1.75 per cent to 2 per cent on the amount to be raised by tax on real estate in the consolidated school district. Dates for registration of voters and registrars who will be in charge of that assignment will be announced.

The election districts and polling place in each are:

District 1—School 8 on Franklin Street, Dist. 2—Brigham School at 107 O'Neil Street, Dist. 3—Meagher School at 21 Wynkoop Place, Dist. 4—School 4 at 229 Delaware Avenue, Dist. 5—Mason Basch property, 173 Hasbrouck Avenue, Dist. 6—School 2 on West Chesnut Street, Dist. 7—Myron J. Michael School on Andrew Street, Dist. 8—George Washington School, 67 Wall Street, Dist. 9—Excelsior Hose Co. building, Hurley Avenue, Dist. 10—Hurley School, Dist. 11—Marasek's store, at the foot of Church Hill, Eddyville, Dist. 12—Port Ewen School, Dist. 13—Rifton School, Dist. 14—Tillson School, Dist. 15—Chambers School, Dist. 16—Lanka Katrine School, Dist. 17—Emma Wygant School, Dist. 18—Town of Kingston Town Hall, formerly the Sawkill School.

In compliance with Section 2605 of the State Education Law, the Board of Education will have published in the Kingston Daily Freeman on April 9, 16, 23 and 30 a detailed description of the areas included within each of the 18 election districts.

HRVC Attempts To Stop A-Plant

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Hudson River Valley Commission seeks to deter the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. from building a nuclear power plant at Easton, southeast of Saratoga Springs.

The commission said Friday it had notified federal and state agencies of its opposition to the proposed facility, despite a recognized need for additional power-generating plants in eastern New York.

"A definite assessment of the effect of thermal pollution—the raising of the river temperature—has not been made," the agency contended.

In addition, it argued, "there are no legal or administrative safeguards to guarantee that a reduction in power generation will be made during the low river flow."

The commission, created in 1966, has reviewing power over all projects along the 300-mile river valley but lacks regulatory authority.

It also said construction of the plant opposite the Saratoga Battlefield would be "highly destructive of the historical significance and scenic aspects of the area."

Student Charged In Draft Refusal

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A 20-year-old, former student at Cornell University is charged with failing to report for induction into the armed forces.

Steven H. Boldt of Marilla, east of Buffalo, was arrested Friday by the FBI. He appeared before a U.S. commissioner in Binghamton and was released in his own recognizance, pending further court action.

Boldt's draft board in Buffalo had ordered him to report Feb. 27.

Boldt told authorities Friday he had been in Ithaca Feb. 27 to attend a meeting of the Cornell Resistance, a group opposing the draft.

Young Woman Killed in Crash

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Elaine Petote, 20, of Rochester, was killed and two other persons were injured when three automobiles collided late Friday on a busy downtown street, police said.

Marleen Koneski, 21, of Rochester, in the same car as Miss Petote, was admitted to Strong Memorial Hospital in critical condition with multiple injuries. Cardell Nix, 44, of Rochester, in another auto, was discharged after treatment for a leg injury.

Miss Petote lived at 60 Briggs St. Miss Koneski's home is at 455 Brooks Ave and Nix resides at 79 Mellis Park.

Trespassing Arrest

Charged with criminal trespassing on property at the Fox Hill Resort Ranch in Greenfield Park, Town of Wawarsing, early today two men were arrested and arraigned before Wawarsing Town Justice Herbert Poppel.

Stephan Wardynski and Raymond O. Black, both 22 and residents of Ellenville, were arrested by Milton Triefler, proprietor of the ranch who turned the defendants over to state police. Both were held in the county jail in lieu of $100 pending a hearing at 4:30 p.m. today.

Kent Is Acquitted By Dutchess Jury

Richard S. Kent, 26-year-old Poughkeepsie mechanic, was acquitted at 1:05 p. m. Friday by a Dutchess County jury of nine men and three women of a first-degree murder charge which accused him of slaying a 74-year-old retired New York City patrolman.

Kent was immediately taken into custody by sheriff's deputies on a charge of escaping from the county jail. He and two other prisoners sawed their way to freedom last Sept. 27, but all three were apprehended in New York City within 10 hours through excellent work by New York State Police.

The Poughkeepsie man was accused in the death of Joseph L. Murphy who was found stabbed and beaten in his Salt Point home in the Town of Clinton last June 25.

Elmendorf To Back Bell; Cites Reasons

Citing Freeman reporter Charles Bermphol's "Political Winds" column of March 21 as indicating a threat by Peter J. Savago to members of the county legislature who did not support him in his bid for the GOP assembly nod, Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf came out for H. Clark Bell today.

Elmendorf stated, "In Mr. Bermphol's... column appearing in the (Freeman) on March 21, there appeared an item purportedly emanating from an 'informed source' and stating: '... Even if Savago loses the nomination, the legislators will be required to work with him and an informed source told The Freeman recently, 'Pete will know who supported him and who didn't support him,' for the assembly nomination."

Elmendorf declared, "I can only conclude that the 'informed source' issued this statement as a threat to any county legislator who is not supporting Mr. Savago."

"A similar statement appeared recently in one of Mr. Savago's campaign brochures and as a result of the two items, I was left with the inference that either I 'knuckled under' to the wishes and desires of a few party opportunists, or I will forfeit my right to an equal representative voice in the county legislature."

Elmendorf claimed, "I refuse to be intimidated, cajoled, or threatened in this manner for electing to support someone other than the candidate of the party opportunists."

Elmendorf said he was supporting Bell, "because I feel Mr. Bell is eminently qualified and can better represent the interests of Ulster County in the state legislature."

He further went on to state, "I was elected to the county legislature by the good people of the Towns of Hurley, Kirwin, Marletown, and Ulster to provide them with equal representation as one of their legislators. Must I now assume that they will be disfranchised... because I won't 'knuckle under'?"

A musical program will be presented by the new sensation of Mid-Hudson Gospel Singers of Middletown.

Seek Cause of Fire In Dutchess Store

Investigation was launched today by the Dutchess County sheriff's office and fire officials, in an effort to determine the origin of a major fire which gutted a three-story hardware and feed store in Pleasant Valley. The loss was unofficially estimated at more than $50,000.

Sheriff's Sergeant Hugh Brennan said Arthur Edmonds of 225 Smith Street, Poughkeepsie, discovered the frame building in flames and sounded an alarm at 4:10 a. m. Pleasant Valley and Salt Point fire departments in command of Chief George (Mike) Cady were dispatched to the scene and on arrival found the fire spreading rapidly.

Through mutual aid, Arlington Fire Department dispatched an aerial ladder and pumper to the scene to assist local firefighters. Six 2½-inch hoses were lowered into nearby Wappinger Creek and water was pumped into the structure occupied by a hardware store and Master's Feed Store owned by Donald and Wesley Drake.

Fire Police were called out on a second alarm and they routed traffic from Route 44 (Dutchess Turnpike) for several hours.

The fire started in the northeast corner of the 30 x 75-foot structure which contained 10 large rooms and storage areas stacked with tons of feed, paint, lumber, farm equipment and machinery and other merchandise.

During the height of the fire upwards of 75 volunteer firemen from Pleasant Valley companies and Arlington battled the flames which threatened to spread to homes in the heart of the hamlet. Chief Investigator Charles Borchers and Deputy Sheriff Herbert Palmer made preliminary investigation of the fire with Chief Cady.

At 10:15 p. m. yesterday a car driven by Douglas Cerretani, Hillside Lake, Wappingers Falls, was traveling south near mile post 57.5 when a deer leaped from the side of the superhighway and hit the right side of the vehicle. The deer was killed and later removed by the Kingston maintenance crew.

Navy Planes Attack Viet Chemical Plant

By ROBERT TUCKMAN Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes raided a North Vietnamese chemical plant for the first time in the war Friday and the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh came under the heaviest enemy bombardment in recent days.

Military communiques shared the spotlight with news that the more than half million U.S. troops in Vietnam will have a new commander in July when Gen. William C. Westmoreland returns to Washington to become Army chief of staff.

The chemical and fertilizer plant which came off the Pentagon's restricted list was the Haip Duong facility 21 miles northwest of Haiphong. Navy pilots flying all-weather A-1Hs touched off several secondary explosions.

Tell Tragic Tale Of Lonely Skunk

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "Male skunk wants to meet female skunk, object matrimony. Call 738-5254 mornings."

Such was the ad placed in the Star-Telegram personal column by Mrs. Jan Killian, who wanted to mate her skunk, Sweitz, 2. There seems to have been some misunderstanding.

A number of female callers thought the ad was a plea from a lonely bachelor with little self esteem, Mrs. Killian said. The calls, she said, were typical.

"Hello, Mrs. Killian speaking. Female voice at the other end, 'May I talk to Mr. Skunk, please?'"

"Pardon? Mr. er, ah Skunk can't talk, he's a skunk."

"That's okay, so am I."

"But he's the four-legged kind. He's an animal."

"I shall continue to support 'Oh.' Click."

"Hello, I want to meet Mr. Skunk. I always did want to meet a man who 'objected' to marriage."

Except for two persons who owned female skunks, the callers were either women with marriage on their minds or curious men, Mrs. Killian said. She's still looking for a mate for Sweitz.

Funeral will be held from the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 27 Smith Avenue, on Monday, March 25, at 10 a. m. thence to Church of the Presentation where a high Mass of requiem will be offered at 10:30 a. m. for the repose of his soul.

Air Force fighter-bombers flew within 18 miles of Red China and hit the Lang Gai railroad yard, on the main north-east rail link between China and Hanoi, for the third time this month.

Other Air Force pilots reported destroying six North Vietnamese tanks or armored personnel carriers moving in a convoy toward the Mu Gia Pass into the Laotian infiltration trail.

In all, American pilots flew 87 missions over the North Friday despite continuing monsoon weather.

At Khe Sanh, the northwest frontier outpost under siege by enemy troops since January, North Vietnamese gunners fired in some 650 rocket, mortar and artillery rounds Friday, U.S. officers said. Marine casualties were light.

Otherwise, today's communique listed only small scale skirmishes in scattered parts of South Vietnam.

Rocky and Primaries

In view of Governor Rockefeller's decision not to participate in any presidential primary, it should be noted that state primaries are capturing headlines in such size and numbers that they begin to take on, in the public mind, an importance far out of proportion to the role they actually play in the American political system. The fact is that, while they indeed do exert an influence, they by no means guarantee presidential nomination to the victor or necessarily snatch it from the vanquished.

Rockefeller, who now will speak directly to the people on the issues and offer his views on national and international problems, says that he stands ready to answer any true and meaningful call from the Republican Party to serve it and the nation. Republican moderates, however, who counted on him to represent their cause, see little chance of a draft.

Only 14 of the states (plus the District of Columbia) hold presidential primaries. The real control at Miami and Chicago will be exercised by delegates chosen in party conventions. In cold fact, Tom Dewey proved this in 1948 with an organization that functioned with ruthless efficiency; and Barry Goldwater in 1964 centered his pre-convention efforts on delegates from non-primary states, unperturbed by the blaring headlines that told of Henry Cabot Lodge's New Hampshire victory.

Further complicating the picture are the rules under which presidential primaries are held; these rules vary widely from state to state. "Favorite sons" will be named in some states, and delegates may shift their votes elsewhere after the first ballot. In other states, the elected delegates may be committed to a candidate for only one ballot; after that, they're on their own.

Wisconsin is a prime example of the varying rules that prevail in primaries. Out there, Republicans are allowed to vote for Democrat candidates, and Democrats may vote for GOP candidates. Critics of this system contend that "primaries are family fights" and outsiders should stay outside.

Primaries for statewide offices first appeared in the early 1900s, and were an effort to take control from the hands of powerful politicians and give it to the people. Plainly, they have been less than a complete success, either as regards presidents or state officers. Yet on infrequent occasions they serve a "pulse of the public" role, as in New Hampshire where Sen. Eugene McCarthy's vote proved the depth of public dissatisfaction with our Vietnam commitment. They served that role in 1944 when Wendell Willkie quit after Wisconsin; in 1948 when Oregon became Harold Stassen's Waterloo, and this year when George Romney saw what was coming for him in New Hampshire.

Primaries aren't empty exercises in voting. Neither are they as climactic as the current furor over Wisconsin, Oregon, Nebraska and California might indicate. They are proof that our political modus operandi, particularly for picking presidential candidates, has not achieved perfection, and won't until a better system is devised. And that better system isn't on the horizon.

Democrats who charged that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller spent between $5 million and $20 million for his third term election have brought in a bill for a ceiling of $700,000 on gubernatorial election spending. Such laws have not stopped violations in the past, too many subterfuges.

Gov. George Romney is back in Michigan after his brief foray in Presidential politics, and apparently much more at home. Warning that the nation faces "civil guerrilla warfare," he called for a state open housing law and stiffer riot laws.

Henry J. Taylor Says Bobby Will Outsmart Himself

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

If Bobby is running true to form he'll blow it higher than a kite. There are numerous reasons why he should not be President of the United States. God help us, but in addition to these he's so smart-smart that he's stupid. Take a look at the record.

John F. Kennedy needed the Southern votes and chose Lyndon Johnson to get them. He needed every vote and won by less than one-tenth of one per cent. Bobby opposed Lyndon Johnson for the place. Stupid.

After the Dallas horror, had Bobby simply played square with Lyndon Johnson while he stayed in the Cabinet and not knifed him in the back it was obviously to President Johnson's political advantage to make him his running mate, exactly what Bobby wanted. But on the basis of Bobby's performance Mr. Johnson couldn't trust him. Smart-smart Bobby outsmarted himself. Stupid.

When LBJ stymied Bobby's blitz for second place on the ticket Bobby ran for the Senate as a consolation prize, although six weeks earlier he denied publicly that we would do it.

LBJ won New York State by 2.67 million votes. Bobby got 2 million less. He rode into the Senate on the coattails of President Johnson. But on election night TV he thanked every teammate and all conceivable helpers—except one, Bobby never even mentioned Lyndon B. Johnson. Stupid.

Since then the only political victory Bobby Kennedy has won in New York State was a hassle about a surrogate judge in New York City. He tried to hand-pick his candidate for Governor to make his power base secure. In a midnight revolt the nominating convention repudiated Bobby and chose the man (Frank O'Connor) he tried to block. He created, again, his own anti-Bobby protest.

Newsman Jimmy Breslin, an RFK intimate, expressed the reason: "I'd heard about the ruthlessness of the man, but you have to see him coming right right at you when you cross him to believe it."

Bobby's participation in foreign affairs, beginning with the Bay of Pigs and ending with Indonesia, was utterly disastrous. And utterly stupid. He has been on all sides of the Vietnam war. His brother, not President Johnson, made the fateful, ghastly mistake of sending in the first U. S. combat troops and committing us to a land war in Southeast Asia. In Saigon, in February, 1962, backing up his brother, Bobby stated, "We are going to win the war in Vietnam. We will remain until we do win."

I think the American people understand and fully support the struggle. It amazes me the way Mr. Johnson has kept his patience about Bobby Kennedy.

Why is Bobby now so colorblind about world communism? Why did he say at the University of Chicago in February, 1966, that the United States has "wildly exaggerated the dangers of Red Chinese aggressions?" Why did he stage his self-serving junket to South Africa, no matter the incitement sure to follow there and here? Why is his pitch always left-paw? His political strategy is to make himself unbeatable from the left. He has only made it easier for George C. Wallace.

President Johnson's over-spending, accompanied by the foreseeable gold crisis, has been an obvious threat to our solvency and national security.

Instead of helping in good conscience to sound the alarm, Bobby has systematically tried to make political hay in the image of a bigger spender than LBJ. If the President proposes $1 billion for something, you can always count on Bobby to propose 10. If LBJ says 10, Bobby says 20. And so it goes, ad nauseum.

Sweeney was a good policeman who had one year to go. He was outside P.S. 24 at noon, mauling traffic, when he saw a man on a corner stab an old lady. It was more than shocking; Francis Xavier Sweeney knew that he could get in deep trouble for having seen it.

He collared the man and said: "Be quiet. You don't have to make a statement if you don't want to. You're entitled to a lawyer." The prisoner turned the body over with a touch of his shoe. "My grandma," he said, and removed his hat and held it over his head. "She refused to give me $50 for a fix."

"Fifty dollars!" Sweeney said. "Fifty . . . Ah," the man said. "You are telling me it's an overcharge. Then you admit you know something about narcotics traffic. Not just kiddie traffic. Big H for horse."

A crowd was collecting. "I'm taking you in on suspicion of homicide," Sweeney said. The man extended his hand. "Name is John Grass," he said. "Did you see me do it?" Sweeney nodded. "Then it isn't suspicion. Besides, shouldn't you get this poor old lady out of here?"

Sweeney called an ambulance. Then he brought the prisoner in to Lieutenant Delgado, who sat behind the desk at headquarters. "I don't like the way this cop drives," John Grass said. "He could kill a prisoner the way he takes the turns. I'm sitting quietly beside him and he brings me in code three." Delgado glared at Sweeney. "That," said Grass, "means a flashing red light and siren, in case you don't know." "Can I help you?" Delgado said to John Grass. The suspect glanced forgivingly at the lieutenant. "Yep," he said. "I think you can. First, get me a fix. Yeah, a fix. Call city hospital and tell them you got a prisoner who is going to become a maniac in ten minutes. If I do, you blow the case in court because I'm out of my mind."

"Get this poor boy a chair," Delgado shouted at Sweeney. The cop said there weren't any chairs. "Then get the chief's chair," the lieutenant said. Sweeney went to the inner sanctum and slid the chief to the floor. "Sorry," he said. "We have a sensitive civil rights case. Could be an Escobedo or Gideon or something."

"That's okay," the chief muttered on the floor. "See if he likes cigars. I've got two left from my birthday." John Grass was busy explaining the law to Lieutenant Delgado. "Today," he said, "you shouldn't frisk me under the search and seizure act."

"That's not fair," Sweeney said. "You still got the knife you knocked the old lady off with." Grass sighed. "Please," he said, "do not refer to my sacred grandmother as 'that old lady.' Secondly, I did not knock her off. You think so because your eyeballs tell you so. Well, I'll have an ophthalmologist on the witness stand who will swear that you have unreliable eyeballs."

"Besides, let's be honest. What's a cop's word on the witness stand? Can you stand a polygraph test, Sweeney? Can you afford one question: 'Did you ever do anything dishonest in your life?' Ah, you see what I mean."

Grass ticked it off on his fingers. "First of all, I'm a deprived child. Neglected. Rejected. Second, policemen harass me all the time. Third, my old granny insisted on using her relief check for bread. She warped me. I was standing with her minding my own business and I said: 'Dear old granny, Guess what I'm holding behind your back? And she fell against it, giving the old bag a one way ticket to eternal reward. An act of God.'

"For that, this cat picks me up." The chief glared at Sweeney. "You didn't!" he said. Francis Xavier hung his head. "That foot," said John Grass, "is itchy. Chief, would you remove the shoe. I feel first please, and scratch it? That's a good boy. You know what? I'm in a mood to take it easy with you guys."

Delgado burst into uncontrollable sobs. "It's too much to expect," he moaned. "God bless you, son," the old chief said. Sweeney tried to muster a brave smile. "I'll take you in my car," he said. Grass nodded. "Yeah, but I'm driving, Dummy."

Drew Pearson Says Communist Agitators Get Instructions From Peking

Tax Evader Convicted
On May 11, 1964, Drew Pearson reported that Britt Brown, vice president of the Wichita Eagle, and Jack Speer, its advertising manager, had been cheating the newspaper by receiving merchandise in return for newspaper advertising and that the advertising revenue did not go to the Eagle. Subsequently, Jack Speer pleaded "no contest," and on March 19, 1968, Brown was convicted in federal court for income tax evasion.

Jack Anderson says: Peking guides Red insurgents; CIA wants to help Asians stem fifth column; Thailand could become another Vietnam.

TAIPEI—U. S. intelligence now has evidence that communist agitators from the Himalayas to the South Pacific are coordinating their activities. Apparently, they receive coded instructions over Peking radio.

At the same time that the Viet Cong struck 38 cities in South Vietnam, for example, communist agitators stepped up their harassment throughout Asia.

This fifth-column activity has made counter-insurgency the No. 1 priority of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Far East. The problem was taken up recently in a regional inter-departmental meeting at Pearl Harbor, where the CIA's William E. Colby briefed representatives of the White House, State Department, Defense Department and other agencies.

The secret minute declared, in part: "Mr. Colby proposed an additional main policy objective — 'encouraging and supporting the growth of political institutions and systems which can accelerate the development of viable and popularly supported governments in the area'—which was accepted."

"He also suggested that the entry for Thailand should be rephrased to include specific mention of the problem of counter-insurgency. He mentioned that we will be facing problems in the Pacific islands within the next ten years or so, but that this is not a National Security Council-level problem yet."

In short, the CIA would like to offer more help to free Asian governments and institutions to fight communist insurrection.

CIA Rebuffed

However, at least two menaced nations, India and Burma, have refused CIA assistance. This, despite the fact that the Chinese communists have been infiltrating across the borders to stir up dissident tribesmen in the remote northern provinces of both India and Burma.

One intelligence report claims that 250 Naga tribesmen have just returned to northern India from guerrilla training in Red China.

Obviously, the Reds seem to be concentrating on Thailand. This increases the danger that Thailand could become another South Vietnam the U. S. is committed to defend.

In northern Thailand, communist infiltrators have had some success in stirring up Meo tribesmen against the government. The irony is that in Laos the CIA has been using the fierce Meo mountain men to fight against the communists.

In northeastern Thailand, roving communist bands occasionally raid a police outpost or surround a village. Usually they will lecture the villagers, convert a few village youths, and then move on. The Reds, however, seem to have had little success with the villagers, and the conscripted men often manage to sneak back to their homes.

Malaysia's hard-bitten communists, veterans of years of jungle warfare, are also operating across the border in Southern Thailand. However, close cooperation has developed between the Thai and Malaysian authorities.

In the Philippines, the Hukbs are known to be in contact with Peking. On at least one occasion, a Chinese general was smuggled ashore to direct operations. He brought a plan to assassinate President Ferdinand Marcos and South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky during their 1966 summit meeting in Manila. The Hukbs, however, never pulled it off, and the Chinese general reportedly returned to Peking.

Meanwhile, the Red Chinese appear to be more active than ever in the affairs of their neighbors.

Japanese Profiteers

The Japanese, though lukewarm in support of the Vietnamese war, are reaping enormous profits from the fighting.

The president of one Asian nation, who asked me not to quote him by name, complained that the Japanese are selling war goods to both sides.

Despite this, we have favored Japan over all other countries in placing military contracts. Most of our war-damaged vehicles, for example, are sent to Japan to be reconditioned, though they could be repaired more cheaply and quickly here in Formosa.

I checked one shipment of 240 armored personnel carriers, which were shipped from Vietnam to Japan for repairs. These same vehicles could have been repaired in Formosa for $1,700 to $1,800 less apiece. The total savings to the taxpayers on this single shipment would have been more than $400,000. Furthermore, the work would have been completed ten days earlier.

Army inspectors also report that the Japanese plants have been doing a slipshod job. After one shipment of trucks supposedly had been reconditioned by the Yokohama plant of Japan Aircraft Company, the inspectors found that 40 per cent had not been properly repaired. The rods and steering links were loose, generators noisy, brakes didn't work properly, and transmissions were overfilled.

Yet the State Department, in its back-room deliberation, has consistently championed Japan over other Asian nations. At first, the State Department resisted suggestions that some contracts to recondition Vietnam vehicles be switched from Japan to Formosa. But in the face of the economic facts, the Department has now withdrawn its opposition.

New Guidelines to Fight Discrimination in Schools

By JACK MILLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's new program to fight discrimination in Northern schools cannot force local districts to eliminate racial imbalance.

But federal officials hope it will indirectly spur states and localities to move against racial discrimination and racial imbalance on their own. And the U. S. Office of Education will provide money for those which do so.

Federal policies for the program are contained in a new set of guidelines issued earlier this week by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The guidelines for the first time set nondiscrimination policies for the whole country, not just the South.

Although federal funds may not be used directly to overcome racial imbalance as such, they may—and are used by states to reduce segregation in order to improve the quality of their educational systems.

This follows the view of U. S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II that a segregated education cannot be an excellent one.

Federal officials are encouraged because some states—notably New York and Massachusetts—have gone beyond the federal law and require their localities to take action against racial imbalance.

The new guidelines stay strictly to the matter of discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups. They focus mainly on two questions:

1. Are students in Negro schools getting their share of the money for teaching talent and facilities?

2. Are school policies, such as drawing attendance-zone maps, causing segregation? Federal investigators are bound to find some evidence of discrimination. As one official put it, "we know, for example, that there are places where Negro schools are on double shifts and white schools aren't."

Hard to Prove

But even limited violations of the Civil Rights Act will be hard to prove. Federal officials readily admit they don't have a fraction of the staff needed for complete enforcement of the law.

The director of civil rights operations for HEW, Peter Libassi, says: "What we're hoping is that local officials will seize the initiative and take action against discrimination."

He says the department is counting on "members of school boards getting up in meetings and saying, 'Look, whether or not this is a violation of the law, we've got a problem here with racial imbalance and we ought to do something about it.'"

The department will begin its compliance activities soon by sending out investigators to up to a dozen cities where discrimination is expected.

Selected cities will be of moderate size.

Federal officials have little hope for much action against racial imbalance in the largest cities. They say the concentration of Negro students is too massive, the distances from white schools too great.

Debate The Issues

Last week Gordon Liddy, Republican candidate for Congress, challenged Ham Fish, the other Republican candidate, to a debate in public. Ham Fish replied that his qualifications are evident in the "tons of brochures and material that were printed and disseminated to practically everyone" two years ago, when he last ran for office.

Two years ago I was one of the biggest Ham Fish backers in the Town of Beekman. I filled many pages of petitions for Ham Fish. He congratulated me on the great job I did.

But a lot has changed in the world in the last two years. New problems have arisen in crime, dope addiction, and war. Parents have seen their sons go off to war. Many in the past two years have sat in vigil waiting for their child's body to be sent home from Vietnam. In the last two years we have had serious dope problems in Ham Fish's home town, Millbrook. And those problems could affect any one of our children. Personally, I know many mothers who aren't sleeping nights because of the changes during the past two years.

But Ham Fish is willing to stand or fail on the positions he took two years ago. Doesn't he know things have changed? Or doesn't he care? If he can't see the changes of the past two years, how would he ever recognize the changes of the next two years if we elect him our congressman? Last year's answers won't solve this year's problems.

Or maybe Ham Fish feels his time is too important to forming in public debate, informing the people on his views and standing up to criticism on them; more important than an innocent child being exposed to the results of crime or dope addiction. More important than the time of our sons in Vietnam.

I have read up on Gordon Liddy. I like his viewpoints all the way. Gordon Liddy seems to be extremely concerned with our youth and with the problems we are facing this year. He has ideas for solving some of those problems and he is willing to debate those ideas in public. Ham Fish wants us to dig up his campaign literature of two years ago. As a mother of five, I say, "Forget 1966. Let's debate today's issues today."

Come on mothers. It's our children's future. Let's be there to hear the views of both of these men. Let's see what we can do this year to make the next two improve. Let's put in office people who will run the country, not ruin it. Let's start voting for the man who has our personal interests at heart.

We the people have the right to a debate. MRS. GRACE GUSTIN

True Saugertiesian

Editor, The Freeman: It takes great strength of character to speak out as did our Townsman John Carnright. He is a true Saugertiesian and some day these people will find out there is more to life than just money. There is loyalty to your home-town people and stores and institutions. You cannot have anything without sacrifice.

Town money belongs in the town and wherever possible spending it in town, even if you can buy cheaper elsewhere, or get more interest elsewhere. I speak as one whose family built in the Town of Saugerties in 1617 at Mt. Marion and have lived in the town in an unbroken line for all that time.

Rocky and Primaries

In view of Governor Rockefeller's decision not to participate in any presidential primary, it should be noted that state primaries are capturing headlines in such size and numbers that they begin to take on, in the public mind, an importance far out of proportion to the role they actually play in the American political system. The fact is that, while they indeed do exert an influence, they by no means guarantee presidential nomination to the victor or necessarily snatch it from the vanquished.

Rockefeller, who now will speak directly to the people on the issues and offer his views on national and international problems, says that he stands ready to answer any true and meaningful call from the Republican Party to serve it and the nation. Republican moderates, however, who counted on him to represent their cause, see little chance of a draft.

Only 14 of the states (plus the District of Columbia) hold presidential primaries. The real control at Miami and Chicago will be exercised by delegates chosen in party conventions. In cold fact, Tom Dewey proved this in 1948 with an organization that functioned with ruthless efficiency; and Barry Goldwater in 1964 centered his pre-convention efforts on delegates from non-primary states, unperturbed by the blaring headlines that told of Henry Cabot Lodge's New Hampshire victory.

Further complicating the picture are the rules under which presidential primaries are held; these rules vary widely from state to state. "Favorite sons" will be named in some states, and delegates may shift their votes elsewhere after the first ballot. In other states, the elected delegates may be committed to a candidate for only one ballot; after that, they're on their own.

Wisconsin is a prime example of the varying rules that prevail in primaries. Out there, Republicans are allowed to vote for Democrat candidates, and Democrats may vote for GOP candidates. Critics of this system contend that "primaries are family fights" and outsiders should stay outside.

Primaries for statewide offices first appeared in the early 1900s, and were an effort to take control from the hands of powerful politicians and give it to the people. Plainly, they have been less than a complete success, either as regards presidents or state officers. Yet on infrequent occasions they serve a "pulse of the public" role, as in New Hampshire where Sen. Eugene McCarthy's vote proved the depth of public dissatisfaction with our Vietnam commitment. They served that role in 1944 when Wendell Willkie quit after Wisconsin; in 1948 when Oregon became Harold Stassen's Waterloo, and this year when George Romney saw what was coming for him in New Hampshire.

Primaries aren't empty exercises in voting. Neither are they as climactic as the current furor over Wisconsin, Oregon, Nebraska and California might indicate. They are proof that our political modus operandi, particularly for picking presidential candidates, has not achieved perfection, and won't until a better system is devised. And that better system isn't on the horizon.

Democrats who charged that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller spent between $5 million and $20 million for his third term election have brought in a bill for a ceiling of $700,000 on gubernatorial election spending. Such laws have not stopped violations in the past, too many subterfuges.

Gov. George Romney is back in Michigan after his brief foray in Presidential politics, and apparently much more at home. Warning that the nation faces "civil guerrilla warfare," he called for a state open housing law and stiffer riot laws.

Henry J. Taylor Says
Bobby Will Outsmart Himself

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
If Bobby is running true to form he'll blow it higher than a kite. There are numerous reasons why he should not be President of the United States. God help us, but in addition to these he's so smart-smart that he's stupid. Take a look at the record.

John F. Kennedy needed the Southern votes and chose Lyndon Johnson to get them. He needed every vote and won by less than one-tenth of one per cent. Bobby opposed Lyndon Johnson for the place. Stupid.

After the Dallas horror, had Bobby simply played square with Lyndon Johnson while he stayed in the Cabinet and not knifed him in the back, it was obviously to President Johnson's political advantage to make him his running mate, exactly what Bobby wanted. But on the basis of Bobby's performance Mr. Johnson couldn't trust him. Smart-smart Bobby outsmarted himself. Stupid.

When LBJ stymied Bobby's blitz for second place on the ticket Bobby ran for the Senate as a consolation prize, although six weeks earlier he denied publicly that we would do it.

In northern Thailand, communist infiltrators have had some success in stirring up Meo tribesmen against the government. The irony is that in Laos the CIA has been using the fierce Meo mountain men to fight against the communists.

In northeastern Thailand, roving communist bands occasionally raid a police outpost or surround a village. Usually they will lecture the villagers, conscript a few village youths and then move on. The Reds, however, seem to have had little success with the villagers, and the conscripted men often manage to sneak back to their homes.

Malaysia's hard-bitten communists, veterans of years of jungle warfare, are also operating across the border in Southern Thailand. However, close cooperation has developed between the Thai and Malaysian authorities.

In the Philippines, the Hukbun are known to be in contact with Peking. On at least one occasion, a Chinese general was smuggled ashore to direct operations. He brought a plan to assassinate President Ferdinand Marcos and South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky during their 1966 summit meeting in Manila. The Hukbun, however, never pulled it off, and the Chinese general reportedly returned to Peking.

Meanwhile, the Red Chinese appear to be more active than ever in the affairs of their neighbors.

Japanese Profiteers

The Japanese, though lukewarm in support of the Vietnamese war, are reaping enormous profits from the fighting.

The president of one Asian nation, who asked me not to quote him by name, complained that the Japanese are selling war goods to both sides.

Despite this, we have favored Japan over all other countries in placing military contracts. Most of our war-damaged vehicles, for example, are sent to Japan to be reconditioned, though they could be repaired more cheaply and quickly here in Formosa.

I checked one shipment of 240 armored personnel carriers, which were shipped from Vietnam to Japan for repairs. These same vehicles could have been repaired in Formosa for $1,700 to $1,800 less apiece. The total savings to the taxpayers on this single shipment would have been more than $400,000. Furthermore, the work would have been completed ten days earlier.

Army inspectors also report that the Japanese plants have been doing a slipshod job. After one shipment of trucks supposedly had been reconditioned by the Yokohama plant of Japan Aircraft Company, the inspectors found that 40 per cent had not been properly repaired. The rods and steering links were loose, generators noisy, brakes didn't work properly, and transmissions were overhauled. Yet the State Department, in its back-room deliberation, has consistently championed Japan over other Asian nations. At first, the State Department resisted suggestions that some contracts to recondition Vietnam vehicles be switched from Japan to Formosa. But in the face of the economic facts, the Department has now withdrawn its opposition.

New Guidelines to Fight
Discrimination in Schools

By JACK MILLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government's new program to fight discrimination in Northern schools cannot force local districts to eliminate racial imbalance.

But federal officials hope it will indirectly spur states and localities to move against racial discrimination and racial imbalance on their own.

And the U.S. Office of Education will provide money for those which do so.

Federal policies for the program are contained in a new set of guidelines issued earlier this week by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The guidelines for the first time set nondiscrimination policies for the whole country, not just the South.

Although federal funds may not be used directly to overcome racial imbalance as such, they may—and are—used by states to reduce segregation in order to improve the quality of their educational systems.

This follows the view of U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II that a segregated education cannot be an excellent one.

Federal officials are encouraged because some states—namely New York and Massachusetts—have gone beyond the federal law and require their localities to take action against racial imbalance.

The new guidelines stay strictly to the matter of discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups. They focus mainly on two questions:

1. Are students in Negro schools getting their share of the money, teaching talent and facilities?

2. Are school policies, such as drawing attendance-zone maps, causing segregation?

Federal investigators are bound to find some evidence of discrimination. As one official put it, "We know, for example, that there are places where Negro schools are on double shifts and white schools aren't."

Hard to Prove

But even limited violations of the Civil Rights Act will be hard to prove. Federal officials readily admit they don't have a fraction of the staff needed for complete enforcement of the law.

The director of civil rights operations for HEW, Peter Libassi, says: "What we're hoping is that local officials will seize the initiative and take action against discrimination."

He says the department is counting on "members of school boards getting up in meetings and saying, 'Look, whether or not this is a violation of the law, we've got a problem here with racial imbalance and we ought to do something about it.'"

The department will begin its compliance activities soon by sending out investigators to up to a dozen cities where discrimination is expected.

Selected cities will be of moderate size. Federal officials have little hope for much action against racial imbalance in the largest cities. They say the concentration of Negro students is too massive, the distances from white schools too great.

Debate the Issues

Editor, The Freeman:
Last week Gordon Liddy, Republican candidate for Congress, challenged Ham Fish, the other Republican candidate, to a debate in public. Ham Fish replied that his qualifications are evident in the "tons of brochures and material that were printed and disseminated to practically everyone" two years ago, when he last ran for office.

Two years ago I was one of the biggest Ham Fish backers in the Town of Beekman. I filled many pages of petitions for Ham Fish. He congratulated me on the great job I did.

But a lot has changed in the world in the last two years. New problems have arisen in crime, dope addiction, and war. Parents have seen their sons go off to war. Many in the past two years have sat in vigil waiting for their child's body to be sent home from Vietnam. In the last two years we have had serious dope problems in Ham Fish's home town, Millbrook. And those problems could affect any one of our children. Personally, I know many mothers who aren't sleeping nights because of the changes during the past two years.

But Ham Fish is willing to stand or fail on the positions he took two years ago. Doesn't he know things have changed? Or doesn't he care? If he can't see the changes of the past two years, how would he ever recognize the changes of the next two years if we elect him our congressman? Last year's answers won't solve this year's problems.

Or maybe Ham Fish feels his time is too important to spend in public debate, informing the people on his views and standing up to criticism on them; more important than an innocent child being exposed to the results of crime or dope addiction. More important than the time of our sons in Vietnam. I have read up on Gordon Liddy. I like his viewpoints all the way. Gordon Liddy seems to be extremely concerned with our youth and with the problems we are facing this year. He has ideas for solving some of those problems and he is willing to debate those ideas in public. Ham Fish wants us to dig up his campaign literature of two years ago. As a mother of five, I say, "Forget 1966. Let's debate today's issues today."

Come on mothers. It's our children's future. Let's be there to hear the views of both of these men. Let's see what we can do this year to make the next two improve. Let's put in office people who will run the country, not ruin it. Let's start voting for the man who has our personal interests at heart.

We the people have the right to a debate.

Editor, The Freeman:
It takes great strength of character to speak out as did our Townsman John Carnright. He is a true Saugertiesian and some day these people will find out there is more to life than just money. There is loyalty to your home-town people and stores and institutions. You cannot have anything without sacrifice.

Town money belongs in the town and wherever possible spending it in town, even if you can buy cheaper elsewhere, or get more interest elsewhere. I speak as one whose family built in the Town of Saugerties in 1617 at Mt. Marion and have lived in the town in an unbroken line for all that time.

Moseley on Escapes: Has Nothing to Lose

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Winston Moseley, back in Attica State Prison today to continue his life sentence for murder after four days of freedom, says he would try to escape from custody again if he "got the chance."

The 33-year-old convict was returned to the prison, 30 miles east of Buffalo, Friday after his arraignment in courts here and on suburban Grand Island on seven felony charges stemming from his flight.

His short-lived freedom began Monday when he slugged his guard and escaped from Meyer Memorial Hospital here while being discharged after undergoing minor surgery.

It ended Thursday afternoon when an FBI agent confronted him in a Grand Island apartment ringed by more than 100 policemen and convinced him to surrender peacefully. He had held two women and an infant hostage at gunpoint.

Handcuffed to two detectives, Moseley met Friday with reporters outside the Erie County Jail and was asked whether he again would try to escape.

"Yes, if I had the chance," he replied. "When you are serving a life term it doesn't make much difference."

But, he noted, "Attica is a hard jail to get out of."

Moseley, accused of holding a husband and wife captive in a Buffalo home Thursday morning, denied a charge that he raped the woman.

Moseley is serving the Attica term for the fatal stabbing of Catherine "Kitty" Genovese on a Queens street in March 1964.

The case drew national attention after it was learned that 38 witnesses refused to intervene or even call police.

Their apathy, Moseley said, "was wrong."

The convict said he was thinking of seeking a new trial in the Genovese case "because of all the publicity surrounding the original trial."

Moseley said he had intended to head for Pittsburgh, Pa., where he knew some people, but instead got lost in Buffalo and wound up on Grand Island.

The charges brought against him included counts of burglary, robbery, rape, kidnapping and illegal possession of a weapon. A preliminary hearing was set for April 19.

LSD Problem

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "There is no doubt about it," says the U.S. commissioner of food and drugs, "the LSD problem is as middle class as a patio cocktail."

James L. Goddard, speaking at a University of Southern California luncheon, said affluence and ignorance have led young people to tamper with drugs.

Glass was charged with criminally selling dangerous drugs, first degree and criminal possession of dangerous drugs, first degree. He pleaded innocent before Hyde Park Justice Harold Mangold and was committed to the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bail pending a preliminary hearing on March 26.

Mrs. Glass entered a plea of not guilty. She was held in $2,000 bail.

In a second raid, Borchers said, William Henry Werle, 17, of Golden Apartments, Hyde Park, was arrested and charged with criminally selling dangerous drugs, and criminal possession of dangerous drugs, first degree.

Judge Mangold released Werle in $2,500 bail and adjourned hearing until March 26.

Jean Ribout, a French colonizer led an expedition to America in 1562 to found a Huguenot colony.

County Governments Face Major Changes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A legislative committee concerned with suburban growth proposes that the authority of county governments be increased to help them "to survive the stress of rapid urbanization."

The Joint Legislative Committee on Metropolitan and Regional Area Studies outlined Friday methods by which creation of new county governments could be simplified and their tax assessment procedures modernized.

Sen. Thomas Laverne R. Rochester, chairman, said the proposals "to be introduced in the current legislative session, reflect the committee's belief that the urban county has come of age in New York State as a government capable of deciding many issues that affect all or a large number of citizens of metropolitan areas."

The proposals include:

—Amending the Constitution's local government article to permit localities to create new combinations of agencies and to simplify the process of adopting county charters.

—Providing alternative procedures for establishing county charter commissions and for adopting or amending charters.

—Fostering a permissive program of reform in property tax assessment and amending the Constitution to authorize the legislature to provide for tax assessment by counties.

Efforts in many parts of the state to reorganize county governments have faltered because residents outside cities were reluctant to go along with changes.

Under present law, a charter change must be approved by a majority of voters in the cities and a majority outside cities in the county.

The committee proposes that approval be by a simple majority.

On taxation, the proposals call for new state aid to counties that encourage local governments in their jurisdiction to upgrade local assessment and tax procedures.

Named Church Head

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Sumpter M. Riley Jr. was appointed Friday superintendent of the Lima district of the Methodist Church, becoming the first Negro to head a Methodist district in Ohio.

Dr. Riley said his appointment "offers new opportunities in the integrated church."

He said none of the Methodist churches in the Lima district is a Negro church. He had been minister of the Cory Methodist Church in Cleveland the last 10 years.

L. Harry Brague, Gotham Editor Dies, Lived Here

NEW YORK (AP) — L. Harry Brague Jr., a senior editor and vice president of Charles Scribner's Sons, died Friday at Lenox Hill Hospital. He was 55 years old.

Before joining Scribner's in 1947 he was on the editorial staff of Dodd, Mead & Co. He lived in Manhattan but also had a home in Lomontville.

Brague was editor to many outstanding literary figures, including Ernest Hemingway, Alan Paton, Alan Villiers and Maurice DuBois.

A native of Pittsfield, Mass., Brague was graduated from Dartmouth University and served in the Army during World War II.

Survivors include his widow, Virginia; a son, Lewis, and two daughters, Sandra and Deborah, all children by an earlier marriage.

Belgian Marine Dies in Vietnam

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A young Marine, who retained his Belgian citizenship after his family came to this country 12 years ago, has been killed in Vietnam combat, his parents say.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Hershan of Buffalo said Friday their son, Lance CPL. William Hershan, 19, suffered fatal wounds from an explosive device March 15 while on a mission with the 27th Marines near Quang Nam.

Hershan entered the service a year ago and had been overseas less than a month, they said.

Surviving besides his parents are a brother and a sister. The family lives at 211 Stanton St.

County Governments Face Major Changes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A legislative committee concerned with suburban growth proposes that the authority of county governments be increased to help them "to survive the stress of rapid urbanization."

The Joint Legislative Committee on Metropolitan and Regional Area Studies outlined Friday methods by which creation of new county governments could be simplified and their tax-assessment procedures modernized.

Sen. Thomas Laverne R. Rochester, chairman, said the proposals, to be introduced in the current legislative session, "reflect the committee's belief that the urban county has come of age in New York State as a government capable of deciding many issues that affect all or a large number of citizens of metropolitan areas."

The proposals include: Amending the Constitution's local-government article to permit localities to create new combinations of agencies and to simplify the process of adopting county charters.

Providing alternative procedures for establishing county charter commissions and for adopting or amending charters.

Fostering a permissive program of reform in property tax assessment and amending the Constitution to provide for tax assessment by counties.

Efforts in many parts of the state to reorganize county governments have faltered because residents outside cities were reluctant to go along with changes.

Under present law, a charter change must be approved by a majority of voters in the cities and a majority outside cities in the county.

The committee proposes that approval be by a simple majority.

On taxation, the proposals call for new state aid to counties that encourage local governments in their jurisdiction to upgrade local assessment and tax procedures.

Named Church Head

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Sumpter M. Riley Jr. was appointed Friday superintendent of the Lima district of the Methodist Church, becoming the first Negro to head a Methodist district in Ohio.

Dr. Riley said his appointment "offers new opportunities in the integrated church." He said none of the Methodist churches in the Lima district is a Negro church. He had been minister of the Cory Methodist Church in Cleveland the last 10 years.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Hudson Valley Philharmonic On Saugerties Stage Sunday

When the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra begins the familiar strain of the William Tell Overture at the Youth Concert at Saugerties High School at 2 p.m. Sunday, youngsters and parents will be listening to, and viewing, a lively and growing orchestra with more than 75 members and an annual budget in excess of $125,000.

Two Saugerties women with extensive art backgrounds have been named as judges for the art exhibit to accompany the March 24 Youth Concert.

Named as judges were Mrs. Inge Hayes of Blue Mountain Park and Mrs. Barbara Polcano of Blue Mountain Manor.

Mrs. Hayes is widely known from her teaching in the local elementary schools. Mrs. Polcano has recently had a one-woman showing of her works in Kingston.

The two women will be called upon to judge an art exhibit of students' works based upon Modeste Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," one of two selections to be performed at the Youth Concert.

The purpose of the exhibit is to demonstrate to students the compatibility of art and music and how these arts can influence one another.

After listening to the Moussorgsky composition in their classes, pupils will draw or paint their interpretations of any of the ten pieces in the suite. The better pictures will be placed on exhibit in the high school lobby at 1:45 before the concert.

Ten pictures selected by the judges being the most appropriate for each of Moussorgsky's musical descriptions will be shown on stage during the performance.

Pictures at an Exhibition describes Moussorgsky's viewing of a memorial exhibition of 10 watercolors by Victor Harmann. Each of the 10 sketches of Moussorgsky's piano suite is a description of one of Harmann's paintings, and the connecting melody called "Promenade" describes Moussorgsky's pace of walking, sometimes fast, sometimes slow.

Fine Orchestra
Conductor Claude Monteux has gradually built the Hudson Valley Philharmonic into a fine professional orchestra.

Monteux has been the inspirational leader, as well as the physical leader, of the HVP professional musicians since 1959.

In a recent season, the HVP gave 13 concerts, 125 in-school concerts, two chorus concerts.

Something From the Boys

By POLLY CRAMER

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

More and more fathers are now helping with various little projects around the house, as we have learned from their response and contributions to Polly's Pointers. They, too, are interested in making homework and housework easier. We girls welcome them with open arms and minds.

Here's a selection from the men, from Polly's Homemaking Pointers, now issued in paperback by Berkley Publishing Co.

• "To prevent soap from dropping to the bottom of the tub when taking a shower, bore a hole through a bar of soap, put a string through the hole and hang the soap around your neck. Or, tie the string around one of the water faucet knobs in a shower stall."

• "Fellows, here is a quickie when you are in a hurry and cannot find a stay for your shirt collar. Use an opened-out paperclip. This will suffice as a temporary stay."

• "The next time you pack a suitcase for your husband place his neckties over the center page of a magazine. Close the magazine and pack it flat at the bottom of the case to prevent creased ties. I am sure he will appreciate the use of a current issue of one of his favorite magazines."

• "Paint household shut-off valves and one section of each pipeline a different color — red for hot water, green for cold water, yellow for the waste line, and so on. Keep a chart at hand keying the colors to the correct pipe lines. You will always be able to locate the one you want in an emergency."

• "Keep a plastic drinking straw around to use for an extension to your oil can spout. When a spot is hard to reach, place the straw over the spout to extend it."

• "To prevent scratching the fenders of your car when backing out of the garage, tack a section of an old tire tube on each side of the garage entrance."

• "I use empty cereal boxes for litter bags in the car. When full, I just throw the whole thing into a trash can."

• "I have a good useful tip for the hunting season. In fact, it is good for fishing trips, too. To waterproof matches, dip the heads of the matches in clear nail polish. The match will flare brighter when struck."

Homemaking advice on every thing of interest to women is offered in the 224-page, illustrated paperback, "Polly's Homemaking Pointers," now available for only 75 cents through this newspaper. To get your copy, send your name, address, Zip Code and 75 cents to Polly's Homemaking Pointers, c/o Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 4958, Dept. 124, Chicago, Ill. 60680.

Sheriff to Show Film To Democratic Club

William B. Martin, Ulster County sheriff, will present two films Tuesday, March 26, at 8 p.m. at the business meeting of Ulster County Democratic Women's Club which will be held in the YWCA on Clinton Avenue, Kingston.

Program chairman is Mrs. Florence Crosby and Mrs. Thomas Johnson will be hostess for the evening.

The films will include: "Child Molester"—Film stresses the importance of alerting children about molesters and shows how the rules of safety and good conduct can be successfully and safely taught. Not all such incidents result in murder even though the possibility exists. Such a harrowing experience usually leaves its mark on the youngster's mind. A strong story line emphasizes that most sex crimes against children can be prevented if the youngsters are taught certain basic precautions.

Attack—Increasingly, women are turning to their police department for help and guidance as assaults, muggings and purse snatchings mount on the country's streets. This movie teaches how women can counterattack against her assailant's vulnerable spots; how she can use everyday articles in her possession as disabling weapons.

Cantata Will Be Presented Sunday

The Cross of Christ, a cantata by Donald Romme, will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church as a joint effort by the choirs of the Saugerties Reformed Church and Fair Street Church. This service of worship is part of the regular Union Lenten Service offered by the Kingston Area Council of Churches. The cantata, which was composed while Mr. Romme was Minister of Music at the Old Dutch Church, is among the few "local works" to gain national acceptance. The combined choir, amounting to more than 40 voices, will be under the direction of Percy W. Gazlay II, minister of music at the Fair Street Church. The organ accompaniment will be performed by Mrs. William E. Rylance; the piano work by Howard Houghtaling, minister of music at the Saugerties Church; and the recently added tympani score by Miss Martha Eddy.

The public is invited to attend this beautiful and meaningful work which will begin promptly at 7:30. Featured soloists for the event will be Nelson Burhans, Roy Donaldson, Mrs. Betty Lindsay, Mrs. Elmore Nathan, John Rich, Harry Thompson, Clifford Van Etten.

STANLEY WITKO

Accepted at College

Stanley Witko of Dryden has been accepted for admission in September to the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Delhi. He will study hotel management technology.

Stanley plans to graduate from Dryden Central High School, Class of 1968, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Witko.

Delhi Tech, one of the State University's colleges, offers degrees in the Associate of Applied Science in Business, Agriculture, Construction, Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management. It has an extensive continuing education program on and off campus, as well as a complete summer session program for students of Delhi Tech and others who wish to attend summer school.

The college prides itself in its long tradition and academic excellence.

Easy Bed-making

You will have no trouble keeping sheets in place, and will also save yourself bed-making time by making a six-inch pocket at each end of the sheet. Slip the pocket right over the mattress and it will stay smooth. This is also a big help to children when they first begin to learn to make their own beds.

Stickney-Bergstrom Engagement Announced

MISS SUSAN R. STICKNEY
(Ramark Studios)

Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Stickney of Third Street, Wallkill, announce the engagement of their daughter, Susan Rebecca, to Paul Alfred Bergstrom of Schenectady, son of Mrs. Emily Bergstrom of Cohoes, and the late Carl A. Bergstrom.

The bride-elect attended Ulster County Community College and Board of Cooperative Educational Services Vocational School in New Paltz. She is now employed at Adoria Beauty Salon in Schenectady. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. LaMonte V. Simpkins of 137 Tinker Street, Woodstock.

Her fiancé attended Voorheesville Central Schools and Austin Beauty School, Albany. He served in the U. S. Army for three years and is now employed at Service Linen Supply Company, Schenectady.

A June 15 wedding is planned.

Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barten, married on March 7, 1943 by the Rev. John Drew at St. Mary's Church, Kingston. They celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at a surprise party given by their daughter, Miss Susan Barten, at the Capri 400 Restaurant on Saturday, March 9.

Science Congress and Photography Exhibit to Be Held at Newburgh

The 12th South Eastern New York Science Congress and Photography Exhibit will be held on Saturday, April 27, at the Newburgh Free Academy. The Congress is sponsored by the Science Teachers Association of New York State. Area industries and businesses cooperate in promoting the event and supply judging personnel. The Congress is designed to encourage interest in science, promote in-depth study and excellence in science, and provide a setting for the interchange of ideas among the area students.

The competition for awards is open to all students in grades 7-12 from any public, private or parochial school in Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Dutchess, Rockland and Putnam Counties.

Plaques, medals, ribbons and certificates of merit await those who excel in the competition. Additionally, the three senior division finalists will be eligible to enter their projects at the 17th annual New York State Science Congress at the Corning Glass Center, Corning, on May 17 and 18.

Those desiring more information should contact Paul Johnson, Congress director, Goshen High School, Goshen.

Something From the Boys

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

More and more fathers are now helping with various little projects around the house, as we have learned from their response and contributions to Polly's Pointers. They, too, are interested in making homework and housework easier. We girls welcome them with open arms and minds.

Here's a selection from the men, from Polly's Homemaking Pointers, now issued in paperback by Berkley Publishing Co.

"To prevent soap from dripping to the bottom of the tub when taking a shower, bore a hole through a bar of soap, put a string through the hole and hang the soap around your neck. Or, tie the string around one of the water faucet knobs in a shower stall."

"Fellows, here is a quickie when you are in a hurry and cannot find a stay for your shirt collar. Use an opened-out paperclip. This will suffice as a temporary stay."

"The next time you pack a suitcase for your husband place his neckties over the center page of a magazine. Close the magazine and pack it flat at the bottom of the case to prevent creased ties. I am sure he will appreciate the use of a current issue of one of his favorite magazines."

Sheriff to Show Film To Democratic Club

William B. Martin, Ulster County sheriff, will present two films Tuesday, March 26, at 8 p.m. at the business meeting of Ulster County Democratic Women's Club which will be held in the YWCA on Clinton Avenue, Kingston.

Program chairman is Mrs. Florence Crosby and Mrs. Thomas Johnson will be hostess for the evening.

The films will include: Child Molester—Film stresses the importance of alerting children about molesters and shows how the rules of safety and good conduct can be successfully and safely taught. Not all such incidents result in murder even though the possibility exists. Such a harrowing experience usually leaves its mark on the youngster's mind. A strong story line emphasizes that most sex crimes against children can be prevented if the youngsters are taught certain basic precautions.

Attack—Increasingly, women are turning to their police department for help and guidance as assaults, muggings and purse snatchings mount on the country's streets. This movie teaches how women can counterattack against her assailant's vulnerable spots; how she can use everyday articles in her possession as disabling weapons.

Cantata Will Be Presented Sunday

The Cross of Christ, a cantata by Donald Romme, will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church as a joint effort by the choir of the Saugerties Reformed Church and Fair Street Church. This service of worship is part of the regular Union Lenten Service offered by the Kingston Area Council of Churches. The cantata, which was composed while Mr. Romme was Minister of Music at the Old Dutch Church, is among the few "local works" to gain national acceptance. The combined choir, amounting to more than 40 voices, will be under the direction of Percy W. Gazlay II, minister of music at the Fair Street Church. The organ accompaniment will be performed by Mrs. William E. Rylance; the piano work by Howard Houghtaling, minister of music at the Saugerties Church; and the recently added

Stanley Witko of Dryden has been accepted for admission in September to the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Delhi. He will study hotel management technology.

Stanley plans to graduate from Dryden Central High School, Class of 1968, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Witko.

Delhi Tech, one of the State University's colleges, offers degrees in the Associate of Applied Science in Business, Agriculture, Restaurant and Institutional Management. It has an extensive continuing education program on and off campus, as well as a complete summer session program for students of Delhi Tech and others who wish to attend summer school.

The college prides itself in its long tradition and academic excellence.

Easy Bed-making

You will have no trouble keeping sheets in place, and will also save yourself bed-making time by making a six-inch pocket at each end of the sheet. Slip the pocket right over the mattress and it will stay smooth. This is also a big help to children when they first begin to learn to make their own beds.

Electronic Age Goes to School

At Study

Innovations in study habits include the super spaceage language lab devices (top) manned by Fred Stigl, student aide at Ulster County Community College library and the super privacy of the carrel (bottom), but good old fashioned bookbreaking still is the mainstay of the student world (center). Today's student, whether at Ulster's Community College, New Paltz State University College or in high school has the benefits of all worlds in acquiring knowledge. New techniques are being developed every day and most of them are being employed by area schools as a way of scholastic life. In addition to the devices shown here, UCCC and many other schools make use of television, computer and electronic concepts to get the message across to the student. Though the instructor is still the focal point for imparting knowledge, who can turn their backs on the advanced techniques readily available as teaching aids. Shades of The Brave New World. (Freeman photos by Haines.)

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Audio-visual, that latter day hyphenated word which made its way into common usage some 10 years ago has taken on a new meaning recently for a number of students in Ulster County.

That one-eyed device, which serves as purveyor of cartoons to the young on Saturday morning and lulls the older stay-up with vintage movies, has taken on the role of educator.

Televisions in the schools—all the way from elementary grades to college level courses—appears to be the up and coming thing in this computer age and is getting more and more viewers in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

The boob-tube is not the only computer oriented device to come into play as educator-in-absentee. Language labs, math labs and other individual teaching methods make extensive use of recorders and slide presentations geared for a single student. They operate at the speed of the learner and can be replayed as needed... something impossible in the one-shot classroom situation.

What's a Carrel
The carrel is not a place to keep steers and broncos but, rather serves as a scheduled study spot for the intent student. Far from being corralled, the student experiences complete privacy for devoted study with the added attraction of filmstrip viewing where applicable.

Just this week in New York, a program of complete computer training in the remedial education was announced. Introduced on the elementary level the teaching method is lauded by educator and student alike.

Least we despair for the lack of human element in all this computer contrivance which has already turned us into numbers at the bank, store, the place of employment, state and federal agencies, consider some of the advantages of these new methods employed in teaching far more than the three R's.

Fast or slow—the student can find his own pace under the new regime. He decided how fast the film should roll, when to repeat the tape recording and how many times he must view the lesson. This is impossible under the normal classroom situation with live performances.

But some students miss this personal approach or bemoan the loss of human contact in these specific situations.

Just Aides
There is a happy medium which has been employed by most experimenters in the area. Audio-visual aides are just that—aides. The teacher will always remain on the classroom scene. Without the personal contact—applause or reprimand—there is no true meaning to education and no body can be reduced to numerical equations by the computer methods being employed by local schools.

Spoonfeeding is not the aim of educators who have made use of the new world teaching assistance. The Brave New World of Huxley with tape recorders under the night-night pillow is far from the aim of the new approach. The human element must be there to encourage and enlighten the fledgling student—encourage the latent potential and enlighten the inquiring mind.

No amount of computer devices including the tiny silver screen will ever take the place of the dedicated educator who stimulates the individual student to take advantage of all the teaching material available.

It is a hand-in-hand development which should be taken for what it is worth. The one-room school and McGuffey's Reader are part of the past and if there can be a happy wedding of computer age and personal concern then who can fight it.

5 Nominees Selected for Young Leader

Five seniors from Rondout Valley High School have been nominated for inclusion in the 1968 edition of Young Leaders of America.

Cited by school personnel for outstanding achievements are Michael Denksenohn, Andrea Oleksiw, Frances Black, Michael Martin and Evelyn Clementz.

The students were nominated because they have used their talents, energy and ability for contributions to school and community.

Carnival Time Comes to RVHS

It's carnival time at Rondout Valley High School and gala plans are well underway.

The 1968 Spring Carnival, sponsored by the Student Council, has been set for Saturday, March 30. Most of the high school classes and organizations will be represented in this third annual fun night, 5:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Details of booths and activities will be announced next week. Assisting with arrangements is Christopher Westover, faculty advisor.

Magical Mystery Flop?

LEI

Just as the mini-kids have the Easter Bunny to look forward to now that slush-time is upon us, so the groovers have the Beatles' telly-flick, Magical Mystery Tour to eagerly anticipate.

Trouble is, the current crop of tiny-boppers tends to look for fleas on the holiday hopper. And all too many formerly stout Beatlemanics are awaiting Magical Mystery Tour with a look of enthusiasm usually reserved for draft cards, final examinations, and splitting hair. Often, this doesn't seem to be part of a wholesale rejection of the Beatle culture, but rather, the result of a resigned opinion that Tour is the low point of a career characterized by peaks of success.

It is surprising that so many usually independently-minded young have condemned a movie most of them haven't seen, and that won't be shown yet for a matter of weeks. Unfortunately, (it appears) Tour was shown over British telly some three months ago. Reviews could kindly be called "mixed," the mixture running from "Not the Beatles' best," to "Do those mophead freaks think that they can pawn this junk off on their fans?" Understandably, such reviews did little to raise enthusiasm for the show stateside. Bad reviews feed on other bad reviews, and the Beatles seemed to have filmed a transcontinental flop.

What Happened

How did it happen? It is just possible the Beatles were victims of their success. Their first flick, A Hard Day's Night, amazed reviewers and mature audiences with its artistic, hip aura. Perhaps that film's most entrancing quality was the artlessness of the four young stars, being themselves, unaware that they were as good as they were. Then the film was released, and the reviews read. The Beatles learned they were good. They read the reviews, too.

Since they had learned they were good, they tried to be better in Help. This time, nobody was surprised that they were good. Some were disappointed that the film wasn't better. But then H-D-N was a tough act to follow, wasn't it? Shortly, John Lennon made his solo debut in How I Won the War. The flick was quite good, but many thought its message was not well presented. Once again, many reviewers were critical—and, more important, perhaps—so were many viewers.

Really A Flop?

And now the first flop. Or is it? Financially, it isn't, it's made its million. Probably more people will see it, eventually, than any Beatle movie. The music, as we know, ranges from acceptable to, occasionally, outstanding. Nobody can judge whether the Beatles achieved their objective, for they handled the direction, production, and often even actual filming, and they alone know what effects they desired.

And the Beatles said, "We're entitled to one failure, aren't we?" Even though they followed up with a sassy wisecrack about the Queen's address, their initial reaction did more to doom Tour than all the reviews. Reviewers could be wrong, but the kids accepted the Beatles' evaluation. Did the Beatles really feel the show was a flop, or did they have been influenced by the reviewers themselves? It doesn't really matter. What does is that in four years, they had gone from being unaware of how good they were, to knowing they were not as good as they had been told.

This Is Maturing

This is called maturing. The Beatles may have overreached themselves this time, but few young men their age would have attempted such an ambitious project, and their courage is admirable. They have learned and are even now putting the lessons to work in new projects. We hope the YOUTH PAGE readers will watch the TEMPO section of The Freeman for the exact date Magical Mystery Tour will be shown. If some of us approach our TV sets with foreboding on Tour night, and come away an hour later, light-hearted, the Tour won't be a failure. The very fact that it made the scene from four minds to the home screen proves that the Tour was truly the Beatles' triumph. If not their success.

Youth In the News

Rondout Valley

Word comes to use from Rondout Valley High School that it's Junior Chess Team placed fifth among 11 teams competing recently in the Westchester Junior High Chess Championships.

Masters of the thinking man's game who competed were Steve Robinson, Michael Birk, Andrew Oleksiw, Cameron Hendrix and Mark Caulfield.

The area team was directed by Robert Carr of the RVCS math department who serves as faculty advisor.

It is not all deep thinking at Rondout Valley. Last night the senior class sponsored a Roaring Twenties dance at the school cafeteria. Modern music by the LaSabres and dated ditties by the student "flapper band" kept the place rocking through the ages. "Flapper girls" and a Charleston contest rounded out the gala entertainment.

Since January planners have been hard at work. Chairman included Alice Becker, overall arrangements; Caroline Weber, decorations; Stanley Waggar, music; Peggy Christiana, refreshments; Richard Zoehler, posters and James Krom, tickets.

Proceeds go to that worthy cause—the senior trip fund. Incidentally, kids, about those goldfish cookies and "bathtub gin" (unspiced)—no wonder the Twenties Roared.

New Paltz High

Six juniors from New Paltz High School are taking advantage of the Saturday Collegiate Program at Ulster County Community College. The course offers high school students a series of enrichment seminars, designed to stimulate intellectual interest and broaden the student's interest in a variety of fields.

Participating in the program which is taking place on eight successive Saturdays on the Stone Ridge campus are:

Van Bogert and Larry Cotton who have enrolled in the Nature of Science Seminar; Barbara Bartz, Paul Impola, Linda Stier and Marion McCloud, Urbanization in America.

A special treat for the Library Assistants Club at the Paltz school was afforded recently when guest speaker, Mrs. Robert Pyle, gave an illustrated talk about her sojourn in India. She and her husband, Dr. Pyle, were in the mystic country for 18 months while he served as educational advisor.

The Miser, a three-act comedy, which is this year's senior class offering, goes into final rehearsals this week under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Cunningham. Final costume and set adjustments are being made for the March 29 and 30 performances at the central school auditorium. Curtain time will be 8 p. m. each day.

Least we despair for the lack of human element in all this computer contrivance which has already turned us into numbers at the bank, store, the place of employment, state and federal agencies, consider some of the advantages of these new methods employed in teaching far more than the three R's.

Fast or slow—the student can find his own pace under the new regime. He decided how fast the film should roll, when to repeat the tape recording and how many times he must view the lesson. This is impossible under the normal classroom situation with live performances.

But some students miss this personal approach or bemoan the loss of human contact in these specific situations.

Just Aides

There is a happy medium which has been employed by most experimenters in the area. Audio-visual aides are just that—aides. The teacher will always remain on the classroom scene. Without the personal contact—applause or reprimand—there is no true meaning to education and no body can be reduced to numerical equations by the computer methods being employed by local schools.

Spoonfeeding is not the aim of educators who have made use of the new world teaching assistance. The Brave New World of Huxley with tape recorders under the night-night pillow is far from the aim of the new approach. The human element must be there to encourage and enlighten the fledgling student—encourage the latent potential and enlighten the inquiring mind.

No amount of computer devices including the tiny silver screen will ever take the place of the dedicated educator who stimulates the individual student to take advantage of all the teaching material available.

It is a hand-in-hand development which should be taken for what it is worth. The one-room school and McGuffey's Reader are part of the past and if there can be a happy wedding of computer age and personal concern then who can fight it.

5 Nominees Selected for Young Leader

Five seniors from Rondout Valley High School have been nominated for inclusion in the 1968 edition of Young Leaders of America.

Cited by school personnel for outstanding achievements are Michael Denksensohn, Andrea Oleksiw, Frances Black, Michael Martin and Evelyn Clementz.

The students were nominated because they have used their talents, energy and ability for contributions to school and community.

Carnival Time Comes to RVHS

It's carnival time at Rondout Valley High School and gala plans are well underway.

The 1968 Spring Carnival, sponsored by the Student Council, has been set for Saturday, March 30. Most of the high school classes and organizations will be represented in this third annual fun night, 5:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Details of booths and activities will be announced next week. Assisting with arrangements is Christopher Westover, faculty advisor.

Magical Mystery Flop?

LEI

Just as the mini-kids have the Easter Bunny to look forward to now that slush-time is upon us, so the groovers have the Beatles' telly-flick, Magical Mystery Tour to eagerly anticipate.

Trouble is, the current crop of tiny-boppers tends to look for fleas on the holiday hopper. And all too many formerly stout Beatlemanics are awaiting Magical Mystery Tour with a look of enthusiasm usually reserved for draft cards, final examinations, and splitting hair. Often, this doesn't seem to be part of a wholesale rejection of the Beatle culture, but rather, the result of a resigned opinion that Tour is the low point of a career characterized by peaks of success.

It is surprising that so many usually independently-minded young have condemned a movie most of them haven't seen, and that won't be shown yet for a matter of weeks. Unfortunately, (it appears) Tour was shown over British telly some three months ago. Reviews could kindly be called "mixed," the mixture running from "Not the Beatles' best," to "Do those mophead freaks think that they can pawn this junk off on their fans?" Understandably, such reviews did little to raise enthusiasm for the show stateside. Bad reviews feed on other bad reviews, and the Beatles seemed to have filmed a transcontinental flop.

What Happened

How did it happen? It is just possible the Beatles were victims of their success. Their first flick, A Hard Day's Night, amazed reviewers and mature audiences with its artistic, hip aura. Perhaps that film's most entrancing quality was the artlessness of the four young stars, being themselves, unaware that they were as good as they were. Then the film was released, and the reviews read. The Beatles learned they were good. They read the reviews, too.

Since they had learned they were good, they tried to be better in Help. This time, nobody was surprised that they were good. Some were disappointed that the film wasn't better. But then H-D-N was a tough act to follow, wasn't it? Shortly, John Lennon made his solo debut in How I Won the War. The flick was quite good, but many thought its message was not well presented. Once again, many reviewers were critical—and, more important, perhaps—so were many viewers.

Really A Flop?

And now the first flop. Or is it? Financially, it isn't, it's made its million. Probably more people will see it, eventually, than any Beatle movie. The music, as we know, ranges from acceptable to, occasionally, outstanding. Nobody can judge whether the Beatles achieved their objective, for they handled the direction, production, and often even actual filming, and they alone know what effects they desired.

And the Beatles said, "We're entitled to one failure, aren't we?" Even though they followed up with a sassy wisecrack about the Queen's address, their initial reaction did more to doom Tour than all the reviews. Reviews could be wrong, but the kids accepted the Beatles' evaluation. Did the Beatles really feel the show was a flop, or did had they been influenced by the reviewers themselves? It doesn't really matter. What does is that in four years, they had gone from being unaware of how good they were, to knowing they were not as good as they had been told.

This Is Maturing

This is called maturing. The Beatles may have overreached themselves this time, but few young men their age would have attempted such an ambitious project, and their courage is admirable. They have learned and are even now putting the lessons to work in new projects. We hope the YOUTH PAGE readers will watch the TEMPO section of The Freeman for the exact date Magical Mystery Tour will be shown. If some of us approach our TV sets with foreboding on Tour night, and come away an hour later, light-hearted, the Tour won't be a failure. The very fact that it made the scene from four minds to the home screen proves that the Tour was truly the Beatles' triumph. If not their success.

Youth In the News

Rondout Valley

Word comes to use from Rondout Valley High School that it's Junior Chess Team placed fifth among 11 teams competing recently in the Westchester Junior High Chess Championships.

Masters of the thinking man's game who competed were Steve Robinson, Michael Birk, Andrew Oleksiw, Cameron Hendrix and Mark Caulfield.

The area team was directed by Robert Carr of the RVCS math department who serves as faculty advisor.

It is not all deep thinking at Rondout Valley. Last night the senior class sponsored a Roaring Twenties dance at the school cafeteria. Modern music by the LaSabres and dated ditties by the student "flapper band" keep the place rocking through the ages. "Flapper girls" and a Charleston contest rounded out the gala entertainment.

Since January planners have been hard at work. Chairman included Alice Becker, overall arrangements; Caroline Weber, decorations; Stanley Wagar, music; Peggy Christiana, refreshments; Richard Zoehler, posters and James Krom, tickets.

Proceeds go to that worthy cause—the senior trip fund. Incidentally, kids, about those goldfish cookies and "bathtub gin" (unspiced)—no wonder the Twenties Roared.

New Paltz High

Six juniors from New Paltz High School are taking advantage of the Saturday Collegiate Program at Ulster County Community College. The course offers high school students a series of enrichment seminars, designed to stimulate intellectual interest and broaden the student's interest in a variety of fields.

Participating in the program which is taking place on eight successive Saturdays on the Stone Ridge campus are:

Van Bogert and Larry Cotton who have enrolled in the Nature of Science Seminar; Barbara Bartz, Paul Impola, Linda Stier and Marion McCloud, Urbanization in America.

A special treat for the Library Assistants Club at the Paltz school was afforded recently when guest speaker, Mrs. Robert Pyle, gave an illustrated talk about her sojourn in India. She and her husband, Dr. Pyle, were in the mystic country for 18 months while he served as educational advisor.

The Miser, a three-act comedy, which is this year's senior class offering, goes into final rehearsals this week under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Cunningham. Final costume and set adjustments are being made for the March 29 and 30 performances at the central school auditorium. Curtain time will be 8 p. m. each day.

Stop Hayes--Stop Houston, UCLA In, 101-69

NUMBER ONE—is what a victorious Lew Alcindor is saying and pointing out for all the world to see after UCLA's 101-69 win over Houston. The game was in the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament. It was sweet revenge for Alcindor and the UCLA Bruins, for it was Houston, on Jan. 20, that stopped UCLA's fantastic win streak and knocked UCLA out of the top spot in the nation—a spot UCLA enjoyed for the better part of two seasons. Wilt and Mullins in Key Playoff Roles

Jeff Mullins opened a new National Basketball Association season and that was bad news for the St. Louis Hawks.

"I haven't played that well against them all year," Mullins said Friday night after scoring 29 points and leading San Francisco past division champion St. Louis 111-106 in the first game of the best-of-seven Western semifinals.

"But when the playoffs begin, we figure it's a whole new season."

It was the same old hat for Wilt Chamberlain. The great center scored 37 points, grabbed 29 rebounds and handed out seven assists, sparking the defending NBA champion Philadelphia 76ers to a 118-110 victory over New York in the opening of the Eastern Division semifinals.

San Francisco plays at St. Louis again tonight and Philadelphia is at New York.

In regular season America Basketball Association action Friday night, Denver downed Dallas 110-92, New Orleans topped Houston 114-88 and Kentucky drubbed Indiana 119-106.

With the score tied 77-all after three quarters at St. Louis, Mullins poured in 13 of his points to bring the Warriors the victory. One of his field goals put San Francisco ahead to stay 94-83. Another clinched it by making the score 109-106 with about 10 seconds left.

Ribant Chased Once More, Tigers Win

Dennis Ribant's manners keep getting him into hot water in baseball's spring training exhibition season.

Ribant may have set an exhibition season record Friday when he was tossed out of a game for the second time this spring as the Detroit Tigers downed Boston 8-6.

"He threw me a couple of spitballs," Thomas said later, "and I asked the umpire to look at the ball."

Ribant tossed the ball in to be examined and it sailed in the vicinity of Thomas' skull. That's when the Boston outfielder charged the mound. "He threw the ball right at me and I didn't want him to get away with it," Ed Matthews, Detroit's first baseman, wrestled Thomas to the ground and both dugouts emptied. Tempers quickly cooled and Thomas and Ribant were ejected.

As for the game, rookie catcher Arlo Brunsberg hit two home runs and Matthews tagged one against Boston's Dave Morehead. Mike Andrews smacked a home run and two doubles for the Red Sox.

Frank Quilici walked a grand slam homer—one of three hits he collected in the game—player asked Umpire Joe O'Donnell to examine the baseball.

Two weeks ago Ribant was thumbed out for throwing spitballs and Friday he got an early shower for getting into a fist fight with Red Sox utilityman George Thomas.

In other Friday action, Minnesota pounded Cincinnati 11-1, Los Angeles nipped St. Louis 3-2, Washington slammed Pittsburgh 8-2, Atlanta trimmed the New York Mets 5-1, the Chicago Cubs bombed California 10-0, Philadelphia outlasted Oakland 9-8, San Francisco edged Cleveland 5-4 and Baltimore battered the New York Yankees 7-3.

Ribant and Thomas clashed in the sixth inning when the Boston player asked Umpire Joe O'Donnell to examine the baseball.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A sparkling "diamond and one" defense sends UCLA's Bruins after their second straight National Collegiate basketball title tonight against North Carolina.

They designed the strategy strictly for Houston's All-American Elvin Hayes and the Bruins worked it to perfection. They limited the "Big E" to 10 points in whipping the Cougars 101-69, Houston's first loss of the year after 32 straight victories, 31 this season.

North Carolina won its way into the NCAA finals with a convincing 80-66 triumph over Ohio State. Larry Miller, another All-American, paced the attack with 20 points, most for any player in the semifinals.

The Bruin-Tar Heel nationally televised finals is scheduled for 7 p. m. PST, following the 5 p. m. consolation between Houston and Ohio State.

Coach John Wooden said the special defense placed Lynn Shackelford on the 6-foot-9½ Hayes the rest of the team formed a diamond with 7-foot Lew Alcindor under the basket.

"It was designed to keep Hayes from getting the ball, and if he got it, it would be outside," Wooden explained.

When he did get it outside, Mike Lynn usually had a hand right in front of his face.

Shackelford scored 17 points, second only to the 19 each by Lynn, Alcindor and Lucius Allen as all five starting Bruins hit in double figures. Playmaker Mike Warren contributed 14.

Hayes made only three field goals and four free throws for his 10 points and the Bruins collected equally as many points on five goal-tending calls against the Houston ace.

Coach Guy Lewis of Houston commented, "No basketball team in the world could have beaten UCLA."

Alcindor grabbed 18 rebounds in a game which saw UCLA grab a commanding 53-31 half-time lead as Shackelford and Allen bombed from outside to the delight of the Los Angeles Sports Arena crowd of 15,742.

That big lead ruined the Houston game plan and the pressing defense not only throttled Hayes, who had averaged 37.7 points a game during the season, but held the Houston team to a 28.2 shooting percentage.

UCLA hit 43 out of 83 for 51.8 per cent and gained revenge for the 71-69 loss to Houston in January, which left the Cougars rated No. 1 nationally and the Bruins second.

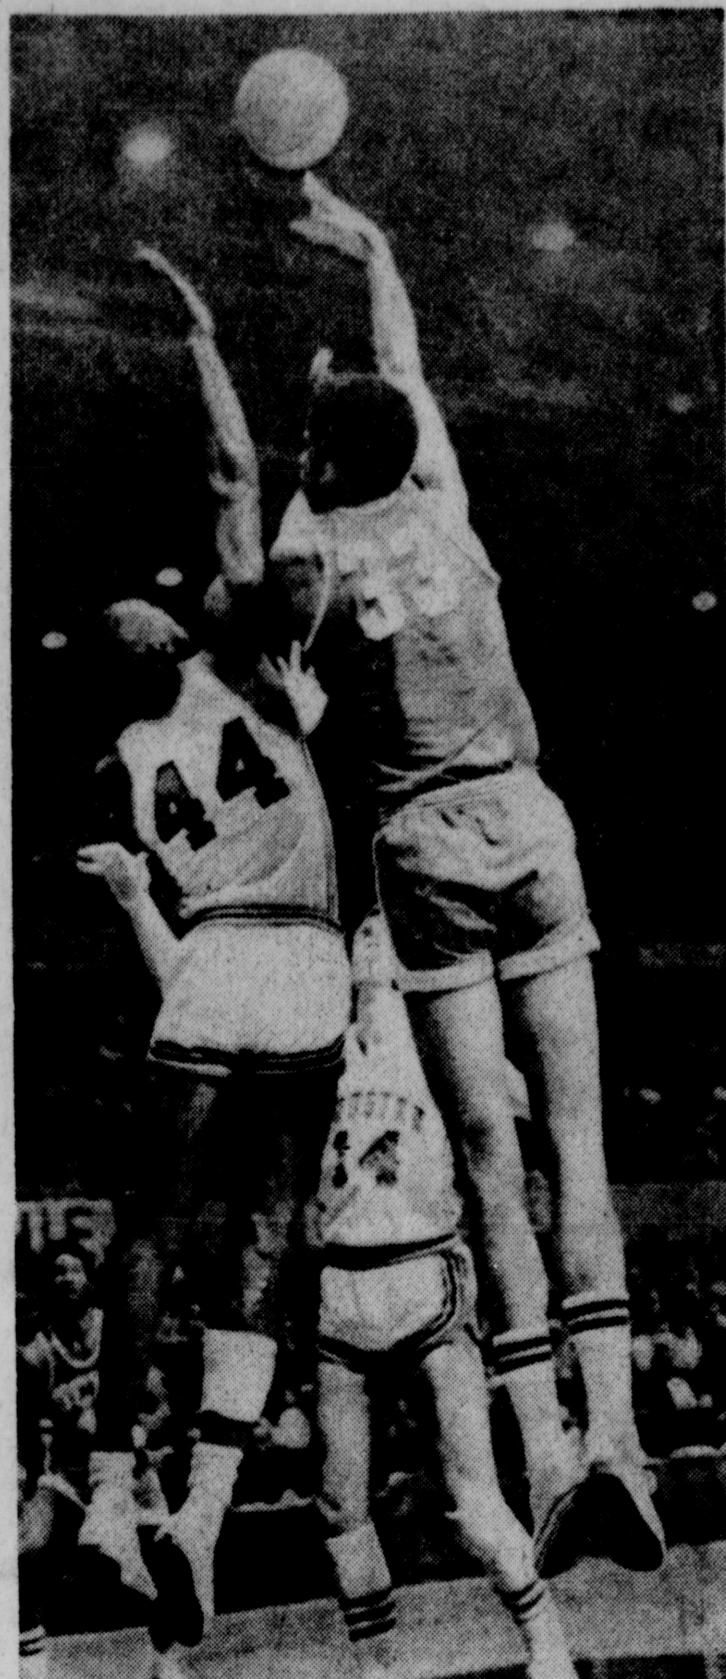

After beating Ohio State, Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina commented, "Bill Bunting played the greatest game of his career."

Bunting, a 6-9 junior, guarded Ohio State star Bill Hosket and did it well, in addition to scoring 17 points. Hosket, after scoring 14, fouled out with 9½ minutes left.

Assembly Amendment: Avoid Harness Strike?

By MIKE HELFNER
Freeman Sports Staff

An amendment to a bill before the New York State Legislature, instituted by an upstate Assemblyman, may have saved a possible strike at Monticello Raceway and other upstate harness racing plants.

The amendment, which calls for "a fair break for upstate harness racing," was added to the bill put before the Assembly by Assemblyman Albert J. Hausbeck, D-Buffalo, as the bill was introduced on the floor two days ago.

The Senate-passed version would, in attorney F. Lee Bailey's interpretation, "have discriminated against the harness racing industry."

The Senate's 56-1 passed bill allows the thoroughbred race tracks to take an additional one per cent out of the mutual handle, upping the take from the better from 15 per cent to 16 per cent. The law then stipulates that the state gets one-half of that increase, with the other half going back to horsemen in the form of purses.

For harness racing, the percentage is only an additional half per cent, making the take 15½ per cent. This extra half per cent, according to the bill, is slated strictly for expansion of race tracks (designed for improvements on Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceways) and nothing for added purses or other benefits to horsemen, the sport's backbone.

Very Specific
Hausbeck's Amendment stipulates that any harness track, with the exception of those located in Westchester (Yonkers) and Nassau Counties (Roosevelt), that has a night's handle under $500,000, will receive half the state's take (this goes up percentage-wise as the handle increases) returned to the horsemen in the way of increased purses.

Should the handle exceed $500,000, then it is the track's responsibility to increase purses—through the added revenue granted by the extra half-per cent.

Leon Greenberg, Administrative Vice President of Monticello Raceway, is helping the upstate horsemen, whom he feels are being slighted by the state's bill.

"This bill was designed to help the thoroughbred owners and downstate harness tracks. It is an intentional slap on the upstate drivers, breeders and horsemen—almost as if it was making them second class citizens. Yes, I can see the possibility of a strike here and at other upstate tracks. Perhaps this amendment—and it should—will avoid a strike," Greenberg stated.

"I think that if this amendment is not passed, the possibility of a strike is very real. Everyone would lose, the track, the state and the owners," he declared.

White-Led Jayhawks In Afternoon's NIT Finals

NEW YORK (AP)—Jo Jo White would be the last one to underestimate his shooting ability, but he's just as happy that he doesn't have to put it on display all the time.

"I know I have a good shot," says White, who directed Kansas into the final of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament against Dayton today.

"But if things are going well, I'm content to sit back and run the ball club."

A 6-foot-3 guard, White averaged 15.3 points a game during the season, a less than astronomical figure, but good enough to top the Jayhawks and lead them into their third post-season tournament in a row. They made the NCAA playoffs the last two years.

A first-semester senior, White is a cinch to have scored more than 1,000 points when his college career ends next January and is likely to be the fourth highest scorer in Kansas history.

That might not seem like much until you see that the three players ahead of him are Clyde Lovellette, Wilt Chamberlain and Walt Wesley. "I know it sounds like a phony or corny expression," says the muscular 186-pounder, "but I don't care if I score or not. All I care about them into their third post-season is winning."

Mares Win At Yonkers, Batavia

Six-year-old mares had a winning night Friday at harness tracks in New York State.

Little Kitty Clay, driven by Del Insko, edged High Basis by three-quarters of a length to capture the featured $4,500 pace at Yonkers Raceway. The mare paid $14.20 for the win.

Drambuie was third in the mile, timed at 2:04 4-5.

At Batavia, Jeannie Patt won the $2,500 handicap trot by two lengths over Floradel.

New York led 69-59 with 8:46 left in the third period at Philadelphia but, sparked by Chamberlain and Wally Jones the 76ers roared back to move ahead 82-76 at the end of the quarter. New York could not catch up.

Jones finished with 23 points. Willis Reed topped New York with 38 and Dick Barnett added 29.

As for the game, rookie catcher Arlo Brunsberg hit two home runs and Matthews tagged one against Boston's Dave Morehead. Mike Andrews smacked a home run and two doubles for the Red Sox.

Frank Quilici walked a grand slam homer—one of three the sixth inning when the Boston hits he collected in the game—player asked Umpire Joe as Minnesota whacked Cincinnati O'Donnell to examine the base ball.

Assembly Amendment: Avoid Harness Strike?

Freeman Sports Staff

An amendment to a bill before the New York State Legislature, instituted by an upstate Assemblyman, may have saved a possible strike at Monticello Raceway and other upstate harness racing plants.

The amendment, which calls for "a fair break for upstate harness racing," was added to the bill put before the Assembly by Assemblyman Albert J. Hausbeck, D-Buffalo, as the bill was introduced on the floor two days ago.

The Senate passed version would, in attorney F. Lee Bailey's interpretation, "have discriminated against the harness racing industry."

The Senate's 56-1 passed bill allows the thoroughbred race tracks to take an additional one per cent out of the mutual handle, upping the take from the better from 15 per cent to 16 per cent. The law then stipulates that the state gets one-half of that increase, with the other half going back to horsemen in the form of purses.

For harness racing, the percentage is only an additional half per cent, making the take 15½ per cent. This extra half per cent, according to the bill, is slated strictly for expansion of race tracks (designed for improvements on Yonkers and Roosevelt Raceways) and nothing for added purses or other benefits to horsemen, the sport's backbone.

Very Specific

Hausbeck's Amendment stipulates that any harness track, with the exception of those located in Westchester (Yonkers) and Nassau Counties (Roosevelt), that has a night's handle under $500,000, will receive half the state's take (this goes up percentage-wise as the handle increases) returned to the horsemen in the form of increased purses. Should the handle exceed $500,000, then it is the track's responsibility to increase purses—through the added revenue granted by the extra half-per cent.

Leon Greenberg, Administrative Vice President of Monticello Raceway, is helping the upstate horsemen, whom he feels are being slighted by the state's bill.

"This bill was designed to help the thoroughbred owners and downstate harness tracks. It is an intentional slap on the upstate drivers, breeders and horsemen—almost as if it was making them second class citizens. Yes, I can see the possibility of a strike here and at other upstate tracks. Perhaps this amendment—and it should—will avoid a strike," Greenberg stated.

"I think that if this amendment is not passed, the possibility of a strike is very real. Everyone would lose, the track, the state and the owners," he declared.

Mares Win At Yonkers, Batavia

Six-year-old mares had a winning night Friday at harness tracks in New York State.

Little Kitty Clay, driven by Del Insko, edged High Basis by three-quarters of a length to capture the featured $4,500 pace at Yonkers Raceway. The mare paid $14.20 for the win.

Drambuie was third in the mile, timed at 2:04.45. At Batavia, Jeannie Patt won the $2,500 handicap trot by two lengths over Floradel.

White-Led Jayhawks In Afternoon's NIT Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Jo Jo White would be the last one to underestimate his shooting ability, but he's just as happy that he doesn't have to put it on display all the time.

"I know I have a good shot," says White, who directed Kansas into the final of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament against Dayton today. "But if things are going well, I'm content to sit back and run the ball club."

A 6-foot-3 guard, White averaged 15.8 points a game during the season, a less than astronomical figure, but good enough to top the Jayhawks and lead them into their third post-season game.

White would be the last one to underestimate his shooting ability, but he's just as happy that he doesn't have to put it on display all the time.

A first-semester senior, White is a cinch to have scored more than 1,000 points when his college career ends next January and is likely to be the fourth highest scorer in Kansas history.

That might not seem like much until you see that the three players ahead of him are Clyde Lovellette, Wilt Chamberlain and Walt Wesley. "I know it sounds like aphony or corny expression," says the muscular 186-pounder, "but I don't care if I score or not. All I care about them into their third post-season game."

Community Chest

An early start toward laying the groundwork for the upcoming 1969 Ulster County Community Chest Drive to aid the 13 agencies to whom the chest benefits has been made. Campaign chairman, William Pearson, shown at right in the top left photo, is pictured with his associate chairman, Richard Rochford, going over the plans prior to selection of campaign workers. The three men shown in the other photo at the left are to serve as division heads. They include, left, Wilbur Peters; standing, Don MacCollam and right, Robert Brown. Four additional men named by Pearson to head divisions are pictured at the right. Seated left is Nat Aaron and Thomas Heneberry. Standing rear are Paul Delisio and Dr. Fred Holcomb. Some division heads will lead workers in certain geographical areas, while others will be in charge of raising funds from among various career groups within the community. Len Cane, pointing to the chart, will work in the public relations area and Ray Morse, who stands with him is associated with the education and training aspects of the campaign. As the chart indicates, the associate chairman, Rochford, will be in charge of the pace-maker division which includes soliciting pledges in corporate, banking and leadership circles. Roy Stoothoff, an active worker in last year's campaign, will head the Industrial Division which deals with corporate, employe and trade areas. Last year's efforts raised slightly more than the $320,000 goal set last spring. The amount to be raised in the upcoming drive has not yet been designated. It will be the work of the allocations committee to study, inquire and investigate the amount of assistance the various agencies need. Pearson is expected to name an official date for the start of the fall campaign. (Freeman photos by Kruh)

His multi-millions and other blandishments notwithstanding, Sonny Werblin, owner of the New York Jets, has not been able to induce Jack E. Turk of Kingston to part with his license plates.

The plates, of course, spell out JET and Mr. Werblin is Mr. Jet in New York state.

A mundane offer like a set of Jets box seats in perpetuity only draws a sneer from the Kingston sportsman, who sounds very much like a good Giant fan.

MICKEY SCOTT, the former Newburgh Academy pitching whiz, looms large in future pitching plans of the New York Yankees.

Yankee brass thinks he is a pitcher to watch after the young southpaw gave up only one scratch hit in a five-inning stint against the Washington scrubs at Fort Lauderdale.

There is an interesting story connected with the 20-year-old Newburgh lad. He was born in Weimar, Germany while his father was stationed there with the Army. His mother, a German war bride, brought him to the United States to rejoin his father when he was eight months old and the family settled in Newburgh.

Scott broke into organized baseball in 1966, compiling a 15-5 record and led the league with 190 strikeouts. He was in military service last season and did not pitch.

Scott was selected by the Yankees in the free agent draft when he graduated from Newburgh Academy in June of 1965. He was 3-2 at Sarasota.

THE MID-HUDSON AREA now has three players fighting for major league recognition on the Florida circuit—Scott, Mike Ferraro of the Yankees and Billy Short, another Newburgher trying to hang on with the New York Mets.

Short, incidentally, is claimed by both Port Ewen and Newburgh. His dad, Alanson Short, was a prominent basketball star in his youth and a member of the famed Spinnys Five of Port Ewen.

Scott figures to be farmed out to Triple A ball, but Short and Ferraro still have that good shot at big league mealy checks.

YANKEE BASEBALL FANS who worshipped Mel Allen before the Madison avenue crowd took over are happy that Allen has latched on with the Cleveland Indians. His familiar "How about that!" has been missed . . . In this observer's opinion Allen and Red Barber were the two best baseball announcers of all time.

Barber's peremptory dismissal by the Mike Burke clan left the Old Redhead somewhat embittered. An interesting note in the news recently: Barber was supposed to be guest on the Today show with Joe Garagiola, ex-stadium mike wit, but Red's forthcoming explosive book on the Yankee broadcasting situation has some uncharitable remarks about Mr. Garagiola.

Ergo, Mr. Barber's appearance on Today was summarily cancelled!

New Sport Group Meets Tuesday

Rondout Pool, Golf and Tennis Association has scheduled a kickoff membership meeting March 26 at 8 p. m. at the Rondout Valley Central High School.

The non-profit corporation has announced plans to build a sports complex that would include facilities for golf, tennis, swimming, a clubhouse, sauna baths, lounge, restaurant and a variety of related summer and winter activities.

The complex will be located in the Town of Rochester approximately three miles south of Marlletown. The 140-acre tract of land is located on Route 209 and Whitfield Road. An option on the property was obtained from Howard Anderson of Accord.

Although designed primarily to serve the residents of the Rondout Valley, memberships from the surrounding area including Kingston are welcome. Initiation fees for chapter members will be $100, family memberships, $200, and individual membership, $150.

The location is described by golf course experts as beautiful and readily accessible. The clubhouse will be constructed on a knoll with an unrestricted view of the majestic Catskill and Shawangunk mountains. Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

Mayone Blasts 673 High Series

Ralph Mayone blasted out a 673 high series to lead the Thursday Men's Keglers. He rapped a strong 247 in the first game, then notched a 235 in the middle set. A 191 closed out the triple.

Rich Winnie also posted a 600 tally with a 627 off games of 209 and 228.

Other qualifiers were Wally Peters 214-582; Ed Haines 212-570; Jeff Zindell 206-554; Bubbles Whitaker 206-545.

Hockey Kings in Battle for First

The Los Angeles Kings still hope to rule the National Hockey League's West Division.

The expansionist Kings moved within two points of first place Philadelphia Friday night, defeating St. Louis 6-1 in the only National Hockey League game played.

Cowboy Bill Flett snapped a 1-1 tie with a second period goal and then Ted Irvine and Ed Joyal clicked 14 seconds apart, breaking it open in the third period.

The Kings have played 70 games, one more than the idle Philadelphia. The Flyers have 71 points and Los Angeles 69.

Miss Greene was top seeded for the women's slalom today while Jean-Claude Killy of France was favored in the men's slalom.

Nenning flashed through the two-mile men's downhill in 2:02.81 Friday, ahead of Killy, timed in 2:03.16. Austrian Karl Schranz was third in 2:03.36.

Olga Pall of Austria was third in 1:46.71.

It was the fourth straight victory for the 24-year old Canadian girl, who swept the downhill, slalom and giant slalom in World's Cup competition last week at Aspen, Colo.

Hockey Kings in Battle for First

The Los Angeles Kings still hope to rule the National Hockey League's West Division.

The expansionist Kings moved within two points of first place Philadelphia Friday night, defeating St. Louis 6-1 in the only National Hockey League game played.

Cowboy Bill Flett snapped a 1-1 tie with a second period goal and then Ted Irvine and Ed Joyal clicked 14 seconds apart, breaking it open in the third period.

The Kings have played 70 games, one more than the idle Philadelphia. The Flyers have 71 points and Los Angeles 69.

CASHIERS

EXPERIENCED NIGHT PERSONNEL GOOD STARTING SALARY. FRINGE BENEFITS. OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCEMENT. CALL MR. BEISSEL,

Dear Abby
Thinks She's a Friend

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for many years and I agree with you on almost everything, but there is one point on which I think you are wrong.

You always take the position that if a man cheats on his wife, the wife's friends should NOT tell her. Well, in my experience, I have had THREE very good friends whose husbands were cheating on them. Everyone in town knew it, except the wives who were the laughing stock of the community, until I did the friendly thing and told them.

All three thanked me for telling them. If my husband ever cheated on me, I would certainly want my friends to tell me about it.

DEAR REALISTIC: Don't worry. They will.

DEAR ABBY: I have a five-year-old daughter I'll call Sally. My Neighbor has a five-year-old daughter I'll call Patty. Well, we took our daughters to the doctor for their shots. First my neighbor took Patty in, and she screamed and howled like the doctor was cutting her arm off, so Patty's mother said, "I won't let that mean old doctor hurt you. If you stop crying I'll buy you a new doll on the way home." So Patty turned off the tears like you would turn off a faucet.

When it was my daughter's turn for her shot I took her in and she started yelling and carrying on just like Patty did. I said, "Wait a minute, Doctor." Then I took Sally and tore up her little bottom. Then I said, "You let the doctor give you the shot so you won't get sick and die, and I don't want to see any more scenes." After that she behaved herself and didn't shed a tear.

When we got home, Sally said, "Mamma, don't you love me?" And I said, "Sure I do, with all my heart." And then she said, "How come you didn't get me a doll like Patty?"

Abby, should I have gotten my little girl a doll, too?

Quick Quiz

Q—When is the Chinese New Year celebrated?

A—Traditionally it is celebrated on the day of the first moon, with the explosion of enough firecrackers to scare off all demons for the rest of the year.

Q—Which was the last war in which the United States invaded Canada?

A—The war of 1812. In 1813, York (now Toronto), the capital of Upper Canada, was captured and held by U. S. troops for a short time.

Q—Which is the largest pyramid in the world?

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars —

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 24, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accents on gracious entertaining—be with congenial persons. Avoid those who sing song of gloom. Your spirits need lifting. Think of yourself—then others will also enjoy themselves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get together with those who mean the most to you. Discuss ambitions, professional plans. Make clear your intentions with regard to responsibility. Get activities in proper perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have extra time to study, leisure, future plans. If no extra time—make time. Necessary to know where the future is taking you. Study special newspaper features.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Consult one with experience where finances, business ventures are concerned. Your feelings run deep—you tend to be emotional. But today make an effort to permit logic to have a say.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study aims. Find out what you need, what can be discarded. Streamline operations. Get rid of deadwood. You are aided by mate or partner. You help yourself only if willing to face facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Individual you associated with attempts to communicate. Barrier may be actual distance or emotional shell. Find out which—then take steps to clear the way. Many benefits at stake.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much emphasis on critical faculty. Means you can discern what is to be kept, discarded. Break from routine into a more creative mold. Oppose person who reveres tradition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Opposite sex plays prominent role. You can find out who means most to you. Day when essentials come to fore. Superficial attitudes do not suffice. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Realize there are alternatives to journey or expensive call. Discuss various methods with one close to you. Preserve your prestige. Stick to principles without being arrogant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Good day for discussions which involve buying, selling. Very applicable to land, real estate. Deal with the solid, not the flimsy. Message crystal clear by tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You discover surprise allies. Those you feared turn out to be friendly. Many you took for granted may cause you to doubt. Your ideas, plans today are subject to revision.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be quiet within. Answers to problems are forthcoming if you absorb spiritual counsel. Participate in special club or church activity. Sincerity is great ally today.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural designer, you may also possess unusual speaking or singing voice. Domestic adjustment is on the horizon.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for AQUARIUS, PISCES, ARIES. Special word to LEO: study aims, goals. Find out what opposition is thinking.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 25, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): After morning hours you may feel slightly let down as work routine proceeds. Key is to establish rapport with associates who share interests. Find out about club, group, organization.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): After a slow start you find that contacts begin paying off. Friendly gestures from others send morale soaring. Plan— influence people. You can plant roots of success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress original approach. People in authority want to hear your ideas. Also, get something on paper, even if only a bare outline. Express yourself in an individual manner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on hunch. Your ideas of trends, cycles pay dividends today. You can get finger on pulse of public. Do so. Exude confidence. Read and write. Communicate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study investment possibilities. Be willing to expand base of operations. Opposition experienced early today amounts to nothing. You overcome obstacles. Accept challenge. You win.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check details. Individual who advocates fast action may not have your best interest at heart. Know this—respond accordingly. Not wise to delegate duties today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Distant individual makes known private financial situation. Your prestige rises if you are wise in utilization of information. Keep communication lines open, clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love and romance are highlighted. If single, could be a most exciting day. If married, you rediscover loved one. Children require attention. Listen to problems with an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Key to success today is perceptiveness. Ideas are plentiful. But you must select the best. Choose quality over quantity. Neighbor is gossipy. Stick to fact, not rumor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get ahead today through willingness to experiment. Don't feel there is only one method. Utilize alternatives. Be versatile. Exhibit sense of humor. Short journey may be necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish what you start—then look to future. There are opportunities for success. But today you must take the initiative. Enhance income potential.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high. Circumstances turn in your favor. Make your own breaks, opportunities. Study AQUARIUS message. Find out the why of events. Be analytical. Answer is available.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, emotional, sensitive to thoughts and moods of others. Break in partnership or close association is indicated, but this could work in your favor.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for PISCES, ARIES. Special word to VIRGO: find out what the competition is planning. Do this through discreet inquiry.

Bridge
South Should Be Declarer

By Oswald and James Jacoby

There is little problem with the play of today's hand. If South becomes declarer at three no-trump he is going to have no trouble making his contract and probably will wind up with an overtrick.

If North becomes declarer at the same contract things won't be so pleasant for declarer. A spade lead by East will set up West's spades immediately and North will never make more than eight tricks. He won't even make that many if he doesn't take four diamonds and three clubs right away.

North might be able to make five clubs. He does this by winning the expected spade opening, cashing South's king of clubs and running off four diamonds in order to discard his last spade, then he ruffs a spade with one of South's little trumps and plays the king of hearts. West will be in but won't be able to lead a trump. This will give North a chance to lead his spade. East can ruff then or take his trump trick later.

This club play is complicated enough so that when the hand was played in a tournament no one made more than 10 tricks at clubs. Some club declarers showed a profit because they had stopped short of game.

The good scores went to the South players who got to three no-trump. The bidding in the box shows how most of them got there and is worthy of comment.

North opened one diamond so as to reserve two clubs as a rebid. South's jump to three diamonds was normal enough and then North came up with the key bid. His three spade call was all-purpose. If South was thinking of a slam the bid would show first round spade control. If South was heading for game only the three spade bid would show a spade stopper.

The latter was the case and South was able to bid three no-trump on the strength of his partial spade stopper which came of full value because West was on lead.

Dear Abby
Thinks She's a Friend

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for many years and I agree with you on almost everything, but there is one point on which I think you are wrong.

You always take the position that if a man cheats on his wife, the wife's friends should NOT tell her. Well, in my experience, I have had THREE very good friends whose husbands were cheating on them. Everyone in town knew it, except the wives who were the laughing stock of the community, until I did the friendly thing and told them.

All three thanked me for telling them. If my husband ever cheated on me, I would certainly want my friends to tell me about it.

Bell Tolls for Phone Hour

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

The bell has tolled for the long-running telephone hour. In a major broadcasting shift, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said it will give up its series of musical specials next season.

Instead, it will sponsor on NBC four documentaries on the urban crisis and three entertainment specials.

Returning to Radio

Also next season, Bell will return to radio, from whence it began in 1940, to sponsor a half-hour weekly series of highlights from past telephone hours.

Bell switched to television in 1959 and obtained a satisfactory audience until two years ago when it was pitted against movies and rang up too many wrong numbers in the ratings.

The urban documentary series will be produced by Fred Freed, head of the NBC news investigative reporting unit. Consultants for the project will be John W. Gardner, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and now head of the Urban Coalition, an anti-poverty group, and Prof. Daniel

P. Moynihan, director of the MIT-Harvard joint center for urban studies.

William F. McAndrew, president of NBC news, said the series “will deal with what we have to do if our cities are to survive and thrive.”

The National Broadcasting Co., meanwhile, has announced a series of five original dramas on contemporary themes for next season to be sponsored by Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

Prudential’s On Stage

The series will be called “Prudential’s On Stage.” The initial production set for early fall will be a 30-minute “dramatic special” with Sir Laurence Olivier as host and narrator and starring Michael Caine, Sean Connery and Paul Scofield.

The producer of the premiere will be Associated Television Ltd. of London but no details were available about the script or form of the show.

Alvin Cooperman, vice president of special programs for NBC-TV, will be creative supervisor for the series, three shows will be 30 minutes, the other two will be one hour each.

He said the series may include comedies as well as serious dramas, as long as they have contemporary themes.

Don Durgin, president of NBC-TV, said he hoped the series “will provide significant insight into the human condition.” He said the “best writers and performers” would be sought for the series.

In its emphasis on contemporary issues, the NBC concept resembles that of the CBS Playhouse series.

Mr. King—I’ve felt a lot better. My right leg is giving me much misery. It’s pretty stiff and aching something fierce.

Young Doctor Lee—Well, I am sure that’s just old age.

Mr. King—Don’t believe so. My left leg’s exactly the same age and it don’t bother me at all.

Shriver Didn't Plan To Assist Kennedy

BY TOM SEPPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver, ambassador-designate to France, apparently never planned to help his brother-in-law, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

Shriver, director of the federal antipoverty program, was President Johnson's selection to be the Paris envoy several weeks ago. Kennedy announced a week ago he would seek his party's nomination.

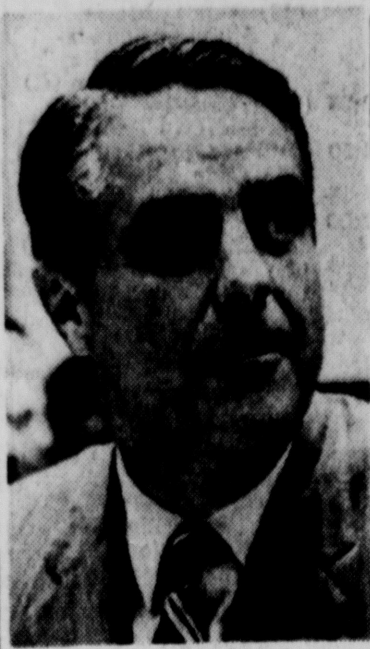

Needs Senate Vote

Johnson announced Shriver's nomination Friday. It is subject to Senate confirmation.

"The appointment has been a long time in the making," a close associate of Shriver said. "All the negotiations took place before Sen. Kennedy announced he would run."

He said Shriver believed his prior agreement to take the Paris post "is a matter of such concern between the two governments that it takes precedent over what an individual feels he would want to or could do."

Shriver, whom an aide says speaks French well, would replace Charles E. Bohlen in Paris during a time when U.S. relations with its oldest ally are at an unprecedented low. Bohlen is now undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Johnson's announcement of Shriver's nomination came several hours after it was disclosed in Paris that the French government had approved of the choice.

Bertrand M. Harding, a native of Fort Worth, Texas, and deputy director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, will take over the antipoverty program until Johnson makes a final decision on a new director.

Sources in the OEO said they expected Harding to get the job although other names have been rumored in recent months, including Joseph Califano, a White House aide.

Johnson told newsmen Shriver had not asked to be relieved as director of the OEO but had suggested many months ago he would be interested in a foreign service position.

Johnson said he told Shriver of two opportunities to go abroad and the antipoverty director chose Paris. It was understood the other post open was ambassador to Spain.

A source said Shriver, after five years with the Peace Corps and four years with OEO—for a time he was doing both jobs at once—accepted this assignment with the hope of doing something for peace. He feels tranquility and peace are the two most important issues facing the world.

JFK Appointment

Shriver, 52, came into the federal government with President John F. Kennedy in 1961. He organized the Peace Corps and developed it into one of the outstanding monuments to the Kennedy administration.

Johnson named him to direct the antipoverty program at its inception in 1964. Shriver has been loyal to Johnson, even while the news-media reported a growing feud between the President and Robert Kennedy.

When asked earlier this week in Spain if he would help Kennedy seek the Democratic presidential nomination, Shriver replied he had not been asked. A Kennedy source said Shriver's name had not been mentioned among those who were to work for the New York senator.

POINTING TO FUTURE—Alexander Aldrich, executive director of the Hudson River Valley Commission, makes a point with Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Board of Legislature, at yesterday's conference on the future of the river at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Westy to Leave Vietnam Without a Sign of Victory

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, on-the-spot architect of the swelling U.S. military effort in Vietnam, will leave the war without any sign of the allied victory he hoped would crown his military career.

Announcing Westmoreland's transfer from the Vietnam command to succeed Army Chief of Staff Gen. Howard K. Johnson in July, President Johnson said Friday that strategy and tactics were not at issue.

But in military circles it has long been rumored that a change of commanders would also mean a change in tactics. Westmoreland's basic approach has been to try to drain the enemy's strength to the point where he would give up. He called it a war of attrition.

Same Situation

When Westmoreland took over the U.S. Command here from Gen. Paul D. Harkins July 1, 1964, the situation was in some ways about the same as today. Although the number of U.S. troops has swelled from 16,500 then to more than 510,000 now, the enemy has roughly matched the allied buildup proportionately.

Official predictions of sizable allied victories in the opening weeks of 1968 were rudely shattered by the hammer blows of the enemy's Tet lunar new year offensive against 35 populated centers including Saigon. Supposedly the cities were the safest havens in the country. Westmoreland and the allied command are still assessing the damage to their military posture.

Three years after the first commitment of U.S. ground troops to Vietnam, the enemy is stronger, better armed and, at least temporarily, in control of battlefield initiative.

Neither the U.S. Command nor Washington envisioned Hanoi's willingness to commit more and more divisions to the fight for the South, a senior military officer once said.

The four-star general, 54 next Tuesday, who has not had exceptional rapport with his own troops, has also been faulted for failing to impress his views on Saigon's generals. The generals are often more politically motivated than dedicated to military strategy. Associates say Westmoreland has made no attempt to learn the Vietnamese language.

Hard Worker

He pushed his staff through a work week of at least 60 hours and generally worked longer himself. He did not smoke, seldom drank and kept himself in top physical shape with pushups and other calisthenics before breakfast each day. For diversion he played a little tennis and golf and saw an occasional movie.

"This is a different kind of war than we have ever had to fight before," he told his troops when assuming command in 1964. "There is no front and no rear. There are no battle lines. The enemy is to the front, to the rear, to the right and to the left."

Wanted More Troops

Westmoreland, who was raised in Spartanburg, S.C., went to West Point in 1932 and became captain of cadets his final year at the academy. The tall, lean officer rose swiftly through the command structure and made full colonel in 1944 at age 30.

GEN. WESTMORELAND

He commanded units in North Africa, Sicily, France and Germany during World War II and in Korea he led a paratroop regiment. At 42 he became the youngest major general in the Army.

In Vietnam the 6-foot, 180-pound general has often come off as dry and unassuming when mixing with his troops. He once told a victorious 1st Infantry battalion that the big Viet Cong death toll they had rolled up could be attributed to the training and intelligence of their officers and to superior firepower. He did not mention the courage and fighting spirit of the troops.

Westmoreland has been blunt with his staff and field commands, some of whom have been dressed down in front of their fellow officers for lack of initiative or for making mistakes.

When the general arrived in Vietnam his task was to straighten out the South Vietnamese army. The American commitment then was limited to an advisory role. But a string of Viet Cong wins in the next eight months led Westmoreland to cable Washington that only a large number of American ground troops could head off a Communist victory.

As more U.S. troops flowed in, the morale and fighting spirit of the Vietnamese army dwindled, and U.S. units quickly assumed the major role in the war by default.

In the beginning Westmoreland had a blank check for troops, installations and equipment, an aide said. This ended in 1965 when the general asked for between 100,000 and 200,000 troops. He got 55,000. In February he asked for 200,000, and Washington reports indicate only 35,000 will be approved.

Record Spring Snow Hits Dixie

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A record spring snowfall of up to 16 inches covered the central South Friday, stranding motorists, causing deaths and closing businesses.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol said wrecker crews worked overnight to assist stranded motorists in northern, middle and west Tennessee. Numerous roads were impassable.

The U.S. Weather Bureau blamed the unusually heavy accumulations on the slow eastward movement of the storm, which began in this area early Friday.

The forecaster said cold temperatures met "what would normally be heavy rain."

Particularly hard hit were west and middle Tennessee, western Kentucky and northern Mississippi. In all, 15 states from Louisiana to Michigan were affected.

Warnings Issued

The total snowfall here was 16.1 inches, second heaviest since weather records began nearly 100 years ago. The St. Patrick's Day snow of 1892 totaled 18 inches.

Elsewhere, there were 12 inches at Louisville, Ky.; 12 inches at Clarksville and Oxford, Miss.; 13 inches at Dyersburg and Jackson, Tenn.; 12 inches at Hopkinsville, Ky.; and 8 inches at Nashville.

Five deaths in Kentucky and three in Tennessee were attributed to slippery road conditions.

At Dyersburg, the roof of a furniture warehouse collapsed under the weight of snow, and police here reported that roofs of several carports and garages fell.

Most downtown Memphis stores closed Friday and suburban businesses shut their doors early because of a lack of customers. Some plants halted manufacturing operations and absenteeism was high at other industries.

As the storm moved eastward Friday, the temperature dropped 26 degrees in an hour at Knoxville, Tenn.—from 72 at 3 p.m. to 46 at 4 p.m.

Travelers' warnings also were issued for northern Alabama where the snowfall amounted to as much as four inches. There were no significant accumulations south of Birmingham.

Strong winds and thunderstorms swept most of Georgia and southern Alabama, downing power lines, damaging roofs and smashing windows in many areas. One person was injured when his house trailer was blown off its foundation in Buchanan, Ga.

The massive storm dumped heavy snow across western Ohio late Friday and was centered in lower Michigan early today. The storm's influence was felt all the way to the Eastern Seaboard and up and down the coast in the form of freezing rain, thunderstorms, fog and drizzle.

East of the belt of snow and ice, thunderstorms rumbled through the night from Florida to the Carolinas. Fog and drizzle were widespread northward into New England.

Wintry temperatures stung the plains, ranging down to 9 above zero at North Platte, Neb., before dawn. Clear skies covered much of the western half of the country, however.

Wednesday night's Common Council was a fine example of government by default or, if you can't pass it, bag it.

We're referring to the Hess Apartment issue which was supposed to be a lead pipe cinch for approval. There were only two votes against it, Bob Schantz and John Machione, the powers that be, figured, and they only needed ten. No Sweat. Right? Hardly.

The sweat started right away. Joe Epstein called in sick and John Naccarato was late, having had trouble finding a bartender to fill in for him at his tavern. The vote looked like 9-2 but then Naccarato came in and they were safe. Not quite.

Someone stopped at the press table during the recess and said Joe Conlin wasn't going to vote for it. Joe affirmed this, saying he still had plenty of questions and he wanted them answered.

Then Gippy Sinsabaugh stopped by and his mood was hardly accommodating. The Gip was burned about 9 o'clock meetings. He was also tired of looking at vacant lots Downtown and wasn't going to vote for apartments in the 12th Ward.

WHEN THAT WORD spread around things really started to pop. Following a quick huddle between Ed Norton, Bobby Gallo and Bud Lyle, Norton moved to adjourn. It was a "good move" by Ed. A vote would have gone 8-4 against Hess. Not even close.

Things were just as hectic over on the Republican side. Pete Fisher wasn't going to sign but was beckoned into a caucus by John Machione with a "we Republicans have to stick together" line of reasoning.

The braintrust met in the engineer's office and decided that Pete should sign for the good of the city and the party and the ward and Machione.

Pete came out of the caucus room to find the Dems back on the floor and figured it was too late to sign. The Republicans, especially Machione, thought he had signed. This made for some confusing conversation afterward between this reporter, Fisher and Machione. Machione thought Fisher had signed and was calling the Democrats chicken because they wouldn't bring it out for a vote. Fisher couldn't figure out what Machione was talking about since he knew it couldn't come to a vote without his (Fisher's) signature.

THERE WERE CHARGES of pressure being exerted on various aldermen especially from Gallo in reference to Machione on Fisher. This provided us one of the few chuckles in the whole ridiculous hassle, Gallo complaining about pressure. Few can hold a candle to Bobby when it comes to turning the screws.

Joe Conlin will undoubtedly find this out in the very near future. However, we've got to support both Conlin and Fisher, in principle, on their stands. Actually, Joe is neither for nor against the apartments at this juncture. He just wants enough information to cast an intelligent vote.

Fisher is for the apartments, despite suggestions from his majority leader. Pete bases his stand on the feelings of his constituents which is why they put him in city hall.

As for the final outcome, we'll go out on a limb since this column is written on Thursdays, and predict that Gallo and Lyle, partners in the flower business, will swing the Democrats into line and get their ten votes.

HALLMARKS—How's Chief Murphy doing? We're happy to report he's doing just fine. He's now employed with the Burns Detective Agency as their Poughkeepsie office manager with some 80 men working under him. With that paycheck and his pension from 32 years on the police force "Murphy" is on easy street. Funny, we always heard nice guys finish last.

Ray Garrahan starting to look like his old self. Ol' Moonshot is an avid follower of the Eugene McCarthy campaign against LBJ and says he's going to contribute $100 to the war chest. Freeman's Tobie Geertsema, working like a beaver for Gene out in Woodstock, will be glad to hear that.

A familiar face around city hall, Joe Saccoman, housing codes inspector, has expressed interest in returning to the Council. Joe was an alderman back in the 30's and says he wants to run again this fall in new Ward Five. Lots of luck, Joe.

Pete came out of the caucus room to find the Dems back on the floor and figured it was too late to sign. The Republicans, especially Machione, thought he had signed. This made for some confusing conversation afterward between this reporter, Fisher and Machione. Machione thought Fisher had signed and was calling the Democrats chicken because they wouldn't bring it out for a vote. Fisher couldn't figure out what Machione was talking about since he knew it couldn't come to a vote without his (Fisher's) signature.

THERE WERE CHARGES of pressure being exerted on various aldermen especially from Gallo in reference to Machione on Fisher. This provided us one of the few chuckles in the whole ridiculous hassle. Gallo complaining about pressure. Few can hold a candle to Bobby when it comes to turning the screws.

Joe Conlin will undoubtedly find this out in the very near future. However, we've got to support both Conlin and Fisher, in principle, on their stands. Actually, Joe is neither for nor against the apartments at this juncture. He just wants enough information to cast an intelligent vote.

Fisher is for the apartments, despite suggestions from his majority leader. Pete bases his stand on the feelings of his constituents which is why they put him in city hall.

As for the final outcome, we'll go out on a limb since this column is written on Thursdays, and predict that Gallo and Lyle, partners in the flower business, will swing the Democrats into line and get their ten votes.

HALLMARKS—How's Chief Murphy doing? We're happy to report he's doing just fine. He's now employed with the Burns Detective Agency as their Poughkeepsie office manager with some 80 men working under him. With that paycheck and his pension from 32 years on the police force "Murphy" is on easy street. Funny, we always heard nice guys finish last.

Ray Garraghan starting to look like his old self. Ol' Moonshot is an avid follower of the Eugene McCarthy campaign against LBJ and says he's going to contribute $100 to the war chest. Freeman's Tobie Geertsema, working like a beaver for Gene out in Woodstock, will be glad to hear that.

A familiar face around city hall, Joe Saccomano, housing codes inspector, has expressed interest in returning to the Council. Joe was an alderman back in the 30's and says he wants to run again this fall in new Ward Five. Lots of luck, Joe.

Council to Vote Tonight on Hess

Tonight's Common Council meeting should be a repeat of Wednesday's session which failed to approve a rezoning petition for the 12th Ward to build garden apartments.

Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) missed Wednesday's meeting due to illness and today he told The Freeman he will not be at tonight's meeting as he is confined to bed under doctor's orders.

Epstein's absence may prove crucial at tonight's 6 o'clock session as the Council has to have 10 votes for the petition in order to rezone that section of Fairview Avenue where 152 units of garden-type apartments are planned by Louis J. Hess of New Jersey.

The Council adjourned Wednesday night without voting on the issue. It appeared at the time that a vote would have 8-4 for it, two short of the needed 10.

Alderman John Machione (R-12th Ward), Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) came out publicly against the apartments and Aldermen Joseph Conlin (D-11th Ward) and Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward) said they would vote against it at Wednesday's meeting.

The Freeman contacted Conlin today and he said he has not changed his mind.

The deadline on the Hess petition, which was submitted for the second time Dec. 27, 1967, is March 26.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Sunday. Tonight showers will occur over the Pacific Northwest, while snow and snow flurries are expected over the Great Lakes and New England. Fair to partly cloudy skies elsewhere. Colder weather is forecast for the Atlantic Coast. Little or no change is anticipated for the remainder of the nation. Minimum temperature forecasts include: Atlanta 28; Boston 23; Chicago 22; Cleveland 22; Denver 35; Duluth 20; Ft. Worth 38; Jacksonville 36; Little Rock 25; Los Angeles 32; Miami 30; New York 30; Phoenix 40; San Francisco 49; Seattle 42; S. Louis 27; and Washington 40.

AMERICAN ART POSTERS, in full color, are fairly new on the market and are being sold as original limited editions. Artists represented, from

The Great Poster Wave Is Not New

Suddenly, it seems, posters are the national fad, foible, hobby and hang-up. If this graphic art is expendable, it is also a low-cost way to have a painting in your den or living room. Teenagers plaster their rooms with posters in the same manner farm kitchens once hung wallpaper. A girl can have a Marlon Brando or Humphrey Bogart Valentine to herself in the family rec room, and the boy in the family probably prefers Batman or The Incredible Hulk for decorative purposes, if he's too young to see the humor in advertising rye bread and Campbell's soup on the walls of his bedroom.

Posters in every shape and size and of every conceivable description are being purchased and plastered in homes and shops across the U. S. today. From playing card size reproduction of Spiderman to gigantic billboard blow-ups of Greyhound buses and a Mona Lisa advertising flower power, posters are being sold by the millions. Offering plenty of visual diversion, they fill voids on walls and in shop windows. Propaganda posters get short shrift, but the op-pop styles are very much in vogue. If it jolts the eye, if it's mind-spinning, the theory seems it was meant to be bought.

PSYCHEDELIC INSPIRED poster, designed by firm called Groovee, is printed in stark black-and-white and is entitled, "Villainous Love"

Two short years ago, the most popular posters were photographic pictures of film personalities like James Dean and Steve McQueen, or of rock 'n' roll idols like Bob Dylan and The Beatles. Now, the fickle public mood has changed and lithographs by modern artists are being turned out en masse for a public ready and willing to gobble them up. Psychedelic posters advertising musical events have been lifted bodily and intact from telephone poles and display boards as collectors' items.

They're Everywhere

Posters are everywhere—in posh, Fifth Avenue executive suites, campus rumpus rooms, hippie pads, bathrooms, Grandma's parlor. Hailed by many as art that is within the financial means of everyman, posters show every indication of being here to stay—long after last year's major drama on TV has been forgotten, the Academy Award movie gathers dust on the studio shelf, and the local gallery or museum has bowed to urban renewal.

But are posters really all that new and all that newly popular? Hardly, as an attractive art show currently holding forth at Annandale-on-Hudson proves.

From now to April 14 the exhibition at Bard College's Procter Art Center is a collection of over 60 posters by American artists, produced mostly during the last 10 years and published for the American Federation of Arts under the List Art Poster Program. Each poster is a fine example of the artist's work in color, produced under his supervision or with his approval. Posters offer the opportunity to collect and enjoy contemporary art, and duplicate copies of the works in the exhibition may be ordered at small cost, says a Bard spokesman.

Poster art, a form of commercial illustration which aims to create an image and give a message, has an ancient history and could be said to go back to the Greeks and Romans. Such nineteenth century artists as Manet, Toulouse-Lautrec and Bonnard became fascinated with this medium of expression and created posters now acknowledged to be legitimate works of art. The decade beginning in 1890, when such men as Aubrey Beardsley and William Morris were working in England, was a golden era for the poster, and the First World War brought an acceleration of its use as propaganda and a new exploration of its psychological possibilities. The emergence of the fine art poster in America can be credited to the List Art Poster Program, which commissioned the first of a series of posters by contemporary painters for the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Included in the exhibition at Bard are works by such artists as Frankenthaler, Lichtenstein, Lindner, Oldenberg, Warhol, Motherwell and Pollock. The show is open to the public from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. (T.G.)

A noted authority on Alexander Jackson Davis, Mrs. Davies will lecture on The Hudson River Gothic of Alexander J. Davis.

A librarian at Columbia, in the past decade she has devoted much time to a study of the romantic nineteenth-century architect, Alexander J. Davis, in preparation for a book on his work. She has lectured and written a number of articles on him and served as a consultant to the National Trust for Historic Preservation in their restoration of his great Gothic Villa, Lyndhurst. Active in the Society of Architectural Historians, she was for a while editorial assistant of its Journal and for eight years Secretary of the New York Chapter.

The lecture will be of special interest to residents of this area since examples of the architecture of Mr. Davis can be seen in the Dutch Reformed Church in Newburgh, the Hurst-Pierpont house in Garrison, and Lyndhurst in Tarrytown. Of further interest to area residents is the fact that Mr. Davis collaborated for more than a decade with Andrew J. Downing, landscape architect, for whom Downing Park in Newburgh is named.

West Point, New York. All interested persons are cordially invited.

This third annual lecture of the Constitution Island Association will begin at 8 p.m. at the North Auditorium of Thayer Hall, U.S. Military Academy.

HVPS Singled Out for State Award

Midst laurels this week stood our own Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society. Honored time and time again over the years, the area Philharmonic Society walked off with one of the granddaddies of all awards when it was named to receive the New York State Award for 1968.

Why had the Hudson Valley Philharmonic been picked by the New York State Council on the Arts to receive the State Award? "In recognition of its outstanding contributions to the artistic enhancement of New York State," said Seymour H. Knox, chairman of the N. Y. State Council on the Arts, in announcing the third annual presentation of the coveted prize.

The award will be personally presented by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to the 12 recipients, including the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, at a 12 noon ceremony on May 7, at the glittering Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Sculpture Prize

The Philharmonic was picked from a large number of groups considered in the visual and performing arts, architecture and communications. This year's award to each winner will be a plexiglass construction by contemporary sculptor Louise Nevelson, to be presented as a lasting symbol of the 1968 award.

Gov. Rockefeller released a statement to TEMPO this week, which said: "The award has been established to prove that productivity can be combined with grace, that diversity can be preserved with distinction, that integrity in everything we do is a source of private pride and public appreciation." He added that in selecting the recipients, the State Arts Council "has tried to recognize individual and collective efforts which provide examples for what man is capable of achieving when too often we are reminded only of his incapacity."

Why was the Hudson Valley Philharmonic singled out? Those who have watched over the years, both individually and collectively, to support it, will not need to be told. And those area residents who have heard the regional orchestra and various of its component ensembles perform in concert, will know automatically without having to read further.

High Standards

What captured the fancy of the Arts Council, however, was the fact that the Valley Philharmonic has demonstrated that a regional concert ensemble "can meet the high standards usually not to be found outside large metropolitan areas . . .

and has brought fine live music to hundreds of thousands who might otherwise rarely or never hear it."

The Council also noted that the HVPS has an outstanding record for training and encouraging talented young people in a region that previously could provide them with no means for the development of their gifts.

Said the citation: "Only nine years ago, the Hudson Valley Philharmonic was made up of an enthusiastic but musically undistinguished group of amateurs. Since then, it has been transformed by its director, Claude Monteux, into a fully professional orchestra that now attracts internationally respected virtuosi."

Formidable Schedule

The Philharmonic indeed does that and more. Besides the regular concert series it presents in Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh, it gives concerts throughout a 1,600-square-mile area, and maintains two smaller orchestras, a training orchestra for the development of new talent, and several chamber music groups.

With its heavy annual schedule of concerts and recitals (70 per cent of which are performed in schools), it is hardly an exaggeration to say the Philharmonic makes the entire Hudson Valley reverberate with the magnificent sound that comprises the best of our musical heritage.

In winning the award along with the other recipients, the Philharmonic was in excellent company. Other winners were Buffalo's Albright-Knox Art Gallery, for the excellence of its collections; Scarsdale's Art on Tour, for bringing fine and folk arts to children; Alfred H. Barr Jr., acclaimed for scholarly service to modern art; New York City's Eastern Air Lines, for sponsoring a production at the Metropolitan Opera; and Garden City's Endo Laboratories, for commissioning a major architect to create their headquarters.

Other winners: New York's Ford Foundation, for its breadth of vision and sense of community responsibility in commissioning noted architects for its headquarters; Ticonderoga's Lake George Park Commission, for the preservation of scenic beauty; New York's Paley Park, for providing a model and incentive for small-site parks in congested urban areas; Rochester's Society for the Preservation of Landmarks, for its conservation work; Waterford's Historical Museum and Cultural Center, for saving the Hugh White homestead; and New York's WBAL-FM, for intelligent and responsible use of the radio medium.

An Obstinate Author And an Indian Idol

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Elmer Carney is an obstinate man... and he makes no bones about saying so whenever circumstances permit. His friend, Oswald, on the other hand, is a silent fellow, who says absolutely nothing ever... but manages to impress in spite of this because of the astute thoughtfulness of his expression.

The differences between the two exist from the very fact that Carney is a tall, husky, flesh and blood human being... and Oswald is a diminutive, rotund figure created out of ceramic materials.

What makes their relationship newsworthy is the fact that Oswald is currently the center of a small storm, and the storm was created by Carney's belief in Oswald's heritage.

Carney came across Oswald originally as he brooded on the mantelpiece of a house on Washington Avenue in Kingston. The pottery figure was among a number of household possessions being auctioned or sold off that day... and Carney, impressed with Oswald's stoic behavior in spite of the fact that his neck was on the block, bought him.

A Rare Find

What also impressed Carney was the fact that he might have accidentally stumbled on an archaeological find of great value. Was there a chance that Oswald was the creation of an early American Indian, possibly one of that tribe that was said to have settled in High Falls or the Lake Mohonk area? He looked more American than Aztec or a carbon copy of same to Carney. True, there was a resemblance to Aztec art in the high headdress he wore, in his animal-like features, and in the fact that he had only four fingers instead of the usual five. But Carney knew that the Indians of South America seldom — indeed rarely — worked in black ceramic, and Oswald was a black ceramic beauty, with traces of quartz granules and mica and the slightest trace of silver. All these materials could have come from the Hudson Valley and, before long, Carney became convinced that Oswald was no dime store knick-knack but a centuries old pottery piece that had been exhumed centuries after his creation, possibly during the digging of the Delaware and Hudson Canal.

Trying to lend credence to his belief, Carney came up with the information that the piece had indeed been handed down from father-to-son as far back as the family from which he had purchased Oswald could remember. Eventually, someone uncovered a piece of pottery about an inch square on the Bruno farm in Hurley that matched exactly the ingredients of Oswald. This convinced Carney further than both could be relics of an early Indian civilization in this area.

Because Carney was interested in seeing a museum built near a hopefully restored Perrine's Bridge in Rifton, he decided to use Oswald to stir up historical interest in local residents. Idol Oswald no longer sat idly by. He was boxed up and mailed off to archaeologists here and there around the State. With an assist from Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Oswald gained an audience with Charles Gillette, curator of archaeology for the State Department of Education. Gillette and his state museum and history department ex-

Madrigal Singers Tour North Europe

The Vassar College Madrigal Singers, a group of 15 undergraduate students, under the direction of Albert van Ackere, Associate Professor of Music at Vassar, are making a two-week tour of Denmark, Sweden and Norway during their Spring vacation. In addition to singing at churches, schools, and universities, the Singers will present programs for the Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian radio systems.

The repertoire of the Singers includes madrigals and canzonettas from Italian, Belgian, Dutch and English sources from the fourteenth to the twentieth century. Their aim is to reproduce an authentic style of Renaissance madrigal-singing. The repertoire also includes any music from the twelfth to the twentieth century which is suitable for a small choral group. Concentrating mainly on original settings for women's voices, the Vassar Madrigal Singers have nevertheless joined with similar men's groups from other American colleges and universities and performed works from the large repertoire for mixed voices. In 1965 the Madrigal Singers conducted a most successful concert tour of the British Isles.

The tour began on March 14 with a concert at the University of Aarhus in Denmark. They next sang a program of Renaissance sacred music at the cathedral in Odense, Denmark. In Copenhagen, they gave a concert at the university and another, on the 18th, at the American Embassy, where they were entertained by the Ambassador, Katharine Elkus White, a graduate of Vassar College.

Swedish Programs

In Sweden the Madrigal Singers will give concerts at the Chalmers Institute of Technology in Gothenburg, at the University of Lund, and at the Anglo-American School in Stockholm. In Stockholm, they will also be singing at a morning service at the American Congregation and presenting an evening concert in the Baroque Room of the Historical Museum.

In Norway, performances will be given at the University of Bergen, the "Laererskole" in Kristiansand, and the University of Oslo. The tour will end on March 27th.

On their tour they will be giving first performances of pieces by Robert Middleton, Professor of Music at Vassar, and Richard Wilson, Assistant Professor of Music at Vassar.

Accompanying the group is the director, Mr. van Ackere, and Lynn C. Bartlett, secretary of Vassar College.

Brussels Prize Winner

Mr. van Ackere studied and later taught at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels. He was awarded the Brussels Conservatory Premier Prix de Chant in 1942 and the Prix Bourgeois for lieder interpretation in 1943. His post-graduate work included study under one of Belgium's foremost singing teachers, the late Mrs. J. van Dyck. As a member of the Pro Musica Antiqua group of Brussels, he travelled extensively in Europe, Canada, and the United States while pursuing a career as an oratorio soloist and recitalist. After serving as a member of the faculty at Wilson College, in Chambersburg, Penn., he joined the faculty of Vassar College in 1960.

Members of the Madrigal Singers are: Denise Dewart '68 of Oneonta, Anne Rhodes '68 and Karen Cilman '69 of Rochester, Dorothy Setian '68 of Garden City, Cynthia Benton '68 of Fitchburg, Mass., Lucinda Franks '68 of Wellesley Hills, Mass., Patricia Koefoed '68 of Cranford, N. J., Deborah Holbrook '68 of Oberlin, Ohio, Susan Mendoza '68 of Rockville Centre, Margaret McCray '69 of Shawnee Mission, Kansas, Adele Ziminski '69 of Uniondale, Nancy Rice '69 of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, Sandra Browne '68 of Diego Martin, Trinidad, Sharyn Cook '69 of Poughkeepsie, and Victoria Nass '71 of Orono, Maine.

Wyeth Says RFK Not JFK's Type—for Art's Sake

PORTRAIT OF A PRESIDENT—the portrait being that of the late President John F. Kennedy—is the second such painting recently to stir controversy. This time around, it was the youthful artist (Wyeth) who caused all the hullabaloo by incorporating some of Sen. Ted Kennedy's features in the painting and announcing publicly that he had rejected using any of Sen. Bobby Kennedy's characteristics. He gave as his reason the fact that, in his opinion, Ted had a more "Presidential looking face" than Bobby. Last time around, it was the President who was responsible for the commotion. That was when Lyndon B. Johnson took umbrage last year at a portrait of himself and levelled an attack against the widely recognized artist responsible.

One of John F. Kennedy's two brothers has a "Presidential face," the young artist who painted a controversial portrait of the late president apparently decided.

James Wyeth, a 21-year-old member of the distinguished American family of artists, his fabulously famous father, Andrew, and his grandfather are others) used Senators Robert and Ted Kennedy as models for his preliminary sketches of President Kennedy, he said this week in an article in the current issue of Look magazine.

During two years of work on the portrait, Wyeth, in order to know the family physiognomy sine by bone, filled sketchbooks with life studies of the junior senator from New York and the senior senator from Massachu-

Robert was eventually discarded and Teddy, the brother with the "Presidential face," according to the article, became Wyeth's life model for his portrait of the late president.

Wyeth told the magazine that he found Robert "fascinating, my God, yes, but not JFK's type at all."

After Wyeth finished his portrait, which is reproduced in color in Look, it was accepted by the Kennedy family for the Kennedy Memorial Library in Cambridge, Mass.

Dancing Majors

Again this semester dance majors at Bard College will conduct Saturday morning classes in modern dance for children and teenagers. Classes will be given in the dance studio at Bard College Theatre by Marion Tarr, a junior, and Eva Gholson, a sophomore, who will share the teaching of two classes, one from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m. for six to 10-year-olds, and a second for teenagers from 11 a. m. to 12 noon. The fee for the course is nominal and will be reduced for the second child from one family.

The course will consist of modern dance movement, improvisation, designs and shapes in space, and rhythms. For further information call the college's Public Relations Office or write to Miss Marion Tarr, Box 623, Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y. Students may also register at the class hour any Saturday.

An Obstinate Author And an Indian Idol

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Elmer Carney is an obstinate man...and he makes no bones about saying so whenever circumstances permit. His friend, Oswald, on the other hand, is a silent fellow, who says absolutely nothing ever...but manages to impress in spite of this because of the astute thoughtfulness of his expression.

The differences between the two exist from the very fact that Carney is a tall, husky, flesh and blood human being...and Oswald is a diminutive, rotund figure created out of ceramic materials.

What makes their relationship newsworthy is the fact that Oswald is currently the center of a small storm, and the storm was created by Carney's belief in Oswald's heritage.

Carney came across Oswald originally as he brooded on the mantelpiece of a house on Washington Avenue in Kingston. The pottery figure was among a number of household possessions being auctioned or sold off that day...and Carney, impressed with Oswald's stoic behavior in spite of the fact that his neck was on the block, bought him.

A Rare Find

What also impressed Carney was the fact that he might have accidentally stumbled on an archaeological find of great value. Was there a chance that Oswald was the creation of an early American Indian, possibly one of that tribe that was said to have settled in High Falls or the Lake Mohonk area? He looked more American than Aztec or a carbon copy of same to Carney. True, there was a resemblance to Aztec art in the high headdress he wore, in his animal-like features, and in the fact that he had only four fingers instead of the usual five. But Carney knew that the Indians of South America seldom—indeed rarely—worked in black ceramic, and Oswald was a black ceramic beauty, with traces of quartz granules and mica and the slightest trace of silver. All these materials could have come from the Hudson Valley and, before long, Carney became convinced that Oswald was no dime store knick-knack but a centuries old pottery piece that had been exhumed centuries after his creation, possibly during the digging of the Delaware and Hudson Canal.

Trying to lend credence to his belief, Carney came up with the information that the piece had indeed been handed down from father-to-son as far back as the family from which he had purchased Oswald could remember. Eventually, someone uncovered a piece of pottery about an inch square on the Bruno farm in Hurley that matched exactly the ingredients of Oswald. This convinced Carney further than both could be relics of an early Indian civilization in this area.

Because Carney was interested in seeing a museum built near a hopefully restored Perrine's Bridge in Rifton, he decided to use Oswald to stir up historical interest in local residents. Idol Oswald no longer sat idly by. He was boxed up and mailed off to archaeologists here and there around the State. With an assist from Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, Oswald gained an audience with Charles Gillette, curator of archaeology for the State Department of Education. Gillette and his state museum and history department ex-

Madrigal Singers Tour North Europe

The Vassar College Madrigal Singers, a group of 15 undergraduate students, under the direction of Albert van Ackere, Associate Professor of Music at Vassar, are making a two-week tour of Denmark, Sweden and Norway during their Spring vacation. In addition to singing at churches, schools, and universities, the Singers will present programs for the Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian radio systems.

The repertoire of the Singers includes madrigals and canzonettas from Italian, Belgian, Dutch and English sources from the fourteenth to the twentieth century. Their aim is to reproduce an authentic style of Renaissance madrigal-singing. The repertoire also includes any music from the twelfth to the twentieth century which is suitable for a small choral group. Concentrating mainly on original settings for women's voices, the Vassar Madrigal Singers have nevertheless joined with similar men's groups from other American colleges and universities and performed works from the large repertoire for mixed voices. In 1965 the Madrigal Singers conducted a most successful concert tour of the British Isles.

The tour began on March 14 with a concert at the University of Aarhus in Denmark. They next sang a program of Renaissance sacred music at the cathedral in Odense, Denmark. In Copenhagen, they gave a concert at the university and another, on the 18th, at the American Embassy, where they were entertained by the Ambassador, Katharine Elkus White, a graduate of Vassar College.

Swedish Programs

In Sweden the Madrigal Singers will give concerts at the Chalmers Institute of Technology in Gothenburg, at the University of Lund, and at the Anglo-American School in Stockholm. In Stockholm, they will also be singing at a morning service at the American Congregation and presenting an evening concert in the Baroque Room of the Historical Museum.

In Norway, performances will be given at the University of Bergen, the "Laererskole" in Kristiansand, and the University of Oslo. The tour will end on March 27th.

On their tour they will be giving first performances of pieces by Robert Middleton, Professor of Music at Vassar, and Richard Wilson, Assistant Professor of Music at Vassar.

Accompanying the group is the director, Mr. van Ackere, and Lynn C. Bartlett, secretary of Vassar College.

Brussels Prize Winner

Mr. van Ackere studied and later taught at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels. He was awarded the Brussels Conservatory Premier Prix de Chant in 1942 and the Prix Bourgeois for lieder interpretation in 1943. His post-graduate work included study under one of Belgium's foremost singing teachers, the late Mrs. J. van Dyck. As a member of the Pro Musica Antiqua group of Brussels, he travelled extensively in Europe, Canada, and the United States while pursuing a career as an oratorio soloist and recitalist. After serving as a member of the faculty at Wilson College, in Chambersburg, Penn., he joined the faculty of Vassar College in 1960.

Members of the Madrigal Singers are: Denise Dewart '68 of Onconota, Anne Rhodes '68 and Karen Cilman '69 of Rochester, Dorothy Setian '68 of Garden City, Cynthia Benton '68 of Fitchburg, Mass., Lucinda Franks '68 of Wellesley Hills, Mass., Patricia Koefoed '68 of Cranford, N. What's New on Your Screen

TV history will be made this week when an actual birth is shown on homescreens. We mean a human birth, of course. And this will come with the airing of a notable production, "How Life Begins," due as an ABC special on Tuesday, March 26.

The show's producer, Jules Power, has long been an advocate of sex education for children and his special is, in a way, an adaptation of his successful book of the same title, now widely used in educational institutions across the country. Power is more than slightly pleased that the hierarchy at ABC agreed to his ideas on the screening and also acknowledged its worth among youngsters. The proof is in the fact that it is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. so that children will have an opportunity to see it. Among scenes to be viewed: all aspects of pro-creation, beginning with the splitting of a single cell; animal and human reproduction; and the medical and physical facts of life.

TEMPO took in a display of more than passing interest up at the mall in Colonie Center this week. For a week and a half, cameras, studios, control rooms and equipment from Channel 17—the Tri-City area's only educational TV station—were exhibited for visitors, who came to see themselves in the WMHT monitors and watch Channel 17's regularly scheduled programs. The mammoth display was an interesting montage of huge color panels of the channel's programs on dance, drama, science, satire, social studies, medicine, sewing and automechanics. Interesting, too, were the studio, control room, a classroom and a living room, cameras, lights, studio sets, and mannequins.

Hurrah for Cosby!

Our unreserved praise goes this week to The Bill Cosby Show, that glittering showcase for Fat Albert and Weird Harold that stood out as the pick of the programs Monday night. It was a well-deserved special for a very clever, very funny commentator on the follies of childhood. The material was familiar to us as fans of Cosby's record albums, but watching his expressions was the hilarious most! His game of touch football with Philadelphia kids was priceless and The Fat Albert dance production just great, as was everything about this "Silver Throat" Bill show.

While we have little love for Jerry Lewis (we're more the Dean Martin type), we have to admit that the teaming up of Barbara Eden and Merv Griffin made for one of the better Lewis shows of the season this past week. They were just fine in a hillbilly skit with Jerry as the sleazy mountain man, Merv as the well-manicured city slicker and curvy Barbara "capping" Daisy Mae.

We also liked "The Strange Case of the English Language" wherein several internationally knowns turned up as culprits in the act of undermining grammatical structure. Harry Reasoner proved baleful but humorous as he eyed the syntax sins of LBJ, Lady Bird, Stokely Carmichael, Casey Stengel, Tricky Dick Nixon, and others.

Classic Enchantment

We did not let the fact that "The Reluctant Dragon" was a Children's Theatre presentation deter us from watching it and we're glad we didn't. There was enchantment there for adults as well as kids as Kukla, Fran and Ollie appeared at their best in this musical adaptation of an old classic. Ollie stole the show as the dragon, and Fran was perfect as Mrs. Mother.

Final kudos go to Channel 17 for two fine plays: Harold Pinter's saga of suspense, "The Dumb Waiter," shown Thursday night, and which was compelling to the last moment; and Donald Bull's celebrated play about the case of a Soviet diplomat who defected to the West, "Defection! The Case of Coloney Petrov," aired last night, and which was a remarkable story of intrigue, subterfuge and somersaulting ethics in the world of espionage and security officers.

TEMPO TELEVISION LISTINGS for the week ahead include these programs as those promising the best in viewing entertainment:

Paltz Singers Tour

The Concert Choir of State University College, New Paltz, a mixed chorus of 49 students including eleven from Long Island, performed at eight Suffolk County high schools this week during the college's Spring intercession.

Highlighting the five day tour, March 18-22, was a formal evening concert March 20 at McKenna High School, Massapequa, sponsored by the New Paltz Alumni Association. Proceeds of this concert were contributed to the 1968 Alumni Scholarship fund.

Peter Bagley, assistant professor of music, directs the singing group — one of four major performing organizations at the New Paltz college. Bagley came to New Paltz in 1966 with degrees from State University College, Potsdam, and Indiana University. Since his appointment he has served as guest-conductor for the Ulster and Greene County High School music festivals.

Paltz students from Long Island touring with the choir were:

Lynn Wachtel, Sea Cliff; Diane DeGaetano, Stony Brook; Carol Kuhnle, Shoreham, Dorothy Morris, Islip; Carol Lotarski, East Islip; Rosanne Senatore, Lindenhurst; Johanna Piccolo, Lindenhurst; Joanne Geyer, Southampton; Virginia Soff, Floral Park; Thomas Moglia, Uniondale; Kenneth Vitoff, Massapequa.

The itinerary of the Concert Choir included:

James Wilson Young High School, Tuesday; Southold School, Eastport High School and John P. McKenna Junior High School, Massapequa, Wednesday; West Babylon Senior High School, Thursday; Central Islip High School and Sachem High School, Lake Ronkonkoma, Friday.

Cafe Shakespeare

The Roblore Players of Mount Saint Mary College will present "Shakespeare on Shakespeare," March 27 and 28. The presentation consists of selected scenes and soliloquies from prominent and Elizabethan songs.

The production is being directed by Richard Campion. Irene Walsh, and Sister Joan Roberta, O.P., members of the college's English department. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. in the dining room of the Newburgh campus and will feature a "coffeehouse effect" with informal staging techniques. "Shakespeare on Shakespeare" was first compiled at Villanova University in 1964 by Richard A. Dunprey, and was presented at Villanova's Playbox Theater under the direction of Thomas Nevins. The production will include scenes from "The Taming of the Shrew," "Romeo and Juliet," "As You Like it," "The Merchant of Venice," "Macbeth," "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The cast for "Shakespeare on Shakespeare" includes the following area residents: Gene Heitzman, Newburgh; Marty Donahue, Newburgh; James Haluska, Milton; Felicia Lopez, Wappingers Falls.

Tuesday, March 26

HOW LIFE BEGINS (ABC, 7:30 p. m.). TV's first documentary on this subject examines reproduction in single-celled organisms, plants, animals and humans. Highlight is a human birth photographed at New York's Flower and 5th Avenue Hospitals.

TUESDAY MOVIES (NBC, 9 p. m.). "Stranger on the Run," an original TV film, with Henry Fonda, Anne Baxter, Michael Parks, Dan Duryea and Sal Mineo.

NEWS SPECIAL (CBS, 10 p. m.). "Don't Count the Candles" was photographed by Lord Snowdon and deals with the problems of aging. On tap to talk: Field Marshal Montgomery, Noel Coward, Cecil Beaton and Twiggy.

Thursday, March 28

REPERTORY THEATRE USA (Channel 17, 9 p. m.). "The Forced Marriage," Moliere's celebrated farce about the pleasures and perplexities of married life.

MOVIE (CBS, 9 p. m.). "A Night to Remember," is the night the Titanic, "the ship God Himself could not sink," tore herself open on an iceberg and sank herself. This 1958 English film stars Kenneth More, David McCallum and Honor Blackman.

Friday, March 29

HALL OF FAME (NBC, 9:30 p. m.). "Give Us Barabbas," acclaimed drama about Pontius Pilate, the mob, Barabbas the thief, and Christ. Stars James Daly, Kim Hunter and Dennis King.

SPORTS DOCUMENTARY (Channel 9, 10 p. m.). "Jesse Owens Returns to Berlin" has the Negro track star revisiting the scene of the 1936 Olympics. Hitler, expecting Germany to dominate the games, had hundreds of cameramen on hand and, ironically, some of that footage is used on the show as Owens stands out as the hero of the hour. (T.G.)

OIL ON CANVAS, by James Whistler, the most famous American artist of the 19th century, is of "Mme. Camille d'Avouille." It is being shown in this area and nowhere else this year, in the largest and most comprehensive exhibition of Whistler's work in 50 years, at the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute Museum of Art at Utica. Show, consisting of 85 paintings, watercolors and drawings, opened Sunday at the Upstate gallery and will continue through April 28. The d'Avouille painting is being displayed through the courtesy of the Art Institute of Chicago, on loan from the Addison Gallery of American Art, Andover, Mass.

Drama on Survival Challenge Propless

The first Dutchess County performance of a new play, performed by Syracuse University Players, will take place at the Pure Waters Conference and Report to the People on Thursday, March 28, at Wappingers Junior High School, Wappingers Falls. A dramatic play that treats one of today's foremost survival challenges in human terms, Well of the World is rather unique in its use of music to set a stage and develop a mood. Echoes of several theatrical styles may be noted in the staging, which is handled without scenery or "props," but with dramatic symbols to represent some of the major features involved in the play.

Pinter for HUVREP

Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre has announced a change in its Spring 1968 Season. George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," which had previously been listed as part of the repertory, has been dropped and will be replaced by Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming."

The addition of Pinter's highly acclaimed drama should help to make for an exciting and adventurous spring season for this new professional company. The production of "The Homecoming" at Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre at the Woodstock Playhouse will be the first release of this critically applauded black comedy since its successful Broadway and London runs.

Pinter has been one of the world's leading playwrights in recent years. His work has been performed in theatres all over the globe, transformed into movies, and seen on television. HUVREP, in obtaining the rights to this play, feels it has created a unique opportunity for the theatre-going public in the Hudson Valley.

In addition to the Pinter play, HUVREP's second season, which opens Friday, April 12 at 8:40 p.m., will include: Eugene O'Neill's "Long To Conquer," and Arthur Miller's classic drama, "Death of a Salesman."

Three of the stars for the opening show, O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," are already at work learning their lines. One of the most acclaimed of all O'Neill's plays, this drama by America's only

Nobel Prize playwright was produced after his death since it is highly personal and almost totally autobiographical. It is based on the interplay between a stage family called the Tyrone, but is obviously the true story of O'Neill's early manhood, and the main roles fall to his father, mother, brother and himself.

Mr. Tyrone is an actor, just as Mr. O'Neill was; Mrs. Tyrone is addicted to morphine, just as Mrs. O'Neill was; and the two Tyrone sons included an older drunkard brother and a poetic younger brother, just as the O'Neill family did. In the HUVREP production, lead roles will be assumed by William Metzko and William Ade. Ann Driscoll will portray the mother, Mary Tyrone, and her appearance here marks a coup for HUVREP, since she has done the part often in the past with major companies in New York and elsewhere.

Performances of all four plays be on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings of each week with special student and theatre party performances during the week, and Saturday matinees. The schedule shapes up as follows: O'Neill's haunting and eloquent drama will be performed April 12, 13, 14, 21, 27 and May 10; Pinter's acclaimed comedy-drama is slated April 19, 20, 26, 28 and May 5 and 11; Goldsmith's action-filled frolic will play May 3, 4, 12, 25, 31 and June 2; Miller's poetic masterpiece will be performed May 17, 18, 19, 24, 26 and June 1.

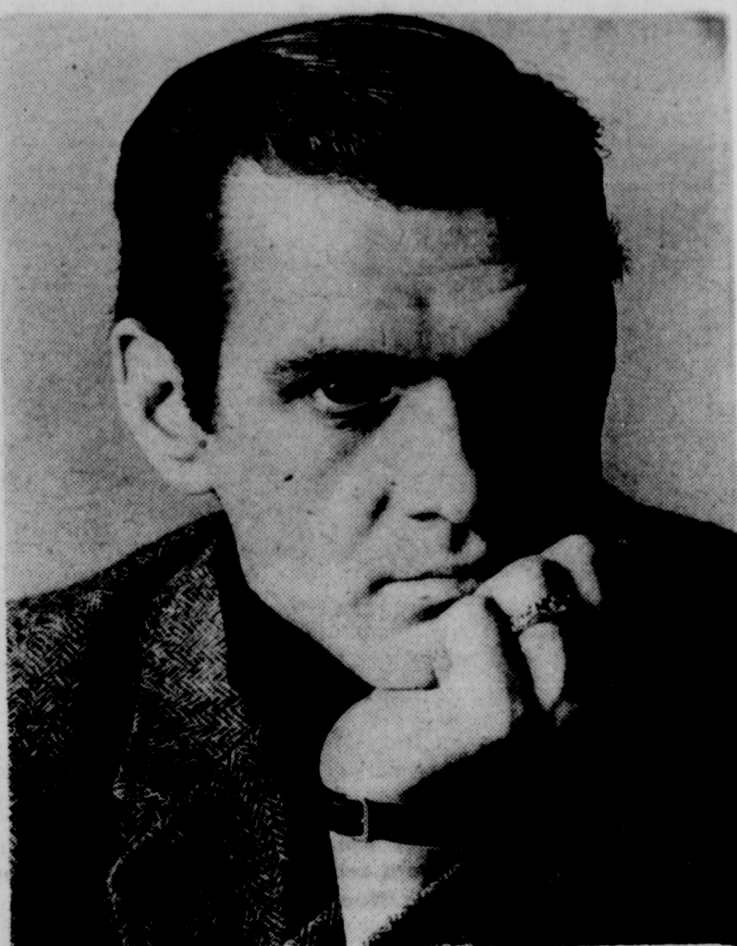

Theatergoers are being offered a unique season ticket plan, with one ticket entitling them to four admissions to HUVREP on any night, including Saturday, all for a low $12 rate. The four-admission ticket can be used at any time by any number of people, or used once for each production or all on one night if desired. The season pass entitles patrons to the best seats in the house and can be used for dramas or comedies.

HUVREP is convinced this is "the biggest theatre bargain ever offered," since one pays only $12 or four tickets that, if purchased separately, would cost some $17. Ample savings are involved and each ticket is numbered and registered with the theater in the event of loss or theft.

A theater spokesman said this week, however, that only a limited number of these tickets are available. Only the original number offered will be printed, and those interested are urged to take advantage of the offer now. With an exciting spring season coming up at HUVREP, theatergoers will want to order their season tickets soon and to support the best in professional repertory theatre in the Hudson Valley.

Tickets are now on sale on the Woodstock Playhouse and further information and reservations may be obtained by writing to The Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, Woodstock Playhouse, P.O. Box 268, Woodstock, or by calling the box office.

careful language as "I thought" or "we think." In other words, no firm or clear-cut opinion, but that very often seems to be the way with the experts of this world.

Unusual Piece

Next stop for Oswald was the desk of Dr. William A. Ritchie, state archaeologist contacted through the good offices of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick. Last week, Oswald was back home again at Carney's house on Alcazar Avenue in Kingston. And of course, there was an accompanying letter. It said in part: "It (Oswald) is of an unusual and unfamiliar form and I believe originated in South America."

There was the exclusive word "believe" again. Never an "insist" or an "absolutely," although Dr. Ritchie had been more than a little definite about another piece (a potsherd) Carney had shipped along with Oswald. If Oswald had been "unusual" and "un-familiar," the potsherd, said Ritchie, was "easy to identify... was of Munsee or Delaware origin and belonged to the late historic period of around A.D. 1500-1550."

When TEMPO was introduced to Oswald this week, it struck us that there was a lot of double-think going on. Why would one expert say Oswald "probably dated back to around 1500 A.D." and another opinion that a piece submitted with Oswald was definitely of that same period, but feel compelled to label the little Indian "unfamiliar."

Not that we're qualified to evaluate Oswald price-wise. To our untrained eye, he could just as well be a 50-cent rummage sale bargain, or a $10,000 museum find. He could just as easily be the creation of a local high school ceramics student in some recent classtime session, as he could be the product of a migrant Indian culture that came to the Hudson Valley from afar, bringing along its valuable possessions.

Further Journeys

In any event, Oswald will probably be traveling again before his worth is resolved, if ever it is. Carney has been recommended to both Dr. Junius Bird and Dr. Gordon Echholm at the American Museum of Natural History in New York for further evaluation. At the moment, however, Oswald's being exhibited at Montgomery Ward's locally and those intrigued by his story can view him there.

Carney, who wants to save Perrine's Covered Bridge and secure land by the bridge proper for an Ulster County Museum, isn't any closer to learning whether Oswald is like a lost Rembrandt, impossible to trace back to its origins, than he ever was. But, like we said, he's an obstinate man and he'll leave no stone unturned to find out where and when Oswald was born. He's convinced in his own mind that his pottery piece is priceless; reminds us that the much publicized Lake Hill Stone (found in the middle of Cooper's Lake up Woodstock way) is thought to be an early American Indian artifact. Many who have seen the stone believe it was brought here by migrating Indians from afar as a record of their past tribal history and society, and was dropped in the lake for preservation purposes when it could no longer be carried on their travels. Such an advanced tribe of Indians in this area has been recognized by some, but others frown upon the story as folklore, not history.

Meanwhile, Carney hopes Oswald will help to arouse interest in the Perrine's Bridge project; says he has already helped to do just that. If the historical-minded people now working toward that end are successful, and Perrine's is restored and several old buildings in the area moved to the site for a museum village, Oswald himself will end up there.

The Big Question

Carney has promised to gift such a museum with Oswald, no matter how much he turns out to be worth. There will probably be more than a few doubters who will say the Kingston resident has no reason to fear losing a fortune by making the gesture, since Oswald is apparently worthless. But is he? At this juncture, nobody seems to know for sure and Oswald continues to confound the experts.

But Carney wants him to go to any future Perrine's museum, whether he's fraud, fake or the real McCoy, in honor of the Rev. Harry E. Christiana, former pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed and Ulster Park Reformed Churches. Carney holds in high esteem the fact that the now retired minister gave much time and effort to conducting field trips for children. On arrowhead hunting expeditions in the area, the Rev. Mr. Christiana acquired a very fine collection of such artifacts, and has made known that he will give them to a Perrine's museum. Carney would like Oswald to be displayed with them.

If Oswald is never traced or if he turns out to be one of the rare finds of the century, he will still be remembered for years to come when Carney completes the book he is now writing. Entitled "Bittersweet," it's dedicated to the old folklore and local legends of this area. Carney acknowledges that it will be all folklore and not a rendering of true history. "Just stories," he says, "stories of the people as told by the people themselves." And since Oswald makes a good story and the story of his story is equally fascinating, he'll end up featured in a chapter of "Bittersweet."

Pinter for HUVREP

Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre has announced a change in its Spring 1968 Season. George Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan," which had previously been listed as part of the repertory, has been dropped and will be replaced by Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming."

The addition of Pinter's highly acclaimed drama should help to make for an exciting and adventurous spring season for this new professional company. The production of "The Homecoming" at Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre at the Woodstock Playhouse will be the first release of this critically applauded black comedy since its successful Broadway and London runs.

Pinter has been one of the world's leading playwrights in recent years. His work has been performed in theatres all over the globe, transformed into movies, and seen on television. HUVREP, in obtaining the rights to this play, feels it has created a unique opportunity for the theatre-going public in the Hudson Valley.

In addition to the Pinter play, HUVREP's second season, which opens Friday, April 12 at 8:40 p.m., will include: Eugene O'Neill's "Long To Conquer," and Arthur Miller's classic drama, "Death of a Salesman."

Three of the stars for the opening show, O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night," are already at work learning their lines. One of the most acclaimed of all O'Neill's plays, this drama by America's only

Nobel Prize playwright was produced after his death since it is highly personal and almost totally autobiographical. It is based on the interplay between a stage family called the Tyrone, but is obviously the true story of O'Neill's early manhood, and the main roles fall to his father, mother, brother and himself.

Mr. Tyrone is an actor, just as Mr. O'Neill was; Mrs. Tyrone is addicted to morphine, just as Mrs. O'Neill was; and the two Tyrone sons included an older drunkard brother and a poetic younger brother, just as the O'Neill family did. In the HUVREP production, lead roles will be assumed by William Metzco and William Ade. Ann Driscoll will portray the mother, Mary Tyrone, and her appearance here marks a coup for HUVREP, since she has done the part often in the past with major companies in New York and elsewhere.

Performances of all four plays be on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings of each week with special student and theatre party performances during the week, and Saturday matinees. ROUND BARNs were always rarer than those of the rectangular or square variety . . . and they are even rarer today. Round barn shown here was photographed by TEMPO lensman Bob Haines on a recent trip up Delaware County way; is reminiscent of those seen in abandoned or restored Shaker communities.

OLD BARN near Kelly's Corners in Delaware County looks ghostly and eerie as it stands on weed-choked hill amidst unmowed grass. Steeple-topped roof and timbers have weathered many a bitter winter and rainy spring. Photo is also by TEMPO photographer Bob Haines, who does our cover pictures.

IN THE TOWN OF ULSTER, just off Route 32, amateur photographer Roy Casella, of Kingston, took this shot of a picturesque barn. Framed by the bare boughs of winter, it, too, is abandoned and unused today. Time was, in the early years of the automobile industry, when the barns of local farmers were used as direction guidposts on road maps.

Picturesque Area Barns

Whether they are old and weathered, deteriorating or still sturdy, round, square, rectangular or octagonal, they boast a rustic beauty all their own. Those of the round variety are becoming increasingly rare today. Not only have time and harsh winter weather ravaged these buildings that were once a farmer's pride, but collectors of the "tear it down and worry about rebuilding later" 1960's are frenziedly stripping the haylofts, silos, and wind-roughened walls and roofs to use the weathered timbers and beams for interior decor with an antique look in modern businesses and homes.

Round barns were highly popular with the communal-living Shakers, who contributed so much in architecture and crafts to early American heritage. In Shaker settlements, now crumbling in ruins or restored as tourist attractions, such barns are still seen. Many were made of stone but farmers in northern New York State copied the style in wood and a few of these remain today to intrigue passing motorists.

The sight of an abandoned barn that once housed livestock and was the active hub of a sprawling farm, brings a rush of memories to members of that generation capable of remembering haying parties and horse auctions held outside its doors. Today, such barns are desolate vestiges of the great agricultural era that made dairy and other farming in New York State an industry of major proportions.

Pointed Direction

And few remember that in the early years of the automobile industry, Model T Ford drivers slogged along muddy roads, following maps whose directions commanded: "Turn right at red barn," or "Take left fork at unpainted barn beyond Jones' general store."

Those were the days when roads were generally dirt, sometimes nothing more than a set of deep wheel ruts generously sprinkled with stones. Dust rose in thick clouds around the sputter-buggies of the day and early motorists faced a tangled web of meandering, rutted, unmarked roads, armed only with the scantiest of directions. Barns often served as road markers or directions on what purported to be road maps. If one was not to get lost on the unmarked roads outside the city limits, the question: "How do you get to—?" was usually answered with "Go right at that barn past the town line," or "Bear left past the barn on the hill."

One of the most famous of all barns and one viewed by many an Ulster County resident found a place for itself in the history books. A 13-sided barn built at Coxsackie, it followed the motif of the gigantic, eight-sided and strange looking octagonal houses that flourished in the Hudson Valley in the mid-1800's. The barn, it was said, had been built in this odd shape to provide more usable space than that of the square variety, to offer more surfaces to sunlight, and to eliminate square corners inside. Since people of the era were highly superstitious, many presumed that all houses and barns of more than four sides were built to eliminate dark corners in which the devil might lurk.

In any event, the strange structure of the famed barn at Coxsackie never ceased to amaze architects. And a strange story has come down to us about the reason for its existence. Legend has it that in 1663, Judge Pieter Bronck (for whom the borough of the Bronx in New York City was named) was so annoyed at the superstitions of his slaves that his patience was pushed beyond endurance.

Bye-Bye Bogey

In order to prove to them that one could successfully fly in the face of superstition, he is said to have ordered the building of the 13-sided barn. The Coxsackie barn was used for three centuries and old timers were in the habit of pointing out that no bad luck seemed ever to follow those who worked in or near the barn that had been built to salve the fears of slaves who believed in the revenge of the bogey man.

Those with long memories also remember barns when they were considered by early advertising men to be as important for spot commercials as the half-way point break in a Bob Hope TV show is today. Many recall fondly those years when the sides of barns boasted signs urging the passing parade to "Chew Red Man Plug."

But if the barns were once landmarks absolutely vital to advertising and to automotive — and, before that — bicycle navigation, when the century began, they no longer hold that distinction today. Red barns — and barns of any other color — from the point of view of today's motorist, are only for looking at.

Set Four Nights Run for 'Brutus'

The first production for the spring semester by the Bard College Theatre of Drama and Dance will be "Dear Brutus" by J. M. Barrie. The play, which is directed by William Driver, will open tonight, March 23 and run through Tuesday evening, March 26.

"Dear Brutus" is set on Midsummer Eve in an English country house belonging to Lob, or Puck. As guests, Lob has assembled an oddly assorted group whose only bond is a common belief that given a second chance each would live a better life.

In the Bard production the lucky ones with the second chance are Ellen Barber as Alice Dearth, Wilhelmina Martin as Joanna Trout, Catherine Chilton as Will Dearth and Ellen Giordano as his dream daughter.

There is no charge for admission and all seats are reserved. Ticket requests may be made by telephone to the Bard Theatre each afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Graphic Expression Exhibit

"Crossroads of Commercial Art—1968" is the title of the exhibit now on display in Dutchess Hall gallery at Dutchess Community College.

This show of professional work, the eighth annual at the college, projects the latest developments in graphic expression, according to Robert Benney, assistant professor in the Department of Visual Art Technologies.

"Of special interest are the displays showing the artist's creative steps, ranging from the rough visual to finished art, which, when reproduced, is what the public sees in newspapers, magazines, posters, or on television screens," Benney said.

The show, which will continue through March 27, is free and open to the general public.

THE RESPONSIVE EYE

Do you have a responsive eye? Well, your chance to find out beckons at the Gallery at the Hall of Fame of the Trotter in Goshen. The "Responsive Eye," an exhibition of 42 works of contemporary art, opened at the Hall of Fame on March 17 and will continue on view until April 8.

Twenty-two artists are represented in this circulating exhibition, organized for the New York State Council on the Arts by The Museum of Modern Art, New York. Most of the artists were also included in "The Responsive Eye," a large show presented at The Museum of Modern Art in 1964. The artists represent seven countries in the exhibit which is free to the public. Gallery hours are 9-5 weekdays; 1:30 to 5 p.m., Sundays.

William S. Lieberman, director, and Elaine L. Johnson, associate curator of the Department of Drawings and Prints of the Museum, selected the exhibition, The Responsive Eye.

Started in 1960's

According to Miss Johnson, "During the early 1960's, artists in increasing number rejected the informalism and spontaneity of prevailing styles. Rather, they began to reassert the values of exactitude in conception and execution. Unlike the 'Action Painters,' they did not emphasize the experience of creation and the artist's gesture. Nor did they intend to evoke a widely varied interpretation. Instead, their foremost preoccupation was with the created object, and with the precise control of the viewer's reaction. Frequently they benefited from scientific knowledge and technology. They followed the physicists' researches into optical theory as well as those of the biological scientists on the psychology of perception. Many artists also intensified the study of materials and techniques at their disposal. They exploited the brilliance of the new synthetic pigments; and sometimes, in order to ensure precision — and, in prints, multiple editions — they allowed other technicians to execute their designs."

Miss Johnson continues: "One of the styles these artists developed within this general tendency became known as 'optical art,' and commonly as 'op.' The appellation optical art is of course useful, but inaccurate. Although it recognizes the physiological and psychological bases of the viewer's experience, it overlooks the intricate formal conception of many of the works. Nor does it suggest the artists' underlying and, sometimes, socially-oriented philosophy."

Joseph Albers, long an influential teacher of color theory, and Victor Vasarely, prolific creator of intricate, non-objective compositions, are the best-known masters of perceptual

Spanish Avant-Garde

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The first American production of a new work by Fernando Arrabal, Spanish avant-gardist, is to be done by the American Conservatory Theater prior to Broadway exhibit.

"The Architect and the Assyrian Emperor" will be directed by William Ball, founder of ACT, who also made the adaptation.

Saint Subber, a leading White Way manager, will present it on Broadway next season after the West Coast showing, in partnership with ACT.

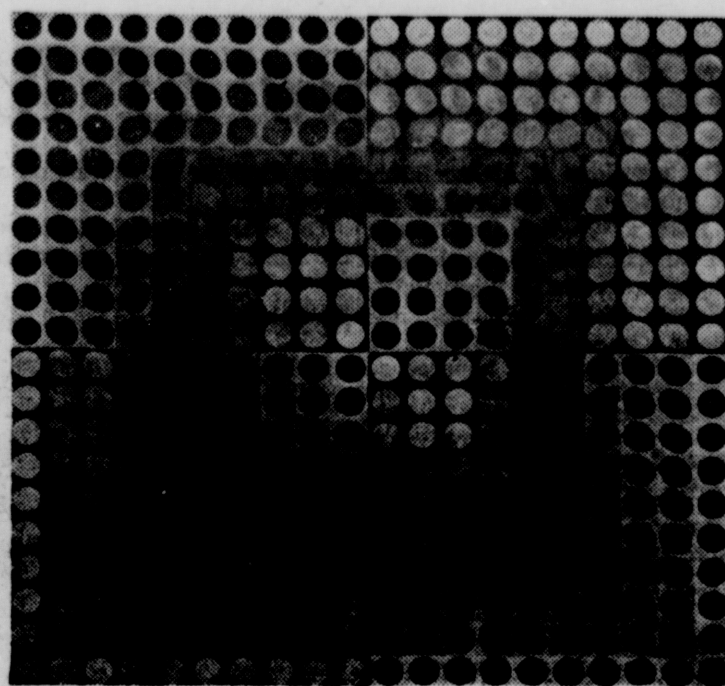

abstraction. The tendency, however, has been wide-spread, and varied in its manifestations. Ellsworth Kelly invents shapes which create a sense of spatial amplitude and color clarity. In his intricate designs, Richard Anuszkiewicz exploits high-keyed color combinations to produce after images or other optical illusions. At the opposite pole is the work of Ad Reinhardt whose images, when first seen in intense light, often appear all black. As the eye accommodates to them, however, diverse dark hues become apparent. Bridget Riley and Henry Pearson, through the use of simple black and white linear schemes, attempt to evoke maximum reactions through minimal means. Reginald Neal is concerned with the changing aspect of an image viewed from various positions. The forms in his two-plated plexiglas, MAZE — RED AND BLUE, appear to rise and fall as the viewer passes by.

Dizzying Maze

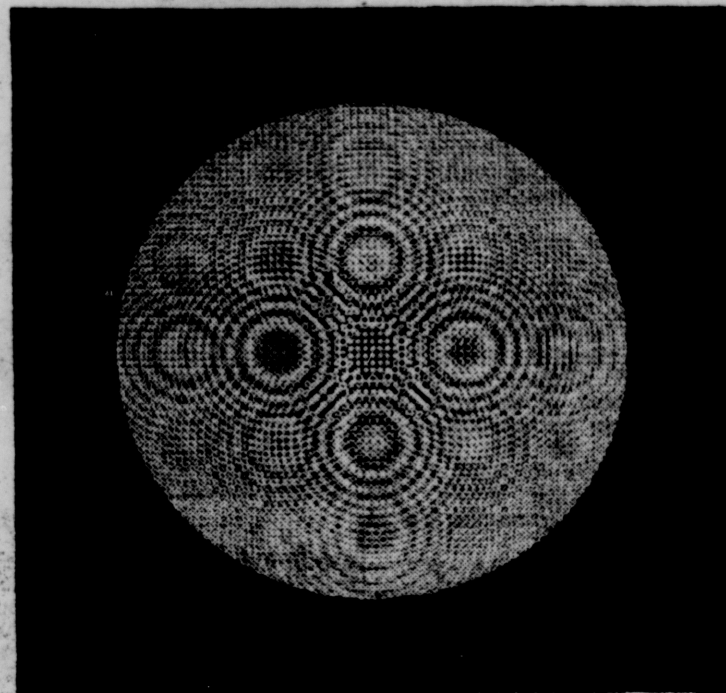

All these artists are represented at the Goshen show and their high-keyed colors and intricate designs make for a dizzying affect. Thick jagged lines may sometimes be read as diverse images or sharply faceted planes. Expanded concentric circles of inflected line create a brilliantly shimmering effect.

The perceptual artists show up as prolific in this show and work ranges from colored silk-screen prints in carefully calculated tones to painted transparent plexiglas walls. Major spokesmen for these artists is Victor Vasarely, whose influence has been strongly felt not only in Europe and the U.S. but in Latin America as well. He firmly believes, like the earlier constructivists and Bauhaus masters, that society will benefit if the artist cooperates with the technologists. In his view, and that of others, a complex and ordered art, like "earthly life," can grow, starting from a fragile molecule to become the greatest of forces: intelligence.

Be that as it may, in the geometric forms at Goshen, every man's eye will find his own wavelength in coloristic and spatial aspects, and in the optical illusions created.

HUNGARIAN BORN AND FRENCH RAISED artist, Victor Vasarely, was responsible for this untitled serigraph. It's from his portfolio, "CTA 102" and is an outstanding example of the "optical art" being exhibited until April 8 in Goshen's circulating exhibition.

ALBERTO BIASI'S "SS" from his portfolio, "Binominal N," is a color serigraph by the Italian born artist. It is being shown at "The Responsive Eye" exhibit through the courtesy of the Museum of Modern Art, New York, which received it as a gift of the artist.

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY. Here we have a brutal Italian made western, supposedly set in the American Southwest during the Civil War. It's about three men who search for treasure buried in a cemetery and, as might be expected, they get involved in plenty of killing in the process.

This is the second time the Italian film industry has come up with a western based on the frontier days of the U.S. of A. and, not so amazingly, it's the second time around for America's western-prone TV star, Clint Eastwood, to be cast as the lead. That's because the first effort made so much money at the box office, it made sense to keep a good thing going.

Eastwood plays a gunfighter in this one and he's off on a search for the hiding place of a stolen Army cash box. If that has a familiar ring so does this—his buddies on the hunt are a Mexican outlaw (Eli Wallach) and a homicidal criminal (Lee Van Cleef).

Predictably, there's a struggle among the three men to outwit each other and this wheeling and dealing leads to a long succession of sadistic incidents, torture and killings as others take up the hunt for the money's whereabouts. A bizarre score by Ennio Moricone and unsparing photography by Tonino Del Colli serve to accentuate the film's utter brutality.

announced that he will be presenting two new painting classes this spring. These special classes, which will be limited to six students each, are being offered to both young adults (teens) and adults. There are no prerequisites. Because of the small size of the classes, all instruction is on a completely individual basis, and the six students who register for each class may range in painting experience from complete beginner to those with substantial painting background.

The classes will be in session for a ten-week period, Wednesday or Thursday evenings, 7:30-10 p.m., beginning March 27 and 28. Both groups will utilize the new studio facilities of the Young People's Studio, in the center of the village of Woodstock, at 3 Tinker Street.

Artist and author, Bruce Dorfman teaches at the Art Students League of New York summer school in Woodstock, and has also taught at the Norton Museum School in Palm Beach, and the Schenectady Museum. He is also director of the Young People's Studio in Woodstock. He has had nine one-man shows of his work, the most recent having been at the Krasner Gallery in New York City in October 1967. His work is in museums, galleries, and schools throughout the country, and has received many national awards and prizes. His paintings, drawings, and prints are in dozens of private collections, both here and abroad. His new book, "Color Mixing," has recently been published by Pitman.

Registration is in advance. Prospective students may call Mr. Dorfman at his home in Woodstock for further information, including tuition.

THE RESPONSIVE EYE

Do you have a responsive eye? Well, your chance to find out beckons at the Gallery at the Hall of Fame of the Trotter in Goshen. The "Responsive Eye," an exhibition of 42 works of contemporary art, opened at the Hall of Fame on March 17 and will continue on view until April 8.

Twenty-two artists are represented in this circulating exhibition, organized for the New York State Council on the Arts by The Museum of Modern Art, New York. Most of the artists were also included in "The Responsive Eye," a large show presented at The Museum of Modern Art in 1964. The artists represent seven countries in the exhibit which is free to the public. Gallery hours are 9-5 weekdays; 1:30 to 5 p.m., Sundays.

William S. Lieberman, director, and Elaine L. Johnson, associate curator of the Department of Drawings and Prints of the Museum, selected the exhibition, The Responsive Eye.

Started in 1960's

According to Miss Johnson, "During the early 1960's, artists in increasing number rejected the informalism and spontaneity of prevailing styles. Rather, they began to reassert the values of exactitude in conception and execution. Unlike the 'Action Painters,' they did not emphasize the experience of creation and the artist's gesture. Nor did they intend to evoke a widely varied interpretation. Instead, their foremost preoccupation was with the created object, and with the precise control of the viewer's reaction. Frequently they benefited from scientific knowledge and technology. They followed the physicists' researches into optical theory as well as those of the biological scientists on the psychology of perception. Many artists also intensified the study of materials and techniques at their disposal. They exploited the brilliance of the new synthetic pigments; and sometimes, in order to ensure precision — and, in prints, multiple editions — they allowed other technicians to execute their designs."

Miss Johnson continues: "One of the styles these artists developed within this general tendency became known as 'optical art,' and commonly as 'op.' The appellation optical art is of course useful, but inaccurate. Although it recognizes the physiological and psychological bases of the viewer's experience, it overlooks the intricate formal conception of many of the works. Nor does it suggest the artists' underlying and, sometimes, socially-oriented philosophy."

Joseph Albers, long an influential teacher of color theory, and Victor Vasarely, prolific creator of intricate, non-objective compositions, are the best-known masters of perceptual

Spanish Avant-Garde

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The first American production of a new work by Fernando Arrabal, Spanish avant-gardist, is to be done by the American Conservatory Theater prior to Broadway exhibit.

"The Architect and the Assyrian Emperor" will be directed by William Ball, founder of ACT, who also made the adaptation.

Saint Subber, a leading White Way manager, will present it on Broadway next season after the West Coast showing, in partnership with ACT.

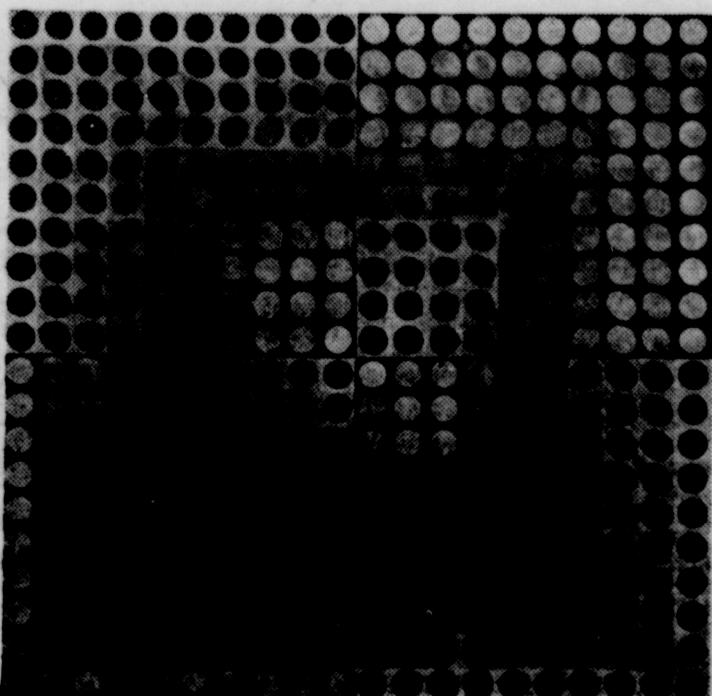

abstraction. The tendency, however, has been wide-spread, and varied in its manifestations. Ellsworth Kelly invents shapes which create a sense of spatial amplitude and color clarity. In his intricate designs, Richard Anuszkiewicz exploits high-keyed color combinations to produce after images or other optical illusions. At the opposite pole is the work of Ad Reinhardt whose images, when first seen in intense light, often appear all black. As the eye accommodates to them, however, diverse dark hues become apparent. Bridget Riley and Henry Pearson, through the use of simple black and white linear schemes, attempt to evoke maximum reactions through minimal means. Reginald Neal is concerned with the changing aspect of an image viewed from various positions. The forms in his two-planed plexiglas, MAZE — RED AND BLUE, appear to rise and fall as the viewer passes by.

Dizzying Maze

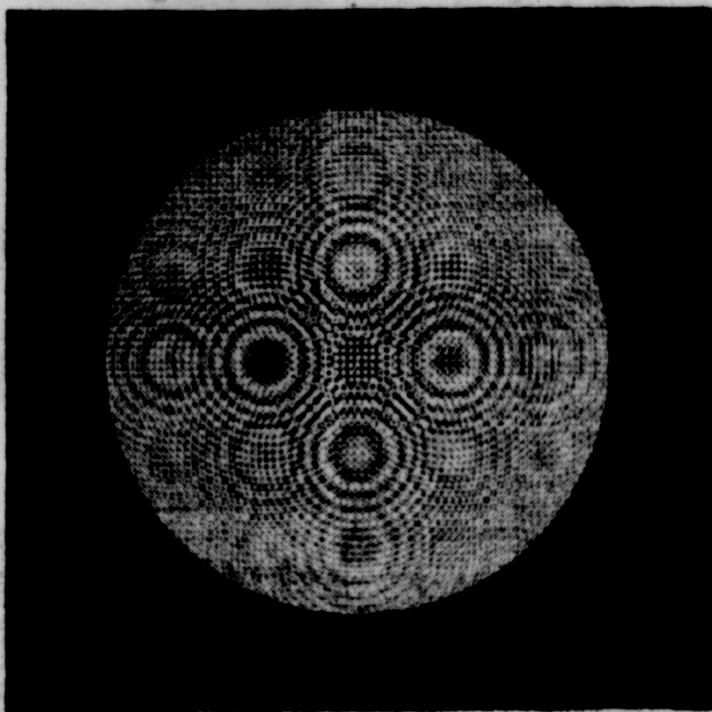

All these artists are represented at the Goshen show and their high-keyed colors and intricate designs make for a dizzying affect. Thick jagged lines may sometimes be read as diverse images or sharply faceted planes. Expanded concentric circles of inflected line create a brilliantly shimmering effect.

The perceptual artists show up as prolific in this show and work ranges from colored silk-screen prints in carefully calculated tones to painted transparent plexiglas walls. Major spokesmen for these artists is Victor Vasarely, whose influence has been strongly felt not only in Europe and the U.S. but in Latin America as well. He firmly believes, like the earlier constructivists and Bauhaus masters, that society will benefit if the artist cooperates with the technologists. In his view, and that of others, a complex and ordered art, like "earthly life," can grow, starting from a fragile molecule to become the greatest of forces: intelligence.

Mystique of Meher Baba Explored

The mystique of Meher Baba, the most highly revered of all of India's "gurus" and saints, will be explored in depth at a unique program in Woodstock's Kelnert Hall, just off the Village Green, next Friday night. Meher Baba, honored as "The Perfect Master" by his devotees and disciples in this country and elsewhere, has declared unequivocally that he is none other than the Avatar or Messiah of our age; that he is the "one, eternal divine essence who has taken human form before as Zoroaster, Rama, Buddha, Christ and Mohammed, and who once again has descended into our very midst."

"Who is Meher Baba?" is the question that will be answered by local residents and other persons who have traveled to India to visit him when the program, "Meher Baba, the Awakener," is presented Friday, March 29 at 8 p.m. in Woodstock's Kelnert Hall. In addition to area artists who have been Baba followers for some time, the program will feature Darwin Shaw, a Baba devotee for more than 35 years. Shaw will speak on Baba's life and works and discuss his unique silence of 43 years and the imminent breaking of that silence.

Also on the program will be Rick Chapman, a consultant on drug research at the University of California at Berkeley, whose topic will be "Meher Baba and the Higher States of Consciousness." Chapman is a frequent lecturer at colleges and on television in opposition to the theories of Dr. Timothy Leary and has debated Leary face-to-face many times. He appeared recently on the David Susskind Show.

Who Is Baba?

The art colony program, prepared by Woodstock devotees of Meher Baba in an effort to answer the "profoundly important" question of who Meher Baba is, is open to the public and admission is free. All the speakers have been closely associated with the "Master," will elaborate on his life and the nature of his work with humanity, and discuss Baba's statements on existence, the drug question, real mysticism, war, and the evolution of consciousness.

It is historical fact that Meher Baba has long been an abiding influence and is a man who is honored throughout the world by his many followers as having attained the very highest state of consciousness — the state of Divine Perfection, or God Realization. In India where he lives, as well as here and elsewhere in the world, connected with him consider Meher Baba to be the sum total, the very essence of their lives. They believe that all that one strives to attain in life, in a spiritual sense, is fully realized in him. Knowing him as they do, they feel that beyond the merely physical, he is in actuality the most vital Reality; Being itself.

It is their contention that to think of Meher Baba as a yogi from the East, preaching calmness of mind through meditation (as does the commercially popular Maharishi Mahesh of the Beatles and Mia Farrow fame would be missing the point entirely. To have Baba's contact, they say, is to feel "the presence of a love which penetrates all the barriers of our limited and separate existence."

Head and Heart

Meher Baba himself has said: "I am not come to establish any cult, society or organization; nor even to establish a new religion. The religion that I shall give teaches the Knowledge of the One Behind the Many. The book that I shall make people read is the book of the heart that holds the key to the mystery of life. I shall bring about a happy blending of the head and the heart. I shall revitalize all religions and cults, and bring them together like beads on one string."

(In recent years in this country and elsewhere, what has come to be known as "the Swami Circuit" has gained a reputation as one of the most greater or lesser degree—the experience of direct insight into the nature of Being or Existence and he is highly respected for this knowledge.

There Are Barriers

The "guru" or "Master" is sought out by those who desire his help, they say. And the true seeker, to them, is one who wishes to transcend his own limiting ego-consciousness. Such a person, they feel, may sense within himself very definite barriers standing between his present limited state and the state of "perfect Peace and Joy" which he is convinced does exist within himself. For this reason, he sees that his higher state of consciousness is reflected in the very life of his guru or Master.

Many gurus and saints lay claim to fame in India today, but none would pretend to be in the same category as Meher Baba, the latter's followers insist. He is and always has been—long before the recent spiritual regeneration movement began—the most highly revered and, by those close to him, he is considered to be the embodiment of Divine Perfection. Baba is a being whom one very rarely has the good fortune to meet, say his devotees, but he is one, who can be of inestimable help, if contacted, in enabling one to discover in life a "truly balanced and lasting experience of Love."

If all this intrigues and interests you—and there are a great many who believe strongly that the mystique of Meher Baba is the most wholesome to attract a following in recent history—you will most certainly want to attend the program detailed here. For Meher Baba says, "I have come not to teach but to awaken..." and the unarguable excellence of the two speakers slated for Woodstock next Friday should do much to help explain Merwan S. Irani, known as Meher Baba, and born in Poona, India, in 1894, of Persian parents... and now acclaimed as the Perfect Master. (T.G.)
